

Sometimes witty men get "come up with." At a certain banquet in which Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was spending the summer, Thursday evening was devoted to fun-making. There were several clergymen playing at the place, among them a spruce and elderly little doctor of divinity, whose dignity and dress were absolutely unimpaired. Nobody dreamed that it was possible to take any liberties with him until one Thursday evening, when Mr. Beecher seized him and carried him across the road as if he had been a child, setting him down tenderly by the fence. The little man smoothed his ruffled dress, and cried out to the laughing by-standers, "Another instance of the triumph of matter over mind!"

Sometimes a wife should be like a roasted lamb—tender, and nicely dressed. A scamp adds: "And without any sauce."

In making our arrangements to live, we should never forget that we have also to die.

A physician advised a patient "to take a walk on an empty stomach." "Whose stomach?" feebly asked the invalid.

A lover, on presenting a lace-collar to his innamorata, said, jocularly, "Don't let another rumple it." "No, dear," said she: "I'll take it off."

To grow rich—earn money fairly, spend less than you earn, and hold on to the difference. The first takes muscle, the second self-control, the third brains.

An Irish jockey, at his first winning, shouted, "Hoorah! I'm first at last! I've always been behind before."

A woman named Hayward, wife of a jockey, has met her death at Barnstable under very singular circumstances. She was cracking nuts by striking them with a knife when a small piece of nut shell flew into her eye. She did not take much notice of it at the time but some time afterwards the eye became very painful and inflammation set in. The case now became alarming, and medical men were called in, but their skill was unavailing; the inflammation was followed by delirium, and the poor woman died.
