New York, April 1—Fundamental conditions are favorable for an advance later on, whenever the uncertainties are out of the way and confidence in the ability of business to proceed legally, is restored. Large sums for investment are waiting for this same clearing-up. With stocks in strong hands, money easy, and credit conserved by reason of long continued liquidation of enterprise, temporary disturbances should be met without much disquietude.

BISHOP RICHARDSON SPEAKS TO EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE

Fundamentals of Christian Unity His Subject in Important Address—Report on China Relief Fund

At the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance this morning, the members listened with appreciation to an able paper read by His Lordship Bishop Richardson, who was tendered a hearty vote of thanks at the close. Rev. H. A. Reid presided.

Rev. D. Lang and Rev. Dr. Flanders spoke of what had been done in reference to the Chinese famine fund, and said that while $800 had been raised in and about St. John for the benefit of the famine sufferers, it was felt that the amount should be increased to $1,000. From all Canada up to the present, $24,000 had been forwarded. A strong effort was being made to increase this.

The subject of Bishop Richardson's paper was, "The Fundamentals of Christian Unity." He spoke of many reasons advanced for unaminity, and referred to the strong feeling being aroused in favor of union among churches in the countries of the world. More and more men were learning to discuss Christian unity like brothers—without too strong feeling.

There were many features in favor of union, and one which was at times advanced was economy, with which Bishop Richardson dealt at length. Disunion seriously hindered the spread of Christianity, and this was particularly noticeable in foreign countries where missionaries were laboring.

Moral discipline in the church was well-nigh hopeless owing to dis-union and an examination into the marriage laws would prove this contention. The holy state of matrimony was being trampled upon, owing to the laws applying to the divided forces. There was a general rivalry among the different churches.

"Does denominational rivalry tend to lead us to Christ," asked the speaker, "or does it take us further from him?" We are sinning against Christ's body if we favor schism."

St. Paul said: "There is one spirit," and it was said: "There is but one God, one faith, and one baptism," and St. Paul also said: "Ye are all one in Jesus Christ." The law of the church implied alegiance to one Lord. A unity of loyalty or life was not sufficient, a union of truth was necessary. Every orthodox union must acknowledge and believe that there was but one baptism. It was for these features that St. Paul urged union of spirit on the early Christians. Unity of God was an essential feature in the work of Christ. A strong reason why Christians should be one is because God was one, although in three persons.

There were many dangers, however, in this awakening for unity and the sharing of different views to be agreed upon, for there was an aptness to ignore points of belief. The only hope of a christian unity was a thorough knowledge of vital points. There must be fundamental agreement upon points of truth, to which unity must be subordinate.

What could they do to bring Christian unity nearer? It was not actual conditions that kept sects so far apart from each other, as it was a misconception of the same. There must be a fair open-mindedness in approaching this problem of unity. A question that might be asked was "Is it posible that the causes of separations had by this time been removed?"

The speaker dealt at length with what he considered the fundamentals of Christian belief. The Nicene and the baptismal creeds were necessary to the spread of united Protestantism. The Roman and Greek churches had stood by them through the ages. There was being seen on the part of Rome a tendency to regard her Protestant neighbor with more charity, and this could be seen from Roman literature. The Bible was also coming more into use among the Romans.

As regards the historic episcopate, Bishop Richardson referred to the requirements of candidates for priesthood or bishopries, and said that to surrender the historic episcopate would not be in accord with the fundamentals of unity.

The Anglican church might one day become the mediator among the other churches, when the questions of unity in faith or administration might be dealt with. In closing, Bishop Richardson said that he had carefully tried to avoid any mention of matters which might perhaps wound the feelings of some or other representative of another denomination, and he had tried to have no controversy aroused.

Rev. Dr. Hutchinson moved a hearty vote of thanks, saying that while he agreed with his lordship on some questions of unity, he differed from him as regards the acting of the Anglican church as a mediator, and thought that if such a time arrived when a mediator would be necessary it would be the Baptist church which would act in this capacity.

Revs. Messrs. Flanders, Lang, Graham, and Robinson, spoke in approval of Bishop Richardson's paper as did Dr. Taylor of New Westminster, B. C.

The boy was taken to the hospital and Friday and the operation, which was successful, was performed on Saturday. The coin was dislodged and the lad is rapidly recovering.

GOVERNMENT WINS IN WALLBERG CASE

Ottawa, April 3—The supreme court gave judgment today in some of the appeals heard during the last two months. The most important was the case of the King vs. Wallberg. The court gives judgment confirming the award of the registrar of the exchequer court which cut down the bill rendered by E. A. Wallberg for work done on the I. C. R. shops at Moncton from $105,000 to $53,000.

Wallberg did the work under the supervision of the chief engineer of the Intercolonial and his bill was disputed by the department. On reference to the exchequer court this was cut down by the registrar to $53,000. An appeal was taken to Justice Cassells who fixed the amount due Wallberg at $93,000. The crown again appealed to the supreme court which has now confiremd the registrar's award of $53,000, Justice Conglin dissenting.

CEASAR WAS LOST

London, April 3—(Canadian Press)—Coincident with the announcement that Queen Alexandra's plans of departure for the continent had been changed from today to Wednesday, it became known that Caesar, King Edward's Irish terrier, which followed the monarch's coffin and which has since been in possession of Queen Alexandra, had strayed from Marlborough House.

It is not stated how long the dog has been missing but his absence caused the queen mother great concern. Caesar still wears the collar engraved "I am the King's dog," and by this he was identified.
