SALVATION ARMY WILL

NOT BUY THE SEMINARY

Commissioner Coombs Coming to St. John in a Short Time—Plans for a New Rescue Home.

The Salvation Army have given up the idea of purchasing the old Baptist seminary at St. Martins, as the location of that building is not considered convenient for carrying on the work of the Rescue Home. As yet nothing further has been done. The homes on Prince William street has for some years been too small for accommodation of all who should receive the army's attention. Plans were some time ago prepared for the addition of another story to the building, but it is felt that even this would not prove wholly satisfactory. Such being the case, the officers looked around for any other buildings which might be available, and have now several in view. No definite action will, however, be taken just at present. Commissioner Coombs who looked into the matter on his last visit here, is expected in St. John in a short time, and will then decide what is to be done.

NOT IN FAVOR OF MOVING THE BEAVER

Citizens Scarcely Agree With Committee's Decision

But Feel That Sand Point Basin Should First be Cleared Out and the D. C.

Clark Berth Built.

In spite of the decision reached by the newly formed harbor committee to ask the government or department of public works, that the dredge Beaver may be placed on the Clarke & Adams berth site in order that this work may be rushed, the Star has been unable to find very many citizens who feel that this plan is a wise one. On the contrary public opinion seems to be that the council, engineers and committee should devote all their energies towards having the first section of the wharf, and the approaches, hurried to completion, in order that at least one new berth may be available for the next winter's business.

A visit to the west side will clearly demonstrate that this feeling, so freely expressed, is well founded. The progress on the D. C. Clark wharf is painfully slow, and there is every reason to fear that unless the work is rushed from now on the warehouse cannot be built in time, nor will other facilities and the approaches be completed. Judging by the rate at which this contract has been carried on so far, at least six weeks more will be required before the warehouse can be started.

In Sand Point basin, where Mr. Mayes has the contract, there is still work enough to keep the Beaver busy for two or three months, and in fact that dredge will have about all it can attend to if the slip is to be cleared out to the proper depth before steamers begin to arrive. On the Clarke & Adams contract, the site for the first crib is almost ready and will be perfectly cleared before the crib is completed for sinking. The Eugene, the Ottawa company's dredge, is doing good work, and unless some serious accident occurs will be able to keep ahead of the contractors until the finish, dredging out the sites so that there will be no delay in sinking the cribs.

But even if this work goes along as quickly as the contractors are able to push it, and even if the two dredges are put to work, there is not any possibility of the Clarke & Adams wharf being ready for next winter. This is the opinion expressed by many citizens who maintain that when such is the case the Beaver should not be taken from the important work now being done in the basin. The Beaver has so far been working under two contracts, the first being at fifty-five cents per yard, and the second at ninety cents. The Ottawa dredging company's contract is at the latter figure, which amount would of course be paid for all work done by the Beaver on the same contract. As the Beaver is now dredging the basin at fifty-five cents per yard, the owner of the plant would profit materially by the proposed shift.

On the other hand, those who agree with the request being made by the harbor committee, show that Clarke & Adams are getting along very rapidly with the construction of the cribs, and that three of them are now built almost as high as is wise until they are floated. Not much more work can be done on them until they are taken to their various sites, and unless they are soon placed in position they must be left somewhere near Sand Point as was done with the D. C. Clark cribs last year. It is contended that the Eugene cannot prepare the sites as quickly as required. Admitting that the Clarke & Adams wharf will be finished for next winter's business the committee consider that if the construction is well advanced the city will be able to take a strong position in applying to Ottawa for an appropriation to complete the dredging for the third or outer section of the new wharf. If on the contrary this second berth is not approaching completion, the city's arguments will not be backed by the best proof of an endeavor to rush things. It is probable that the Beaver will be ordered to assist the Eugene.

THE WISE TAKE

GASOLINE IN THE TANKS

IN THEIR BOATS

Young Men, Whose Lamps Were Like Those of the Foolish Virgins, Had a Quiet Time on the River.

The North End young men, after hours of deliberation have decided that the sloop yacht still possesses advantages not to be obtained from the speedier gasoline yacht. They started on a cruise up river in a gasoline launch on Sunday and during their trip passed many of the white wings, and indeed, had a most enjoyable afternoon's trip. When they got up as far as the Reach they decided they would start for home. They did, but after going for some distance they found the revolutions of the propeller were becoming weaker, and at last ceased. Of course they tried the spark and other flimsy devices with which their boat was equipped but it was no use, the boat was "beamed."

After careful inspection of the machinery they found that it was all right but the fuel necessary to run the boat was not present. They had forgotten to lay in a supply of gasoline. For hours they lay in the middle of the river and thought over plans for reaching home. At last one of the despondent white wings bore down on them, threw a line and towed them to Millidgeville very early this morning.

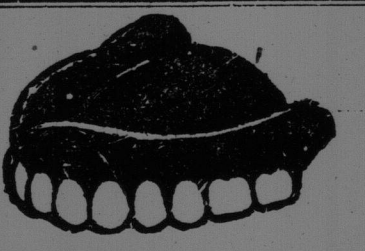

THE RECORD STILL STANDS.

Saturday's salmon boat race on the river was one of the prettiest contests ever seen, and the victory of the Chinook was no surprise to those who had previously witnessed the boat running before the wind. The time occupied in the race was one hour and thirteen minutes. Last year the best time was an hour and seven minutes, or six minutes faster. Saturday's course was perhaps two minutes longer than the one sailed last year, but the Chinook is still behind the old record.

For next Saturday's race the location of the buoys will be the same but the boats will sail in the opposite direction, going up river on the start, and making the home stretch from Ononette to Westfield wharf.

No. 8 Field Ambulance Company will return uniforms at the Armory tonight, and tomorrow night the members will be paid off.

The last car of stone for the new Royal Bank building has arrived in the city. The stone work will probably be finished by Wednesday.
