September, 1898.

Our second party of girls from England this year has arrived just in time, we hope, for the names to be inserted in this issue. One hundred and twenty girls made their first entrance into this land on Saturday, September 24th, and reached Peterboro early on Sunday morning 25th, a little tired and dirty after their day and night of railway travel from Quebec, but looking strong and healthy and full of wonder and expectation about the new life on which they are just entering. Amongst them are a good many little ones, and three or four quite "wee tinies," the baby of the party being only four years old. Miss Code, Secretary, will be glad to receive applications from those willing to take younger children under fourteen for board, clothes and schooling. By taking them now, they will be getting accustomed to the country and the ways of the household during the coming winter, and thus be of more use and help by the time the rush of spring and summer work begins. Their names are as under:

In Leisure Hours

There have been in the last number of the magazine some puzzles, or something that needed a little finding out, and answering. Fortunately we have had very few replies to these and we have to know whether our readers are interested in them and care to have
