DEADLY ANTHRAX KILLING MANY ONTARIO CATTLE.

Elgin is Free from Dread Disease So Far.

Government Sending Aid.

No cases of anthrax amongst cattle have yet been reported in this district so far. From numerous parts of the province have come reports of poisoned cattle, but upon investigation these cases have proved to be anthrax. It is claimed that scores of cattle are being killed off by it in some parts.

One of the symptoms of the disease in cattle is bleeding from the nostrils and a stiffened neck. In some cases abscesses are formed. The bodies swell after death.

The disease is a most infectious one, and can be contracted by human beings as well as cattle.

Dead animals should not be buried, but burned, say provincial authorities. Even when the carcasses are placed several feet underground, other cattle contract the disease from browsing on the weeds growing over the spot for several years afterward. Ground on which the diseased carcass has been laid, or over which diseased animals have walked, should be thoroughly disinfected.

For protection against the disease vaccination is used. Enough vaccine to treat ten head of cattle will be supplied with the necessary instruments by the Dominion Government at the lowest possible prices. The vaccine is of no use with cattle which are already diseased.

"If you smoke a good deal, and do not get much exercise, or if you have any reason to believe you have a weak heart, or if you are tired, or if you have had a meal recently, then be careful about going in swimming. Don't go into very cold water; stay in shallow water for a while, and don't go for a long swim. If you feel faint, get out at once. We advise this because a good many so-called cases of drowning are really heart failure. As soon as one enters the water the surface blood vessels contract, and a great strain is then thrown upon the heart, which has to force the blood through these contracted vessels. Many swimmers who have gone down and cannot be resuscitated, even though quickly taken out of the water, have died of heart failure and not drowning at all, and it is wise, therefore, to observe the precautions already pointed out."

HUMOR OF THE WEEK.

A farmer's son was seized with the desire to become a legal light. Accordingly he was given the chance to read in the office of a well-known lawyer. At the end of three days he returned to the farm. "Well, Bill, how did you like the law?" asked the father. "It ain't what it's cracked up to be," responded Bill gloomily. "I'm sorry I learned it."

"Every creature is here for a purpose," announced the teacher. "Now, what do we learn from the mosquito?" "We learn from the mosquito," replied young Albert, "how easy it is to get stung."

The area of the earth is 199,712,000 square miles, of which only about 55,000,000 are land. The average altitude of all the land above sea level is 2,111 feet; hence, if all the land above sea level—25,000,000 cubic miles—was spread uniformly over the globe it would form a shell 660 feet thick.

A Farmer's Prosperity.
Farmer Corning was asked whether he had had a good year. "Gosh, yes!" he exclaimed. "I had four cows and three hogs killed by railway trains and two hogs and eleven chickens killed by automobiles. I cleared near a thousand dollars."

Epicurean Approval.
"How are you getting on with your garden?" "First-rate," replied Mr. Crosslots. "Raised anything good to eat?" "I should say so. Why, the neighbors' chickens simply can't wait for the stuff to get ripe!"

Her System.
"He married a lady editor, didn't he?" "Yes. Whenever he comes in late and tries to explain away his tardiness, she always tells him that she regrets his story cannot be accepted, but that she will be glad to have him submit others from time to time."

BANDSMAN A. R. CHRISTIE MEETS OTHER AYLMEY BOYS IN ENGLAND.

91st Batt. is Broken Up—Having Hard Training.

Mrs. A. R. Christie has received the following interesting letter from her husband, Bandsman A. R. Christie, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Christie, with the 91st Battalion, "Somewhere in England." Before enlisting for overseas, Bandsman Christie was the popular quarter-master-sergeant with the 30th Battery, C.F.A.:

July 26, 1916.

Dear Wife, Kids, and all the Rest of the Folks,

Well, I haven't heard from any of you yet, but am looking for a letter some day this week. Last week we were certainly kept busy with musketry, bayonet drill, and squad drill from early till late.

Yesterday (Monday) we started making entrenchments, barbed wire barricades and entanglements, and digging ourselves in with a trenching tool. It is a tool that is carried on the belt, at least the handle is, and the spade and pick part of the tool is carried in a sack to hold it, and hangs right over the seat of the pants.

