

TEN MEN KILLED BY GAS POISONING AT TORONTO PLANT

Consumers' Gas Company Employees Perish While Installing Apparatus.

OTHERS INJURED City Firemen Wearing Masks and Respirators Rescue Survivors.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Feb. 9.—Ten employees of the Consumers' Gas Company of this city lost their lives yesterday afternoon through carbon monoxide poisoning, and a number of others were seriously, if not fatally affected as the result of an accident which occurred while some of the men were installing a second apparatus in the valve house of the plant for the purpose of increasing the flow of gas in the mains in the event of the pressure becoming weak. Seven of the men, who were rushed to St. Michael's Hospital, were dead when they reached there.

Brothers Perish.
The dead are: Fred Carey, John Martin, John Cotterell, A. Leadbeater and J. Leadbeater (brothers), Archibald Murdoch, George Stephens, Harry Lonsdale and one unidentified man.

Two men who were taken to hospital in a critical condition are Hugh Thompson, foreman, and Thomas Wilson. Another of the injured in hospital is Lou Peters, but he will recover.

So far as could be learned, four of the men who met death, the Leadbeater brothers, John Martin and Fred Carey, were engaged in the work in the valve house when the accident occurred. There is a device in the valve which is used to ascertain whether the gas supply in the main has been cut off. Either this device failed to work or there was a misunderstanding. In any case, when three of the men had gone into an underground chamber in connection with their work they were overcome by a flow of the poisonous gas. Their comrades on the floor above courageously went to their rescue, and they in turn were overpowered.

A scene of great confusion followed shortly after the accident. Those who were gas masks and some of these were badly affected by the fumes. About 30 of the gas company's men were overcome or partially overcome by the gas.

Pulmonologists and doctors were hurriedly called into use, and thousands of spectators gathered at the scene.

Equipped With Respirators.
Men were rescued from death by firemen equipped with respirators and gas masks. The work of taking out the men was exceedingly hazardous, and some of the firemen were overcome for the time being. Windows were smashed in the valve house, and the insensible employees were taken out into the open air. They were laid on the snow, where physicians, assisted by the police and firemen, rendered first aid. When a man was sufficiently recovered to be removed he was walked around on the snow, while those more severely affected were rushed to hospital. Some were lying on lengths of hose, while others were moved in trucks, private automobiles and ambulances. The spectators were uneasy from fear of an explosion, but none occurred.

Chief Coroner Graham, who was early on the scene, will conduct an inquest. Chief Constable Dickson issued directions for an investigation by the police as to whether the gas company provided gas masks and other safety devices for use in such an emergency.

GRADUATES OF QUEEN'S REUNITE IN BANQUET

London and Western Ontario Ex-Students Gather Together.

Graduates of Queen's University resident in London and Western Ontario will attend the annual reunion banquet to be held at Wong's this evening. V. K. Greer, senior inspector of public schools, who is president of the Queen's Alumni of Western University, this morning stated that there were some 284 graduates residing in Western Ontario. Of these a large representative number will be present.

PIONEER RAILWAYMAN, DANIEL O'CONNELL, DIES

Respected London Resident Spent Fifty Years in Service of Grand Trunk.

Daniel O'Connell, 66, an employee of the Grand Trunk for the past 50 years, died at his home, 579 King street, last night after an illness of almost a year.

Mr. O'Connell was born in Hamilton, and entered the service of the Grand Trunk at the age of 16. He came to London in 1884 and served for some time in the capacity of brakeman, later becoming a passenger conductor. For some years he had charge of a train running from London to Sarnia, and of late years was conductor on the London, Huron and Bruce branch.

Mr. O'Connell was widely known in this district, and the personal friend of most of the traveling men in the city. About a year ago he retired from the road and had been in failing health since then. He was an active and valued member of the Carthage Order of Foresters and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Mr. O'Connell is survived by his widow; three daughters, Mrs. William Ogilvie, Miss Irene and Miss Nellie, of this city; and two sons, Frank of Montreal and William of Vancouver.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from his late residence to St. Mary's Church, where requiem high mass will be sung by Monsignor Brady at 9 o'clock, after which interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

FERGUSON ATTACKS RECORD OF FARMERS

Brother Raney, when at a distance from Brothers Drury and Raney. "What was the matter with the administration?"

