

Re: ALEXANDER PULMAN, professor of Greek

Latin and German at Institut César, Ixelles, Brussels, Belgium.

Born in Warsaw in September 1881. Of Evangélico-Lutheran faith. Completed classical studies in Warsaw. Later studied Oriental languages at Imperial University of St.-Petersburg. Later took up study of History and Philology and secured degree of Doctor in Classical Philology. Since then has entirely devoted himself to teaching profession.

Professor of Greek and Latin in official and private institutions of different types, boys, girls, mixed. Also class tutor and sub-headmaster. Delegate of Russian Ministry for Public Instruction at final examinations of highest classes of private schools.

Left Russia in 1919 after teaching of Greek and Latin had been banned in all institutions. During school years of 1919-1920, 1920-21, 1921-22 at Warsaw, Teacher and sub-headmaster of grammar school for Russian refugees. In Berlin, gave private lessons to members of Russian colony. Since June 1924, a resident of Belgium. School year of 1925-26 overseer in boarding school of Royal College Athénée. Since October 1st, 1926, professor of Greek, Latin and German at César Institut, Ixelles, Brussels, and collaborator to Belgian newspapers.