FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

In a campaign to raise funds for the work of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements in England, Robert Baden Powell, chief scout, sent a letter to the press in which he says:

"The war has shown how close below the surface of our boasted civilization lies the primitive savagery of man. Education and religion have not yet gone deep enough to create more than a veneer. Cruelty is there, even in the child, and though education may occasionally, preach against it, no practical steps are taken for eradicating it. Yet it is only by practice of good on the part of the child that you can effectually improve its character. So, in the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements we are making a special appeal to our million members against cruelty to animals, for it is in that direction that human cruelty first expresses itself. We substitute for the natural mischievous propensities the duty of protecting birds and animals as well as the interest that comes of nature study and the fellow-feeling that comes of making pets. The love of animals is easy to inculcate at this impressionable age, and becomes a life-long attribute; moreover it develops, as the adolescent grows up, the kindred spirit of love for others instead of the selfishness that is too prevalent a vice among us today."

LARGE WORLD SUPPLY OF WOOL

In wool the situation is complicated by numerous economic factors—among them the demoralized exchanges of Central Europe, and the hold-over stocks in Great Britain. On June 30, 1920, the British government owned nearly three million bales of 850 pounds each—or nearly two years' requirements for the British mills. It is estimated that there were 228,000,000 pounds of wool in Australia on June 30, 1920, and that the new clip will amount to 600,000,000 pounds more. The uneasiness of growers is easily understandable, therefore, as is also the hesitancy of manufacturers throughout the world until the trend of values becomes more definitely known. The total clip of the wool-growing countries of the southern hemisphere to be made this month is put at 1,800,000,000 pounds.

In the United States there was on August 1 about 700,000,000 pounds—more than a full year's normal supply. The collapse of wool prices has doubtless contributed to the recession in cotton values, since high-priced wool stimulated the substitution of cotton. Wool is now down 40 per cent below peak prices on the average, although some qualities have dropped 50 per cent.

WAGES AND PRICES.

(Montreal Herald.)

There have been for many months premonitions of a fall in wages coincident with a fall in prices and overstocking. These anticipations are now being borne out. The boot and shoe men in New England were reported a month ago as making contracts at the new level of prices. The Montreal manufacturers are faced with the same conditions and are beginning to ask the co-operation of their employees. In the case of one firm the employees have agreed to accept a slight reduction in wages and work a little over half-time.

It is also reported that the garment workers in Montreal have been asked to agree to a reduction of 20 per cent. in wages. The clothing manufacturers, both here and in Toronto, say that people are not buying because of the high prices and that prices cannot be reduced unless wages are reduced. The Federal Reserve Board at Washington reports that during October factories in many lines were shut down or operated on a part

Some artists are great of voice. Others are merely great of stage performance. To judge how truly great is Anna Case, hear her outside of her physical presence. Hear her voice as it is literally RE-CREATED by the New Edison. Only then will you be able to appreciate fully its sublime beauty. It is actually true that music lovers have heard Case compare her voice with the New Edison's RE-CREATION of that voice, and could distinguish no difference.

"THE MISLEADING WIDOW"

THE WINSOME BILLIE'S BEST PICTURE

MRS. BETTY TARADINE WAS IN THOSE EM-BARRASSING STRAITS of finance due to her overwhelming desire to give the returned soldiers all the comforts they so justly deserved. And then she bethought herself of the happy idea of cashing in on her husband's life insurance. She did. And then Mr. Taradine returned! It was hard on the life insurance company, to say the least, but 'twas Betty who suffered the most. In "The Misleading Widow" you'll see how it all ended and enjoy one of the best light comedies that even was projected on a theatre screen.

time basis because of the unsatisfactory market. Of course wages in all lines have risen rapidly during the past few years in response to the high cost of living. If a new and rational level both in prices and wages can be reached a new era of prosperity can be begun on a sounder basis than has existed since the war broke out. To reach this end there must be a higher grade of efficiency and no slackening. Increased production is much to be preferred to any reduction in wages.
