BERLIN CONFESSES THAT

London, Oct. 7—General von Blume says in a copy of the Tages Zeitung just in breaking through the German line in the west the consequences need not ter-rify the Germans, as the immediate re-sult would be a battle in the field which 'we would welcome."

TALK ACROSS CONTINENT

"Hello, Portland."

"Hello, San Francisco."

"Can you hear me?"

"Perfectly. How are you, McGuire?"

"Bully. Having a fine time and—"

So it went for ten minutes. Thomas

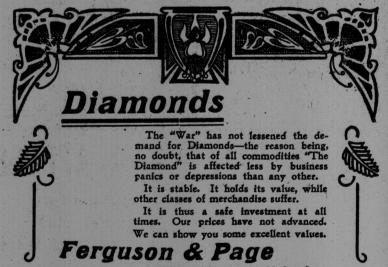

F. McGuire, foreman in the plant department of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company of Portland, now in San Francisco, to see the exposition, and Supt. D. B. Small of Portland, on the western end of the wire. The line was perfect. McGuire's voic was clear and easily recognized and the two men chatted together without a break for five minutes. The conversation is notable because it was the first held by a Portland man with anyone in San Francisco over a telephone line.

Fox Terrier Had Left German Front For Allies' Trenches

ADOPTED BY ALBERTAN

Going on Leave — But Tommy

A letter received by ____ Burton from one of his two sons who have gone to the war contains the following interesting story clipped from an English by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A dirty, big-eyed, little mongrel fox-terrier that had cringed and hidden all through the German front, and finally, with a whole skin, found his way across their trenches and into ours, had been adopted by a big, brawny private from Alberta

The dog, the Canadian, and a bowegged, squatty Tommy of the barget type, walked down the quay to the ship that was to take them home on leave.

Tracking of Flaine Good Midwhen the six-foot-six Albertan and his one-foot dog were crossing the gangway the mongrel was lifted from him by a policeman, who explained in several languages that the dog could not embark. Then the bargee, feeling that the Canadian, being a stranger, was under his immediate protection, grabbed the dog and squared off for a fight. Gendarme whistles blew, and in a jiffy the mongret and his loyal mates were surrounded by soldiers, police, passengers, and a motley throng.

The bargee entered the arena like a star turn, and sang out:—"My mate is a Most old people must give to the bow-els some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bow-els into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only ten cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.
