

NELIGAN'S ENGLISH WORM CANDY.

Dr. Neligan, the discoverer of the celebrated Worm Medicine, which is made into a delightful and pleasant Candy, by Mr. Stark (late student of Practical and Analytical Chemistry, Materia Medica, Pharmacy, Dietetics, etc., Glasgow University, Scotland), is one of the most celebrated physicians living. He is not only celebrated as a physician, but as one of the most clever and distinguished writers of medical books that ever lived. Try the Worm Medicine that bears his name.

WHAT THE CLERGY SAY.

Mr. ROBERT STARK, Chemist, etc.:

Dear Sir—Having administered your Neligan's English Worm Candy to my child, not a year old, I have great pleasure in certifying to its beneficial effects; after a trial of the prescribed doses there were quite a number of worms discharged, and the little fellow seems much improved. I am also aware of another boy, who after all the other usual medicines tried had failed, was perfectly restored to health; I can, therefore, with considerable confidence, recommend it to parents. Your preparation is a medicine pleasant to take and well calculated to produce the effects desired.

Yours, etc., D. McDAIRMID, Free Church Minister.

THREE HUNDRED WORMS PASSED.

ROBERT STARK:

NORWICH, September 12, 1860.

Dear Sir—No words of mine can express the gratitude, wonder, and surprise that I feel in telling you of the success of your Neligan's English Worm Candy. Our whole family of six, except me, were troubled with these pests. We used your Worm Candy, and glorious indeed were the results. One child, 8 years old, passed over three hundred large and small worms, and our whole family were restored, many from death's doors to robust health. No worm medicine is to be compared to yours.

Ever Yours,

JOHN C. JONES.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, Niagara Falls, September 10, 1859.

Mr. R. STARK, Chemist, Woodstock:

I have used your medicine for worms, viz: Neligan's English Worm Candy, and find it to be pleasant, and as good as I could wish.

MRS. THOMAS GILLMORE.
