IN ASHES.

ATHENS, Ont., May 19.—A serious fire occurred here about 5 o'clock this morning, destroying the postoffice, Samuel Boddy's harness shop, the barns and stables of the Gamble House, occupied by E. Pierce, Gershon Yates' dwelling and James Stevens' dwelling and barns. The total loss will probably reach $8,000. Insurance small.

HAMILTON, May 20.—A barn in Beverley township owned by Jas. Hill was struck by lightning Wednesday night and burned to the ground. W. Spottswood, who rents the place, lost fifteen tons of hay with harness and implements. Total loss $1,500.

Prof. Smith's Three Keys will positively cure rheumatism in three days, neuralgia instantly. Sold by all drug stores.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1892. Eight years ago I was sick with hemorrhage of the kidneys and could receive no permanent help, although I did receive help for a short time only from two doctors.

A gentleman, Mr. Wilkinson, recommended Pond's Extract to my father and said he would try it if he was me. I did, and as a consequence I have had no hemorrhage in over seven years, and know I am perfectly cured of it. It has been helpful for other complaints also.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Mrs. Carl Beal, Toronto, is visiting London friends.

—W. A. Wilson, city, was registered in London last week.

—Mrs. (Ald.) J. W. Jones is visiting friends in Detroit.

—F. W. Coles, city, was registered in Belleville on Saturday.

—Mr. George S. Birrell, a former well-known wholesale merchant of this city, is at present on a visit from New York.

—Neil Cooper offered the Dufton property on King street at auction Saturday afternoon. The only bid was $2,000, and the sale was reserved.

—A large evergreen floated down the south branch of the river Friday, and came in collision with the foot bridge at the boat house of the rowing club. A portion of the frail structure was carried away.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pugsley, 76 York street, city, celebrated the anniversary of their silver wedding on Thursday night at their residence. A large number of friends gathered, and Mr. and Mrs. Pugsley received a number of very handsome presents.

—Mr. L. O. Stripp, of Cedar Springs, traveling for Reid Bros., London, met with a fatal accident in Kingsmill, Ont., last Monday. While trying to catch a horse his foot caught in the root of a tree, threw him and dislocated his knee. He died from the effects of his injuries on Friday night. He leaves a wife and two children.

—A squad of Prof. Bristol's trained horses could not have marched abreast better than the fifteen horses which broke loose from a King street hotel stable and came trotting up Richmond street Friday evening about 8:45. At the corner of Dundas street a person dropped in to doo-waag except a few policemen who captured the entire squad and returned them to their owner, who is purchasing for the English market.

—If the Free Press is wise it will avoid further reference to Ald. Parnell's bread contract with the county jail. Too many of its own friends are on the griddle to have the flap stirred up. Besides it calls to mind the very palpable fact that the Free Press' legal editor (Elliot by name) was over-ruled by a superior judge, who re-established Ald. Parnell's perfect right to contract with the county. But by what right does Ald. Garratt do city work?

—In his autobiography, P. T. Barnum tells the following story, illustrating his opinion of the methods for arriving at business success: "A man said to me, 'I have tried advertising and did not succeed, yet I have a good article.' I said to him: 'My friend, there may be exceptions to the general rule, but how do you advertise?'

'I put a card in a weekly newspaper three times only, and paid $1 for it.' I replied, 'Sir, advertising is like learning, a little is a dangerous thing.'

—Mrs. Mary J. Caines, who was arrested some time ago on a warrant issued on the complaint of Rodney Parker, a farmer, residing near Union, charging her with bigamy, was tried before Judge Hughes at St. Thomas on Friday. The woman, who is about 40 years old, was married in Toronto twenty years ago to Geo. Hughes, of London, who married her under the name of Geo. Caines. On Jan. 23, 1893, she was married to Rodney Parker. In the meantime she had procured a divorce in Detroit. She and Mr. Parker did not get on well together and soon separated. The judge held that although guilty of bigamy there was no criminal intent, and acquitted her. Mr. Frank Love defended her.

—Mary Wilson, apparently about 50 years of age, was arrested on Saturday in London West on a charge of vagrancy. Mary wandered over to the village on Thursday last and called on the village constable. She is somewhat simple-minded and the official could learn nothing from her as to where she came from. Inquiry was made at all the charitable institutions, but Mary did not belong to any one of them. Constable Ward kept her at his house until Saturday, when she remembered that the last place she boarded was in a large brick mansion, with iron doors situated near the snapper springs. The woman was then taken to jail, where it was learned she had spent a large portion of her time of late. She will be tried on May 26.

