WE CAN READILY UNDERSTAND

the reluctance of the public to enter into anything involving the security of their homes and the future of their near ones, which depends entirely upon theory no matter how plausible the theory itself may appear. We agree that the stake is far too great to take such a risk for the matter of a few dollars difference in premiums.

But when this difference in premiums is based, not upon an untried experiment, but represents the accurate conclusions of over 60 years of successful operation of one of the largest companies in Great Britain, we face a fact and not a theory.

The experience of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution, of London, England, positively proves that abstainers are at least 25 per cent. better risks than non-abstainers and therefore should have specially reduced rates and large guarantees and liberal privileges.

The Equity Life's contracts are the incorporation of these principles, which are particularly referred to in this issue of their "Advocate."

It will pay you to know just what rates are your due before paying more. Address
