

scattered throughout Canada and the United States. In his dual capacity of president of the Catholic Congress and vice-president of the National Convention, Judge Routhier took a leading part in the celebration, which lasted three days. Those who had the good fortune to hear both his speeches on that occasion will not forget them in a hurry; they were master-pieces of enthusiastic eloquence, whose echoes reached even the shores of Europe. Most of the newspapers published complimentary notices. La Minerve styled him "the Champion of Catholicism;" L'Etendard pronounced him "the king of our orators," and Le Courrier du Canada wrote: "Never before have we beheld such a scene of enthusiasm." These speeches will continue as models of their kind, and bracket Mr Routhier's name with those of Messrs.