Death of William Mountjoy. William Mountjoy, better known at one time in this city as "Billie" Mountjoy, died on Saturday of consumption at the residence of his uncle, A. Mountjoy, 132 Mount Pleasant avenue, London West. For the past two months he had been gradually sinking. Not many in London knew of his illness, and the notice of his death will be a great surprise. His early life was spent in this city, and his prominence was gained through his becoming a baseball pitcher. Very few could equal him as an amateur pitcher. He left here to join the professional ranks, and after a time spent in that way settled in Port Huron, Mich., where he lived for years. He was 37 years old. The funeral will be held to-day, privately. Mr. Mountjoy made a record for himself with the Cincinnati team, the Metropolitan of New York and the Denver team. In the early 80's he pitched excellent amateur ball for the old Mutuals and Beavers. The umpire, Death, has called the game.

Pierced Eighteen Inches of Metal. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—Of the three principal factors in the armor plate test at Indian Head proving grounds yesterday, the plate, the projectile and the gun, the gun alone came out with flying colors. The plate, the heaviest ever forged, eighteen inches in thickness, was riven from edge to edge by the first attack and the second projectile which completed the work of destruction was itself shattered beyond description.

TERRESTRIAL CONVULSIONS.

Results of the Venezuelan Earthquake—Lagunillos and All Its Inhabitants Disappear.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Advices received at the State Department from Consul Plummer at Maracaibo, dated May 5, show that the greatest damage of the Venezuelan earthquake was done on the famous San Carlos and Merida Railway nearly completed in the Andes.

The axis of the disturbance (which lasted at some points three days) was along this line. Several splendid bridges were totally destroyed and others were considerably injured. Several stations were thrown down, the rails were twisted and bent and in some places broken apart, and a number of lives were lost.

Lagunillos, with all its inhabitants, disappeared entirely, a lake now occupying its site. In some places black water having a fetid odor, was expelled from crevasses in the earth. This earthquake is said to have been much worse than those of 1849 and 1875.

SHOULD BURGLARS BE SHOT?

The Saturday Review discusses the theory as to the right or otherwise of householders to shoot persons whom they find occupying their premises after a felonious breaking and entry, especially at night. Commenting on the decision of a recent case at Manchester, the Saturday Review says: "Mr. Justice Grantham must clearly be enrolled among the followers of the late Mr. Justice Willes; and who could be in a better following? The story told of that great man and very learned judge is related by an eye-witness to the following effect: Mr. Justice Willes was asked, 'If I look into my drawing-room and see a burglar packing up the clock, and he cannot see me, what ought I to do?' He replied, as nearly as may be, 'My advice to you, which I give as a man, as a lawyer, and as an English judge, is as follows: In the supposed circumstance this is what you have a right to do, and I am by no means sure that it is not your duty to do it. Take a double-barrelled gun, carefully load both barrels, and then, without attracting the burglar's attention, aim steadily at his heart and shoot him dead.' Mr. Justice Grantham had no occasion to commit himself so far, or so picturesquely, as this because in the case before him the burglar did not die; but it is clear that if he had died it would have made no difference to the lawfulness of the householder's shooting. It may be said that, in a general way, the existence of the circumstances which justify the killing of a felon by a person who is not a constable must be a question of fact for the jury. Nobody suggests that if a burglar was safely in custody, with his hands bound and his weapons and the implements of his vocation removed, it would be a lawful act to put a gun to his head and blow his brains out. Such an act would undoubtedly be murder. Killing burglars in a struggle might conceivably be manslaughter; and sometimes it may, without any question, be excusable homicide. According to Sir James Stephen, a burglar, or other felon, may be killed either if he is in the act of committing, or about immediately to commit, his crime by open force, and cannot otherwise be prevented from doing it, or if it is impossible otherwise to arrest him or keep him in custody. Also any person assaulted in his own house may kill his assailant, if the force he employs is 'proportioned to the violence of the assault.' The event is valuable, as it shows at least that, in the opinion of one judge of the High Court, it is not necessarily criminal to take the offensive against, or nearly kill, a burglar, doing his office."
