Well," returned the captain, in a sort of calculating manner, "I have often thought that I got such a prize as this, and I am inclined to the opinion that I will make the more of it now that it is in my hands.

CHAPTER XII. The men obeyed the command; but they soon found that they had been too late in their movements.

"No, no, my lady; I'll not run myself into the jaws of the king," she replied, "I should rather die than dare to venture back to Tyre."

"You must not think me over-cruel, fair lady, but you only waste words in urging the girls to attend to me on deck, and as they please to do so, you place altogether too much importance upon the affair, and you may rest assured that your lot will not be a hard one.

"I will try to do my best," she replied, "but I am not sure that I shall be able to do so, if I am not permitted to attend to my duties on deck."
