

shows that the goods are "just received and that they are the newest and latest and the price is right," and then plainly ticket the price on every article and adhere to that price.

Another suggestion is that you should change the tables around every day or so, showing something different taken from your stock, so that your customers will never enter your store without seeing something on these tables that is seasonable, together with a descriptive showcard or priced ticket plainly