MCCOY KNOCKED OUT BY COR- this onslaught, and Corbett soon had BETT. New York, Aug. 30 .- The long-promised and long-looked-for meeting between James J. Corbett and Charles (Kid) McCoy, took place under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Club at Madison Square Garden, and in less than five rounds Corbett proved himself to be the better man. Keen judges of the game who saw tonight's fight declare that it was the cleverest exhibition ever witnessed in the ring. Up to the inoment that the men stepped into the squared oircle, opinions as to their respective ability were widely divergent. Many claimed, and rightly, too, that Corbett would the floor. McCoy bravely tried to get prove to be the stronger as well as up, but these three blows had taken the cleverer, and it was through his all his strength away, and while he superb feinting and heavy slugging made frantic endeavors to get up McCoy's friends all along have claim-ed that he was equally as dexterous human effort McCoy stood up after he with his hands, eyes and feet as the former champion, and in addition to this they said that the "Kid" could towards his corner, where his seconds hit harder than Corbett. Both men entered the ring in superb condition. McCoy was heavier by several pounds than any previous occasion when he battle against other opponents. He said himself that he never felt better in his life and that he was never so main bout went on pretty lively. fit as he was for this contest. Corbett was also in tip-top shape; the rumors that were circulated early in the day that Corbett was afflicted with rheumatism were exaggerated, as Corbett himself said he was as fit as a fiddle, and had only experienced a little stiffness when he awoke this morning. In the opening round Mc-Coy showed up to much better advantage than Corbett. McCoy seemed very confident, though careful, while Corbett was nervous and ill at ease. McCoy started out with his usual coolness, but Corbett was fidgety. The round was taken up with the cleverest kind of feinting and sparring on Mc-Coy's part, while Corbett's work left wery little to be desired. In the second round Corbett came up in better form, and his uneasy feeling had evidently left him, and he gave an exhibition which could only be given by a man thoroughly posted in the inner-blocking were marvelous. Corbett got to the head towards the latter end of the second round, and McCoy jabbed his provoking left to Corbett's face. In the third they got to each of the second round, and it was in the other oftener, but it was in the fourth that Corbett began to take McCoy's measure. At times Corbett stopped his scientific work and resorted to slugging practices, which proved very effective. McCoy was forced to clinch, and it was then seen Ex-Champion Corbett Much the that Corbett was getting the upper hand. McCoy had to break ground frequently, and after the bell sent them to their corners both men looked fatigued. McCoy was very weary. In the fifth and concluding round Corbett forced McCoy into the former's corner, where the Kid kept blocking and sparring for an opening to get out. Corbett swung for the head, but McCoy ducked underneath it very cleverly and jumped to the center of the ring. Jim rushed him across the oflor of the ring, and by clever work About $15,000 - Results of Racing on Many Tracks - Easeball Scores in to the Kid's head. This was the beginning of McCoy's undoing. Corbest went to him, using both hands, swinging and stabbing and occasionally upper cutting with the left. Mc-Coy's defense availed him little against the "Kid" at his mercy. McCoy was that he was no longer able to ward off the big fellow's blows and threw his arms across his face holding his head down in the hope of saving himself from a knock-out punch. Corbett relentless showered lefts and rights, which straightened McCoy up, and then Jim swung a left which crash-ed into McCoy's body. McCoy doubled up, and in doing so held Corbett's left glove with his right arm. Corbett then drove McCoy away from him with a right over the heart, and as the "Kid" went back staggering, Jim went after him, landing another left smash in the same spot, and the "Kid" dropped to up, but these three blows had taken that he put McCoy down and out. Charley White counted off the ominous Meanwhile Corbett's ed the winner. After the preliminary the betting on the Among the Corbett followers was Terry McGovern, who made two bets of $200 to $160 on Jim. Tod Sloan sent out a commission of $1,000 to $650 on Corbett, and he was soon accommodated. Al. Smith bet $1,000 to $700 with a Wall street man, and Morris Layman, of Louisville, laid a similar wager with Nat Fenton, of Buffalo, taking the McCoy end. Corbett's seconds were Geo. F. Considine, Spider Kelly, Leo Pardello and Fred Stone. McCoy's handlers were his brother, Homer Selby, Horace Harris, Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, and Bobby Burns.

Corbett's weight was not announced. but the master of ceremonies, Joe Humphrey, said McCoy weighed 170 pounds. Dick Bernard held the watch for Corbett, and Mike Padden was Mc-Coy's time-keeper.

McCoy entered the ring accompanied by his seconds, and met with a hearty While not a blow was landed by reception when he made his appearance. He wore nothing but a pair of white cotton running pants. Both of his hands were bandaged. He looked to be in superb condition and very confident. Corbett followed in about three minutes, smiling and bowing as he passed through the crowd. As he entered the ring he passed alongside of McCoy, to whom he extended his hand, but McCoy refused to take it, and Corbett walked across the ring to his corner. This action on McCoy's part met with some hisses. Corbett was enveloped in a blue and white bath robe, which he discarded as soon as he reached his corner. He wore black trunks and had no bandages on his hands. Corbett seemed to be in fine fettle, and smiled continually, while McCoy's face wore a very serious look. Referee White entered the ring while the two pugilists with their handlers were examining the gloves in the ring. Both men examined the gloves very carefully and tried them on their hands. As soon as they had se-lected the gloves Corbett's seconds placed bandages on his hands also. Corbett said he weighed 183 pounds, but both he and McCoy looked to be about 188 and 175 respectively. The pair of gloves Corbett wore were tan color, while McCoy's were of reddish Plenty of rosin was sprinkled in both corners while the men were donning the gloves. As soon as McCoy had his gloves adjusted he walked about the ring testing the floor with his feet. The men were announced to go 25 rounds under Marquis of Queensbury rules, and as each was introduced the applause was about equal. At 10:35 the referee called the men to the center of the ring and instructed them. A moment later they advanced to the center of the ring. Just before the men began Referee White cautioned the the next two rounds Erne landed several light lefts on face and pody. Cou-hig putting a hard left on the face at the close of the third round. The fourth round saw a terrific mixup, Erne sending a fusillade of stiff rights and lefts to face and jaw, and Couhig countering hard on nose and mouth. Couhig was groggy at the close of the round, while Erne seemed very tired. The fifth round was tame, Erne contenting himself with blocking Counig's leads cleverly, and putting light lefts on the nose. In the sixth and last round Counig landed a hard right on the side of the head. Erne coming back with left jabs on the face, which had Couhig bleeding profusely. The round Couning bleeding profusely. The round ended with both men strong and willing. Referee McBride's decision of a draw was received with disfavor, the opinion being general that Erne should have been declared the winner.
