The Organization of Labor. Although Mr. Henry George could scarcely be expected to lecture to an audience of workingmen, or indeed to any audience, without bringing in the theory of state landownership upon which his fame rests—yet that was not the chief subject of his remarks at Hamilton on Monday night. Quite appropriately to to England to warn the latter of the necesthe occasion, as we must say, he made the sity for quarantine. The "terrible examorganization of labor his main theme, and ple" is always in order in temperance he did it justice, too. The time was when lectures. When it becomes in order in in England the right of workingmen to combine for their own advantage was defort the crank doctors to introduce the exmied, and when their attempts to combine were punished by law. In those days something like this argument was used:

Why should there be unions of workmen, tion. If San Francisco has sent Dr. O'Donemployer acts for himself, in making a Davin west to inquire into the horrors of bargain about labor. Some time had Chinese leprosy. bargain about labor. Some time had to pass ere the right answer to this mistaken argument came; but it did come at last, and to the following effect.

Canadian Irish are bound to be equal to the United States Irish. The latter send come at last, and to the following effect. It may be true (and at the time referred to it was true) that there are no formal unions And both on the Chinese question. of employers, with a regular meeting place, president, secretary, treasurer, constitution and by laws, and all such like. But as a matter of fact the employers are in the habit of meeting every day on 'change, at private dinners in each others' houses, and on so many other convenient occasions besides, that their opportunities of conference and consultation are practically as good as if they met all the time under rules, and were called to order by the tap of a president's hammer. The statement (of that time) that the masters have no unions is illusiory; it is apparently true, but practically false. This reply to the "no masters' unions" argument proved too strong to be successfully met; and for now many years back the workmen's unions have been recognized by English employers of labor. But in America, in one conspicuous instance, not long ago, the Western Union company refused to recognize the telegraphers' union. However, for all the principal trades in America, as well as in England, recognition of the workmen's unions has become a settled fact. Yet some interest still attaches to the old fallacious argument we have referred to, on which during long years of struggle refusal was

Mr. George rubs close to the truth when he says that, where improvement has taken place in the workman's position it has been due, not so much to science, or to inventions, as to organization, to the struggles of the trades' unions. And he did not fail to note one particular sign of the times-the eagerness of politicians on both sides respectively to secure the workingmen's votes. This is to be seen in Canada, and it is conspicuous to-day in the United States, as a feature of the contest now pending. All that he said of the necessity of labor organization, and of the grand in the right and the latter in the wrong.

ready, and will do much more in time to come. But there is still something more which is necessary—something which Henry George fails to see. Say that in one certain country the workingmen have got the day's labor down to eight hours, with fair wages still maintained. If in another country ten or twelve hours still remain the rule, with lower wages, how can the workmen of the first country prevent the cheaper labor of the latter from being imported in the form of medium and the country ten or twelve hours are not canadian. It is the country ten or twelve hours still remain the rule, with lower wages, how can the workmen of the first country prevent the cheaper labor of the latter from being imported in the form of medium and the canada must be first every time. ported, in the form of goods, and so taking the bread from their mouths? This is no mere supposition, either. It is a solid the American iron duties, and forthwith American iron works would be closed. What would American trades unions and knights of labor do then? They would be powerless to help themselves, except in one way. They might agitate and vote for protection, which is the only thing that can place well-paid labor on even terms with poorly-paid labor. But well-paid labor is what the trades' unions are after, of course. And, therefore, we say that members of such unions should be protectionists to a man. Henry George tries to avoid this conclusion, but he will have to come to it some day.

The case might be different if wages, hours of labor, and the condition and status.

I am pleased to see that the time has come But the principle of recognition is settled for both sides; no employer or association of employers will after this tell a deputation of workingmen that they represent nobody but themselves. That day has gone past, never to return; but probably few of the younger members of workmen's unions have any adequate idea of the fierce and long-continued struggle that had to be endured ere the right of workmen to combine became a fact acknowledged by all. And it may even be that some further points still remain to be carried in order to compel full recognition, in law, of the rights of workingmen in combination.

This chief was more fattooed than the others, with the exception of the king, whose face is very highly ornamented. This is effected by means of a sharp little bone instrument that is used to punch tiny holes in the fiesh, into which is afterward rubbed the sap of a certain tree. As this is a very painful operation, it is not surprising that it takes months and months to decorate the whole face; but the greater and more elaborate the tattooing, the greater the warrior.

Leprosy in San Francisco.

From the San Francisco Bulletin.

There is a leper colony struggling into life among us. It is small now, and, per haps, scarcely noticeable. But it is striking its roots deep into the soil. If not exorcised it is bound to grow and expand. Leprosy is a disease of comparatively recent importation in the Sandwich islands. But now 2 per cent, of the whole native population are afflicted with the horrible disease in various stages of devolpment. We have had a notion that the white race need have no fears on the subject. But that is a wholly false and unreliable assumption. There are white lepers Markets by Telegraph that is a wholly false and unreliable assumption. There are white lepers now. Former local administrations, fully impressed with the gravity of the matter, tore up one after the other two leper colonies and shipped them off. But now there seems to be a disposition to settle down and accept leprosy as a feature of San Francisco life. There is a hitch between the steamship companies and the authorities. There are some defects in the law. Upon the merits of the controversy we do not propose to pass now. All that we know is that nothing is being done and that the leper colony grows. Against any furthering paltering with this great evil we protest with all the energy that can be thrown into language. The small interests that have grown up in favor of the continuation ance of the leper hospital should be trampled under foot. There should be no cessation of effort till the lepers are gone.
