Introduction by REV. MARK GUY PEARSE.

ELEVENTH THOUSAND.

With Photographic Portraits of REV. E. R. YOUNG and MRS. YOUNG, Map, and Thirty-two Illustrations. $1.00.

Methodist Free Churches Magazine.—"One of the most fascinating volumes of missionary adventure published in our time."

Illustrated Missionary News.—"As we turn page after page of this book, we meet with crisp and even humorous incidents, thrilling escapes, privations patiently borne, graphic sketches of native life and character, and, best of all, evidences on all hands of the power of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Sword and Trowel.—"Young and old will read this amazing story with delight. His heroic journeys through the snow are described in a way that will secure the attention of all."

Good Company.—"A more interesting and delightful book I have not read for many a day."

Barnsley Chronicle.—"A thrilling and deeply interesting narrative."

Birmingham Daily Gazette.—"One of the most thrilling narratives of missionary life and adventure ever published."

Literary World.—"Even readers who have not the smallest sympathy with foreign missionary work may follow with interest this simple, straightforward, unvarnished narrative of a life of thrilling adventure and heroic endurance."

Scots Magazine.—"Ought to be almost as fascinating as 'Robinson Crusoe' itself, to such as like stories of wild and sometimes dangerous adventure, to enliven their evenings by the fireside."

Divine Life.—"The boys especially will have a ready ear for the adventures with canoes and dog-trains, whilst all the time they will be within sound of the Gospel music with which the book is filled."

Christian Miscellany.—"We have seldom met with a book of more thrilling interest."

Methodist New Connexion Magazine.—"It is a marvellously interesting story of heroic adventure."

Leeds Mercury.—"Will prove an entertaining book for young and old."

King's Highway.—"The book should have a place in every Methodist home, especially where there are boys."
