Mexican Cultivated Rubber

Selling higher in the London market than the best Para; $1.56 per pound; costs about 10 cents to produce. Six years ago price was sixty cents.

Sir Thomas Lipton says: "For sure, large and permanent returns, nothing equals a well-managed plantation."

Sir Richard Neville Deering, British Minister to Mexico, in his report says: "The cultivation of rubber is probably the most profitable industry in the world."

President Receivable "Rubber will make more President Roosevelt: "Rubber will make more millionaires in the next ten years than gold, copper or oil.' Collis P. Huntingdon: "If I had my life to live over again I would go south and grow rubber (Business and Finance March 1991) ness and Finance, March, 1904).

Ambassador Romero: "No insurance, no premium, no pension, no annuity as great as a rubber grove will give, could be bought for ten times the cost."

These are statements made by some of the greatest men of our day, men who have had exceptional opportunity to study the signs of the times and trend of events. We propose to issue a monthly bulletin on rubber and the opportunities for profitable investment in Mexico. We want every investor in Canada to know something about this matter. Send address.

At first my statement was not believed, but when I brought forward the facts to prove its accuracy, the impossibility of the undertaking was realized and the thought of peace. This is the second time Kuropatkin has advocated peace when Russia clamored for war. The following historical incident: the absolute accuracy of which I can vouch for and which has never before been published, the treatment of the country and those of his enemy. Prewhich has never before been published, is interesting at this time.

In 1885 the Penjdeh incident—the attempt of Russia to encroach upon the frontier of Afghanistan, which brought the Afghans and the Russians into armed collision, was nearly the cause of plunging England and Russia in war. So imminent apparently were holtilities that parliament granted an emergency credit, the reserves were called out and the fleet mobilized. After some weeks of intense anxiety a diplomatic settlement was effected.

Some years later Gen. Kuropatkin said to a high-placed British official: "You English accuse me of being Anglophobe and advocating war with England. Do you know that I alo e present a set of the first proper intense anxiety and advocating war with England.