The interviewer felt in a moment the question had been pitifully answered. "There was almost compassion in the Conservative leader's voice, as he explained that everything was the matter with the act and its administration."

"There's a double has been," said Mr. Ferguson, "that Mr. Drury and Mr. Raney have insisted on making it punitive instead of curative. They have penalized instead of punishing. They have alienated public opinion and public sympathy. You cannot successfully administer an act unless you have public support. My idea would be rather curative measures."

"Yes," said the Advertiser, intending that the Conservative leader should tell just what he would do, provided he rode to Queen's Park next session in a triumphal car.

"I understand you have a pretty good record in the past," said the Advertiser, "and you would be guaranteed to remedy existing evils to the general satisfaction of everyone," continued the Advertiser.

Taps Forehead.
Mr. Ferguson tapped his forehead significantly, smiling again the smile of a man who is not a bit of a fool. "I told you that, you and your readers would know as much as I do about it, that again something I am not divulging till the time is ripe. You see, I must discuss a question like that thoroughly with my Conservative associates before giving it out for publication."

"Would the Conservative party take any action to a license system to change the present prohibition policy of the province?" was a question asked.

"The very reverse," declared the Conservative leader. "The Liberal party claims to have led in temperance sentiment and temperance reform. The truth of the matter is that the Conservative party has been directly responsible for advance in temperance legislation in the province of Ontario. In other words the Conservative party is the temperance party. You have only to look back over the records of the various administrations to see this. Look at the advance made through the Whitney government."

"And the next Conservative government would have even a more advanced policy?"

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson smiled, and the smile was admission. "Getting back to the question of the scourging of the Drury administration is scheduled to receive at the hands of the Conservative party in the election already casting its shadows, mention was made of the social and moral reform legislation enacted, such as Mothers' Allowances and the Minimum Wage Act."

Even for that, they deserved no thanks, said Mr. Ferguson. When they tobogganed into office at Queen's Park, they found awaiting them in a pigeon hole the Mothers' Allowance Act framed up.

Becomes Magnanimous.
He admitted they had passed some sane legislation. He was even magnanimous enough to say, "No government can exist without doing something to show for all the time it is in office."

"There was no rural credits for example. It might work out all right and the smile was admission. But it came near to making even a very genial and optimistic person gloomy to think how near the danger mark Ontario was being run."

"Is Sir Adam Beck going back?" asked the Advertiser.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson hadn't talked the matter over with Sir Adam. He understood he was to be in London for the Conservative rally. In fact, he heard something to that effect.

"Would Sir Adam run as an Independent or Independent Conservative?" queried the Advertiser.

"Conservative, I should think," said the Conservative standard bearer for the province.

And then he was claimed by the president of the Kiwanis Club for the luncheon.

CANADA HAS FOREIGN POLICY OF HER OWN

Professor Skelton Stresses Need For Dominion To Follow Own Course.

SPEAKS TO KIWANIS

Hon. Howard Ferguson and F. W. Nickle Guests of Local Club.

A trio of distinguished visitors to the city were guests of honor at the joint meeting of the Canadian Club and the Kiwanis in the Townshill House at noon today. O. B. Skelton, professor of economics at Queen's University, and chief speaker of the occasion; Hon. Howard Ferguson, leader of the opposition in the provincial house; and F. W. Nickle, M. P. P. from Kingston, both of whom gave short addresses.

Prof. Skelton's address dealt graphically with the necessity of a recognition by the Canadian people that Canada was continually and vigorously engaged in a foreign policy of her own, instead of slumbering in the delusion that foreign politics were a matter essentially European.

After a significant comment on "the muddled management" of Lloyd George, Lord Curzon and Winston Churchill following the looming of the Near East question, Prof. Skelton advanced as his conclusion three clearly-defined instances in which the Canadian people should intervene in European affairs.

Three Instances.
1. If a real interest of her own is involved and could be advanced by intervention. 2. If a clear-cut and honest policy can be found, based on realities, and not on interested propaganda; and 3. If the safety of British or other parts of the empire were seriously compromised.

Professor Skelton dealt mainly with the theme: "Is there only one foreign policy for the whole British empire which must be controlled by a single government?" and cited a recent statement of Lloyd George and Lord Curzon that by sitting in imperial conference the dominions secure control of the foreign policy of the empire, and should therefore share the responsibility of the empire.