We have been split all to pieces, and have been changed from one company to another three times during the past week.

There is a possibility that we may get altogether separated shortly. Today Major Madden, who is now connected with another battalion, came in our hut (we now are living in huts instead of tents), and asked for the names of all the bandsmen who had not been taken on the strength of this brigade band. He stated that the Brigadier-General said that all bandsmen who enlisted as bandsmen had the privilege of being transferred to some brigade band at the base in France, providing they were competent; so there are five out of fourteen of us who have put in our names for a transfer at the earliest opportunity, consequently there is a pretty fair chance that I may yet get connected with another band. I hope it goes through O.K., because it is sure some work in the ranks where a fellow has not been used to it.

Last night 200 of us were on duty learning trenching, etc., all night long, just as though we were at the Front. We had to carry all our heavy marching kit from our camp to the place where we went to put in the night. We were not allowed to talk, and were warned that a severe penalty would be meted out to anyone who dared to sleep. We were not allowed to smoke, either—tough luck that was for us, eh? We were marched back to camp again at 5.30 this morning, and allowed to sleep in the rest of the morning. This evening at ten o'clock we had to go back to the same place and take further training.

To-morrow we have to put in another day of it. Then I think the next course is a few days learning bombing. That means how to make and throw bombs. Some of our bunch who had been taking this course while we were taking the trenching course, say that they enjoy the bombing course, as it is interesting and they have a lot of real nice instructors, men who have served their time at the Front.

I have only been out of our camp, which is called West Sandling (I understand that we are now allowed to tell the name of our camp), three times since coming here. The other drummer who was in the 91st with me, went down to Hythe, about 40 minutes' walk, one night after seven and was back at nine o'clock. We dare not be out after 9.30. Then last Sunday afternoon we went down to Folkestone, about six miles away. It is a very pretty place, with a big promenade high up on the cliffs fronting on the Straits of Dover. We were walking along when someone called me. It was George Swaddling, who used to live in Aylmer, then a little while after another fellow said "Hello, Wyn," and I turned to see John Branion. The first day I got here at this camp, Ernie Higginbotham was at the gate when we marched in. He was with the 33rd. The first Sunday we were in England at our other camp (Otterpool), Don, Benson came over to see us. It seems like a bit of home to meet up with any of the other Aylmer boys. We are at present attached, at least A Company and a part of B Company, to the 12th Battalion, forming a part of the 3rd Brigade.

Continue to address my mail to Bandsman A. R. C., 91st Battalion, Army Post Office, London, England. All mail so addressed will always follow, no matter where I am.

I hope you are all well. In spite of the hard training I am feeling good, and have not had a cold since coming over.

I forgot to tell about my third trip out of camp. It was last Friday night after a terror of a hard training day. Just before four o'clock the sergeant-major came over and called out 24 of us for picket duty. We had to go down town to Hythe, and march around the streets from 6 to 11 o'clock to see that order was kept; so it was not a very easy job. Our feet were certainly tired when we got back, but had to be up at 5.30 the next morning to work.

Oh, yes, about this band business. If we are transferred to any bands, we are liable to be placed, one here and one there, in bands which are stationed at the base camps in France. It will be a mighty good thing if we can only land it.

They are sure doing some hard fighting now, and it begins to look as though we had the Germans started back. We all hope so, because the sooner it's over the sooner we will be allowed to get back home.

SIMCOE HOTELMAN CLOSING HOUSE.

Leaves Town After Notifying Boarders.

Simcoe, Aug. 11.—H. W. Purcell, lessee of the Melbourne House, told his boarders to seek quarters elsewhere, and soon afterwards left town. Yesterday the hotel was nominally open, with some of the employees in charge, but it is expected the inspection will close it up.

A local paper comments on the event by calling the proprietor "the first victim in Norfolk of the confiscatory clause of the Hearst temperance measure," but a writ issued by the Suttons for $800 for goods seems to have a more direct connection with the event. Mr. Purcell was renting the hotel from W. L. Cameron, of Toronto, and had kept up payments, as well as paying for chattels, of which he owned about two-thirds.

The closing of the hotel was a surprise to the town, as the bar was considered to be one of the most profitable in town. This leaves Simcoe with three hotels.
