THE MODERN FIGURE

How to Regain Beauty of Form

The varieties of Fashion are a great trial to ladies inclined to over-stress; but it is a great mistake to go in for physical repression in the shape of special diets. Fasting and violent exercising are no dangerous. One very soon becomes thin, depressed and full of complexions. There is absolutely no reason why you should starve or deprive yourself of whole-some rest and healthy conditions. The following prescription which will restore the beauty of form without any sacrifice of health, is simple and easy to follow. It is a natural and harmless preparation of the most valuable ingredients. It is called "Marmole" and is sold in 3 1/2 oz. Bottles. Extra. Cereals, Aromatic, and 3 1/2 oz. Peppermint Water. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. Don't be afraid of a good appetite, especially as the digestive system will be much benefited by this simple treatment. Indeed, the whole body is beautified, and the reduction of weight occasions no wrinkles. The skin and complexion are re-beautified.

BRILLIANT ENDING OF JOURNEY WEST

Popular Function in Laurier's Honor, Probably Unequalled in Canada's History—Premier McBride's Welcome

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 18—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's triumphant tour across the continent reached a brilliant culmination tonight in a magnificent popular function, probably without peer in Canada's history. In picturesque effect, cosmopolitan character, unprecedented attendance and cordial enthusiasm it paraded in the regular sense of a national triumph. Unique in its kind, it was a political triumph as Premier McBride surpassing himself in courteous homage and hospitality to the champions of the opposition party. That such a reception should have been offered, accepted, carried out by the Conservative premier and government to the national leader, albeit of the Liberal faith, must have a tonic effect on the whole Dominion. It bespoke British Columbia's faith in Laurier as a man and a Canadian. Sir Wilfrid was much moved in replying to the civic welcome by the mayor on the arrival of the steamer in the early evening, and expressed appreciation of the honor done him. In all his long public life he had experienced nothing like it, and he wished to hasten an acknowledgment from a full heart of more than the courtesy received. Premier McBride had then the lead.

BONANZA CREEK DISCOVERED JUST 14 YEARS AGO

A Find That Changed the Story of Hundreds of Thousands of Lives and Made the Klondike

Because fourteen years ago today a man had two Indian companions camped at a certain spot on the shore of an unnamed creek, a thousand miles beyond the outmost edge of human life, the story of hundreds of thousands of people has been changed, wealth has succeeded poverty, stately cities have sprung into being, and the history of half a continent has been materially altered. This is the story of the discovery of the Bonanza Creek gold mine. For it was on August 16th, 1896 that Robt. Carmack, Skookum Jim and Pugh Charlie, pitched their tent on what afterwards was known as Bonanza Creek, a tributary of the Klondike river entering the Yukon. On that August evening Carmack and his Indians, while pottering about the camp in search of dry wood, came upon a spot where the banks of the creek had fallen away. And there in the gravel and mud exposed to the sky by the gusts, gorse gold as large as kernels of wheat, and fine gold, as light as foam. As the result of this discovery about one man in every hundred on this continent went west and north. Seattle sprung from a coast frontier town to a city of almost half a million. And a thousand stately fortunes got their rise in the country which Carmack made known to the waiting world. As yet only the slightest fringe of the north has been touched. The Klondike region comprises probably a square fifty or sixty miles on each side. There are in the northland hundreds of similar stretches of country and tens of thousands of creeks and rivers, and it is understood that sun, and whose possibilities no one knows. The fourteen years that are past have seen the spectacular days of the north, the years that are to come should see a development, less garish, but of greater value to men. The north has coal, copper, iron, gold, rubia and diamonds, while its valleys grow wheat, vegetables and most of the products of the Ottawa Valley. If Canada had another still untapped source of wealth, it would be the north. Transportation to make it capable of supporting many millions of inhabitants.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

A FAMOUS SUNSET By Samuel S. Cox

From an editorial which appeared in the Columbus (Ohio) Statesman, and which gave the writer the sobriquet of "Sunset Cox,"—May 19, 1882.

WHAT a stormy sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm and how splendid the setting of the sun! We do not remember ever having seen the like on our round globe. The scene opened in the west, with the whole horizon full of golden, interpenetrating lustrous colors, which colored the foliage and brightened every object in its own rich dyes. The colors grew deeper and richer until the golden lustre was transfused into a storm-cloud full of the finest lightning, which leaped in dazzling zigzags all around and over the city. The wind arose with fury, the slender shrubs and giant trees made obeisance to its majesty. Some even snapped before its force. The strawberry beds and grass plots "turd up their whites" to see Zephyrus march by. As the rain poured down, the pools formed, and the gutters hurried away, thunder roared grandly and the fireballs caught the excitement and rang with hearty chorus. The south and east received the copious showers, and the west all at once brightened up in a long-polished belt of azure, worthy of a Sicilian sky. Presently a cloud appeared in the azure belt in the form of a castellated sky. It became more vivid, revealing the dark, jagged, peerless fanes and alabaster temples and glories rare and grand in this mundane sphere. It reminded us of Wadsworth's splendid verse in his "Excursion."

The appearance instantaneously disclosed Was of a mighty city, holdly lay A wreath of bulwarks, sinking far And self withdrawn into a wondrous depth, Far sinking into splendor without end.

But the city vanished only to give place to another isle, where the most beautiful forms of foliage appeared, imagining a paradise in the distant and purified air. The sun, weary of the commotion, sank behind the green plains of the west. The "Great eye in heaven," however, went not down without a dark brow hanging over its departing light. The rich flush of the unearthly light had passed, and the rain had ceased when the solemn church bells pealed, the laughter of children rang out, and, joyous after the storm, was heard with the carol of birds; while the flocks and purple swarms of the skies still darted illumination around the Starling college, trying to rival its angles and leap into its dark windows.

THE ALBERT GATE MYSTERY

BY LOUIS TRACY Copyright 1904 by R. F. Fenn & Co.

"Certainly." The official knew that criminals generally implicated themselves when they commenced explaining matters. "You are acting, I presume," said the barrister, "in obedience to reports received from the London police with reference to the matter of the Frenchman who was ushered forth from the doors of the prefecture and stood in freedom in the streets."

"Where now?" said Fairholme. "To the hotel," replied Brett, wearily. "I must have had a long conversation with the Sultan's diamonds, and every one concerned with the Albert Gate mystery, and I have not had a moment's rest since."

"Notwithstanding his weariness, Brett rose early next morning. His companion asked him to find and arrest the man who had shaken the earl so severely by the shoulder before the latter woke into conscious existence. He had I said in his sleepily demanding: "Where is he?"

"I will try to find him," said Brett, "but I must have London by noon. You must leave for London by noon."

"Am I such a nuisance?" then that I have to be packed off at a moment's notice?" said Brett. "You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me."

"Nothing that is not already known to you," said Brett. "You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me."

"You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me," said Brett. "You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me."

"You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me," said Brett. "You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me."

"You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me," said Brett. "You are not a nuisance, but a nuisance to me."