Objects to This.
"I insist that Canada has never assented to this. It would mean nothing more than a sham control, and a very real responsibility to the British Empire, which practically means giving the British Empire a blank check for two or three years."

"We must effect a recognition of Canada's foreign policy," he declared further.

"Each part of the British empire has a special situation of its own—its own responsibilities, special problems, which require distinct and individual foreign policies. For example, Canada is acting on a foreign policy when she sends a deputation to Washington on the coal question, or makes a tariff treaty with France, or discusses with Japan the problem of immigration, with the United States the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway. In each instance she is dealing with her own distinct and special problems. Accordingly, it is only logical to continue along the same course and assert that the Canadian parliament must be the final arbiter as to the extent to which Canada will become involved in the negotiations of and the outcome of the foreign problems of the other parts of the empire."

Ferguson Speaks.
"We need unity and co-operation, optimism and confidence, and one of the best places to develop it is in gatherings like these, of active and wide awake citizens."

Mr. Ferguson said in his brief address. He wound up with an appreciation of Ontario's resources, and the class of men she produces.

"We showed up well in the war; we survived the struggle of the world better than any other nation, and it's the same spirit we need today to solve the problems of civil life."

Mr. Nickle's address was a brief flash of humor, which put the two associations assembled in a decidedly good humor for the more weighty issues of Prof. Skelton's speech.

GERMAN FIRMS CANCEL
ORDERS RECEIVED U. S.

Importers State Shipments Must Be Insured Against War Risks.

By GEORGE WITTE.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News. Copyright 1923 by The Associated Press. The United States with Germany has been affected only slightly by the Ruhr occupation, according to Arthur Dunning, secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in Berlin, and to other American commercial officers here. However, many orders placed in Germany by American firms last year for delivery within the next few months have been cancelled, while other American importers have been called over that they would make good on their orders only in the shipments were insured against war risks.

"As most shipments of goods to the United States go by way of Hamburg or Bremen, and the actual Ruhr blockade has lasted only about a week, German trade with the United States has not been affected so far," said Mr. Dunning. "In a few weeks or months the situation may be entirely changed. Manufacturers with whom Americans have contracts will be either entirely without coal, or will have to buy coal in Great Britain, which will cost them far more than the coal they use ordinarily. As a result the price of goods will go higher, and they will be unable to fill their contracts."

The German women are apparently as stubborn in their resistance as the men, as no case of shearing has yet been reported.

TO PRESENT COMPLETE COLLEGIATE ESTIMATES

Secretary Tanner Intimates the Total Will Exceed That of Last Year.

Complete collegiate estimates will be presented at this afternoon's meeting of No. 3 committee. These along with all other estimates already discussed will be gone thoroughly into at a special session of the board to be held Monday. While no accurate figure as to what total amount the complete estimates of the board of education for the year would reach were forthcoming from Secretary W. A. Tanner, he intimated it would be safe to say that the total would eclipse last year's total by at least 40 per cent.

"This is partly accountable through the strain on the colleges, necessitating additional teachers, and rooms and equipment," offered the secretary. The attendance at Central Collegiate without taking into consideration the South London Collegiate and the high school students at the Technical, is equal to the total collegiate attendance of two years ago," he continued, "and the prospects are that with the adolescent school attendance act functioning properly, the increase will continue to be rapid."

Tanner thought that some further cuts in the interest of economy might be made at the special session Monday. All members of the board would be present, and some had indicated their intention to advocate economy "to the last ditch."

EXTENSIVE MANOEUVRES OF FRENCH IN THE RUHR

Drive German Railway Employees From Switch Houses.

By CARL D. GROOT.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser.

Berlin, Feb. 9.—Extensive French troop manoeuvres are in full swing in the Ruhr Valley, according to despatches from Essen and other centres. The French having incited the Ruhr are evidently not engaged in dividing the district into two parts by a line running north and south, which would isolate Essen and cut off its food supply.

One column of troops moved southward of Rellinghausen, occupying the Bakay switch yards and thence spreading westward beyond Bakay. Others marched eastward, occupying more switch yards.

A third group went toward Wanne and Gelsenkirchen. In every case the French drove the German railway employees from stations and switch houses.

These are believed to be the new and "stronger measures" which General
