Hill moved that the first two salaries be cut down to $600, in view of the prevailing hard times, and the remaining $400 be put on road improvement. This was finally carried, in spite of Ald. Carscallen's earnest contention that the question was 'not how cheap, but how efficient.'' The council then followed this up by refusing by a vote of 13 to 5 to increase the Commissioner's salary. This was Ald. Carscallen's pet scheme, and he retorted angrily that "it is a shameful piece of business, which I guarantee will be undone in two weeks."

Ald. Hannaford's proposal to meter the large users of water in the city, and thereby save some 40 per cent. of water now wasted, was declared to be too immature for passing to-night. Ald, Carscallen wanted to see water made as free as possible. The majority of the citizens were artisans, and the reduction of the tax on baths to be indulged in on leaving the factory and shop meant increased comfort and health. Ald, McAndrew pointed out that an artisan going home at night could get into an old-fashioned tubful of water without cost, but was taxed $2 for a modern bath,

A Labor Question.

Ald. Ten Eyck's scheme to introduce the eight-hour shift for the men, and 12 for the engineers, at the disposal works, brought out a strong protest from Ald. McAndrew. He cried "Fie!" on the plan of working men 12 hours a day at 11½ cents an hour, when more men could be employed if the hours were reduced. It was a well-timed speech, and was greeted with cordial approval by the crowd of lookers-on.

It was decided to purchase a Gower incinerator at a cost of $4300 for the disposal works, and to ask the people to declare at the next municipal elections whether they favored municipal elections whether they favored municipal electric lighting and power. The butchers are to be heard in the matter of the Central Market legislation, A Labor Question.

The young couple had been married at Lansing, Mich., and did not 7-xish to be parted, but the sheriff threatened that if the girl did not go home with him he wound prosecute the husband for perjuhy in swearing tat the bride was 18 years of age. The girl consented to go back, and her parents will sue for a divorce. The young man followed them.

Wh. Maclean's Amendment to the Rainy in March 28.—(Special.)—At the opening of the day's proceedings in the Commons, Mr. Gillies (Con., Richmond, N.S.) asked what truth there was in the newspaper statement that the Government was contemplating the appointment of six Senators at large to help the Yukon Railway bill through the Senate.

"I must tell my hon. friend," replied Sir Wilfrid Laurier "that if my hon, friend believes all he sees in the newspapers I cannot help it."

The regular weekly meeting of the Young Liberals was dispensed with last evening and a most enjoyable smoker was held. President R. J. Gibson occupied the chair and called on the following to assist in a good program of recitations and vocal and instrumental music: Messrs. Baker, Mason. Hall, Lloyd, Burton, Mack, Carlisle, Cuthbert, Maguire, Baker, Gilonna, McBrady, Savage, Marvin Barry, Burkhart, Chambers and Powers. Gilonna's orchestra rendered several selections throughout the evening.

A crowded audience attended with delight the entertainment given by Mr. John Butler and his class of young women at Bathurst-street Methodist Church. Rev. C. O. Johnson presided and a well-chosen program was rendered by Miss Annie Snyder, Messrs. Jackson, Butler and Spotton, Miss Hall and Miss McGull. Mr. Godfrey, author of the "Land of the Maple," and thirty young ladies sang that popular national song.

In conclusion. Senator Lougheed said it was the duty of the Senate, designed as it was by the fathers of Confederation to exercise a full and independent judgment and be a check on the hasty legislation of the other House, to deal with this question carefully and from an independent standpoint. There never was an occasion of greater need, for this bill was a flagrant violation of their resources to which there was no parallel in the history of the Dominion.

Rainy River Railway Bill.

After a prelimniary discussion, the motion of Mr. Henderson to refer the Rainy River Railway bill to committee of the whole carried.

In the fourth clause defining the power of Parliament as to future legislation, Mr. Lariviere objected to Mr. Maclean's proposal to grant running rights over this railway to all other roads. The people of the Northwest wanted to see this line built.

Mr. Oliver declared that this was the last chance for Manitoba and the Northwest to secure relief from railway monopoly.

Sir Charles Tupper disapproved of the idea of intricate railway problems being raised in the House without first being considered in the Railway Committee.

Mr. Maclean said in committee he was urged to bring this matter up in the House, and he intended to do it. This question, he considered, was even more important to the country than the Yukon bill. He moved to substitute for clause 4 another clause, giving running rights over the C.P.R. to all other railways.

