BRANT.

There are over 25 acres of onions grown near Scotland village. The crop, with the exception of a few low places, gives promise of a big yield.

The village of Newport came very nearly being up in smoke the other evening. Some suspicious person made a determined effort to burn the village. One of the old buildings, formerly used as a wagon shop was fired at that purpose. A coal oil was freely used for the purpose, of which three were ignited, but being extinguished before any damage was done. The shop was full of machinery belonging to William Wagon, and around it were piled barrels of cords of wood and adjoining were hay barns well filled, the properties of Godfrey and William Wagon. The fire, which was extinguished before any damage was done, was a very serious one, but being extinguished before any damage was done. It has been decided that the Wineshop building, which was closed down on the 1st of August, shall be worked there in the future. The following alterations will be made during the month of August with a view to fitting the shops for occupation by the city flour company about September.
