

BLACK TOM,

The Run of Cooper's Creek.

AN ADVENTURE IN THE WEST.

(From the Dublin Weekly Freeman.)

The men had finished their supper of half-baked ham and strong tea, and were lying in a comfortable slumber...

Black Tom was somewhat silent, and spoke comparatively little. But Tom Logan was a talkative, cheerful, and over the top of the fence...

Tom Logan, lying there in his bunk, with his eyes to the wall, heard it with his ears...

The bushrangers performed a deed that, for many a day, had few parallels. They had held up the bank at Kooravalla...

Tom Logan made no least pause. In a leap he was in the saddle and gathering up the reins in his left hand...

Tom Logan made no least pause. In a leap he was in the saddle and gathering up the reins in his left hand...

Tom Logan made no least pause. In a leap he was in the saddle and gathering up the reins in his left hand...

At the end of the bank was a small, independent concern, but it was not really more than from one to two minutes...