Mr. Oliver strongly supported this amendment. The Government ought to retain control of the railways.

Mr. Casey objected to this particular road being singled out in this way.

Mr. Jamleson thought this question should be dealt with under the subsidy bill, and not by special measure. He reminded the House that Mr. Greenway would declare his railway policy affecting this very section of the country next session.

Will Not be "Joilled" Any More

Will Not be " Joilled " Any More Mr. Maclean said, why not, then, allow this bill to stand until Thursday? He would not wait until the end of the session for a bonus bill. He had been jollied enough on rallway matters in the House, the measure was designed to destroy the bill.

Mr. Wood warmly resented the statements made by Mr. Sutherland, which he considered an unjust reflection upon himself, that those who opposed the bill wanted to destroy it.

Mr. Maclean asked the Minister of Railways if the Grand Trunk had made application for running powers over the road.

Mr. Blair said he had not heard of it.

Mr. Maclean said he understood they intended to do so.

Mr. Woods' amendment was declared lost.

Mr. Maclean then asked leave to withdraw his amendment, so that he could move it on the third reading. This was accordingly passed and the committee rose and reported the bill without amendment.

An Extraordinary Incident.

Then followed a most extraordinary inciingly passed and the committee rose and reported the bill without amendment.

Then followed a most extraordinary incident, unprecedented in Parliamentary procedure. The Speaker put the question, When shall the bill be read a third time?

Sir Wisfrid and others cried "Now!" and the Speaker decided that those in favor of reading the bill a third time now were in the majority.

Mr. Maclean protested. He thought the third reading should go over until another day, as several nembers wanted to speak on the bill. But Sir Wilfrid was unreasonable, and the Speaker was about to call the third reading, when Mr. Maclean demanded the yeas and nays.

Mr. Speaker: "The hon. member's request is not supported."

Immediately half a dozen members sprang to their feet, and the Speaker said: "Call in the members."

In putting the question the Speaker announced that it was not on the third reading, but whether the third reading should take place now or at some future time.

Mr. Foster wanted to speak to the question. The Speaker's decision, he said, was a decided innovation, and he would like some light upon it.

Mr. Speaker ruled that any discussion at that stage was out of order.

Mr. Foster: "That is decidedly unfair." Whereupon the Speaker with some asperity remarked: "I shall refer to that hereafter."

The Vote Was Forced.

The vote was taken with the result that by 56 to 35 it was declared that the bill be read the third time now. All the Liberal members from the Northwest voted to defer the third reading. Six o'clock had arrived, but the Speaker, before leaving the chair, said he did not wish any misunderstanding to exist. He read bill 47 as follows:

"All amendments made in committee shall be reported by the chairman to the House, which shall receive the same forthwith. After report the bill shall be open to debate and amendment, before it is ordered for a third reading. But when a bill is reported without amendment, it is forthwith ordered to be read a third time at such time as may be appointed by the House." The House had

New Maple Syrup now in stock

When the House resumed after dinner Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper arose to d.scuss the peculiar procedure adopted by the Speaker. His postition was that the third reading, being a separate stage, there should be no undue haste in passing it against the wishes of any member of the House.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier agreed with the position, but pointed out that, as leader of the House, seeing no disposition to proceed with a bill which had already been a long time before the House, he asked that it be read a third time "now." Hence, the Speaker could take no other course than he had adopted, namely, take the sense of the Water Meter Proposal Also Laid over for the Present-Eight-Hour a Day Proposal on Sewage Works Discussed—Incinerator to be Purchased—Other Matters.

Personally Tax Ensatisfactory.

The report submitted by the committee sets out that the personal property tax is now pretty generally conceded to be an unsatisfactory method of collecting taxes, the greatest objections being the inquisitorial character of the tax, the impossibility of uniformly enforcing it, and the fact that it bears most heavily upon that class-of traders and manufacturers upon whom the city must depend for success, always bearing in mind that the commercial success of a city depends upon it being made an attractive centre both for manufacture and distribution, rather than upon its local consumption or home business.

It causes Perjury.

It is pointed out that the personalty property tax is the cause for much worry and annoyance anong business men as it tends to stultify the character of every business man who, struggling between his principles of right and wrong and his know-ledge of the fact that others pay only such taxes as they cannot avoid, finds profit in doing the same thing. United States reports are cited to show that business men will resort to perjury to avoid the tax.

Assessing Personality.

As to the difficulty of, assessing personalty, Thomas G. Shearman, the statistician, is quoted as saying:
