Plans For Collegiate Will Be Discussed by Committee on Friday

Architect L. E. Carruthers Has Plans Completed for School Proposed for London So uth Which May Be Used For Central Structure.

Secretary R. M. McElheran, of the board of education, under instruction from Chairman A. Langford, is today study notices for the assembling of No. 3 committee at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

While no formal reference of the matter of immediate action in regard to the building of the 16-roomed school on the old collegiate site was made to the committee by the special board meeting last night, it was understood that the members of that committee will discuss plans for proceeding with the construction of such a school.

Architect L. E. Carruthers has on hand the plans prepared for the 17-room school, which under the proposals of the unit school scheme supporters it was suggested should be immediately constructed on the site owned by the board in South London, and on which the estimate used during the controversy was based. The possibility of using these plans in connection with the new proposition will probably be discussed.

The estimated cost of the school was given as $575,000 but the building included in addition to the 17 classrooms. An auditorium, gymnasium, domestic science and manual training rooms, and a storage room. Anar an an inquiry on this point,

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Jan. 27. — Three federal survey parties will proceed north in the early spring to undertake a traverse of the Mackenzie River for the purpose of providing for the erection of survey posts to which may be "tied" oil claims staked in the new oil regions. One of the parties will have headquarters at Fort Norman, another between Fort Norman and Providence, and the third at Great Bear Lake. At the present time there is really no and the third at Great Bear Lake. At the present time there is really no base line in that region for the delimiting of claims, and as a consequence considerable confusion may ensue and fractional claims may be staked. The traverse of the river contemplated is designed to furnish a temporary base line. Later it is proposed to extend the sixth meridian and to run a base line thence. A few settlement surveys have already been made along the Mackenzie, but generally speaking the territory is unsurveyed. If the new finds come up 40 expectations a new era for the land surveyer in Canada will have opened.

MEDICAL MEN AND W. U. FACULTY DO HONOR TO LATE DEAN

Funeral of Late Dr. H. A. Mc-Callum Was Very Largely Attended.

BURIED AT WOODLAND

Activities at University Suspended During Funeral Services.

Although services of the simplest nature marked the funeral of Dr. Hugh A. McCallum this afternoon, they were fully expressive of the deep regret of all classes of the community. Many members of the medical profession, from other centres, as well as the city, were present, in addition to relatives from outside points.

Representatives of the university board of governors, the senate and the faculties also expressed their sorrow by participation in the last rites. But for the fact that the funeral was of a private character it would undoubtedly have been one of the most largely attended in the history of the city. Burial took place at Woodland Cemetery.

The services were conducted by Rev. Canon Hill of Petrolea. The konorary pallbearers were: J. M. McEvoy, Dr. H. W. Hill, Dr. Paul McKibben, Dr. Robert Ferguson. Dr. John Wishart. C. R. Somerville, Dr. W. E. Waugh, Dr. I. H. Cameron (Toronto), Dr. Angus Graham, T. G. Meredith and Peter McArthur.

The active pallbearers were: Dr. G. Arthur.

The active pallbearers were: Dr. G.

All activity at the university was halted during the time of the funeral services, although examination schedules made it impossible to close for the entire afternoon, as the board of governors wished to do. Floral tributes were sent by the university and other bodies.

Plenty of trouble is coming Andrew Denton Garfield's way. While in jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of robbery today, he signed a mortgage on a car which he partially paid for in Toronto. According to T. Luchini, 1073 St. According to T. Luchini, 1073 St. Clair avenue, west, Toronto, Garfield purchased a car from him last june on the easy payment plan. He paid down $500 and was to pay $100 a month until the total of $\frac{\text{Times}}{1,300}$ had been received by Luchini. When the first payment was due, Garfield falled to appear, Luchini said. The vendor afterwards discovered that the auto, which was a seven passenger Overland had been sold to a St. Thomas garage man for $200. This purchaser turned it over to another man. He did not find Garfield until the arrest of the two brothers here was given publicity.

The St. Thomas man who bought the car from the garage proprietor recovered his money and paid it to Luchini. So that Garfield could not claim the car it was necessary to get a motigage on it for the amount which he still owes, signed by him.

The two Garfield brothers were seen on the street quite frequently by persons living in the vicinity of the prisoners' apartment, 54 Dundas street.

It is said that they resided at the Dundas street house with the two female prisoners for three or four weeks.

May Rent House.

Such a company is not restricted to the same extent as a civic housing commission, but at the same time is subject to the provisions of the housing act, and may not sell the dwellings at a profit. They must erect them only with the object of providing reasonably-priced homes for workers who may be attracted to the city by development here. A company of this kind could rent the houses as well, while the civic commission has not this privilege.

"The advantages to the commission would be marked." Mr. Tallant said. "Instead of having to collect payments from a large number of individuals and to supervise the construction of all the houses, they would merely have to ge Hope for Ontario.

That the council further expresses the confident hope that the people of Ontario and New Brunswick will this year place themselves in line with those of other provinces in asking that inter-provincial shipment of liquors be prohibited.

That the council points out that the elimination of a traffic so long a recognized business in Canada, so deeply intrenched and exercising so powerful an influence on the social ond political life of the country, would naturally create an opposition on the part of those interested in the traffic which would be at once alarming and as unscrupulous as the nature of the business would suggest. This lawlessness, however, the council believes to be only a passing phase which honest cooperation on the part of citizens with the authorities in the enforcement of laws concerning the liquor traffic can be overcome.

That a request be sent down to the council points of the council believes to be only a passing phase which honest cooperation on the part of citizens with the authorities in the enforcement of laws concerning the liquor traffic can be overcome.

Country.

London, Jan. 27 .- In an official report to the board of trade from the British embassy in Berlin on the industrial and economic situation in Germany, Secretary Thelmal declares that, reviewing the past two years, it is impossible not to be struck by the evidence of improvement in all departments of public and private life, with the important exception of state finance. Germany's chief weakness, he says, is her inability to arrest the outflow of paper money, and if ultimate financial collapse is to be avoided, the question arises as to how she can be saved. The time has passed when an international loan or credit would suffice.

Secretary Thelmal thinks that though it still shows signs of weakness, the Government's authority has steadily increased, and that the Socialists are a greater element of strength outside, than inside, the cabinet. The state machine is described as, too cumbersome, owing to a plethora of officials, but the country is slowly getting accustomed to the new rule and is more inclined to obey it. Remarking that it is impossible to estimate the extent to which Germany is restoring foreign trade while she refuses to publish official trade figures, the report says: "It cannot be doubted that German competition will be found and must, be reckoned with. Moreover, Germany starts with the initial advantage of lower cost of production as compared with other European goods."

Majority of Members of Opposition Party Are Against the Proposals, Claiming the Plan To Be Impracticable— Declares Japan Has Grave Responsibilities in Maintaining Peace in the Far East.

Tokio, Jan. 27 .- Resolutions suggesting that Japan approach the world powers in the interest of an agreement relative to restriction of armaments, has been submitted to the Kansei-Kai, or opposition party, by Yukio Ozaki, a member of the organization, and an advocate of curtailment of military and naval programs in this country. He asks that the resolutions be submitted for passage to the Japanese Diet,

The Conservative organ Jiji Shimpo, says the majority of the members of the opposition party are opposed to the project on the ground that it is idealistic and impracticable. The existing international situation, in the opinion of this newspaper, renders assurance of permanent peace difficult, it being pointed out that the refusal of the United States to join the League of Nations makes this fact quite evident. "Japan has grave responsibilities in maintaining the peace in the Far East." the newspaper declares, "and must complete and amplify her national defence. The 'naval holiday' idea held in the United States and Great Britain is not based upon motives which guarantee future peace, but upon curtailment of growing armament expenditures. It is questionable, therefore, whether M. Ozaki's proposition is feasible at present.
