[Progress is for sale in Sussex by R. D. Boal and S. H. White & Co.]

Feb. 17.—The great social event of this week, the wedding of Miss Sarah Ryan and Mr. Gordon Mills, took place in the Methodist church to-night at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Crisp. The church was prettily decorated with calla lilies and an arch of evergreens and scarlet begonias.

On account of the late death of a cousin the dresses of the bridesmaids were quiet, but very elegant, and most suitable to the season. The brides and bridesmaids wore blue and white, with chambray second bridesmaid, Miss Melina Boal, wore a pretty dress of navy blue, trimmed with light blue.

The groom was supported by Mr. Frank McLeod of Chatham, and Joseph Mills, resident of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Ryan, where an elegant repast awaited them. They left on the C. P. R. for a trip to Boston and New York.

Among the strangers in town for the event were: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Pugsley, Mr. Stan. Keimel, Mr. W. Noble, of St. John, Miss Carrie Haggerty, Miss Carrie Mills, of Hampton, the Misses Ruth, of Havelock, Mrs. Charles Fawcett, Mr. Fred Ryan, of Sackville, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCully, Mr. C. McAdam, of Moncton.

The dresses were very handsome and a great proportion of dark colors was noticeable. The following is a list of a few of them:

Mrs. G. Pugsley, black satin, black and white bouffant.

Mrs. E. Parlier, black satin, white bonnet.

Mrs. J. Ryan, pretty heliotrope cashmere and plush, bonnet to match.

SPRINGHILL.

Feb. 17.—Murray's hall, the scene of many brilliant gatherings, but none more brilliant or enjoyable than the one given by the gentlemen Monday evening. The arrangements in every detail were perfect, and the programme in charge, Messrs. Christie, Stuart and Parsons, are to be congratulated on the success of the affair. The decorations at the entrance were of the most beautiful kind. The hall room filled rapidly, and a scene of fairy like beauty and a large, brilliant assembly could ensure enjoyment, it was not wanting. The notes given were very short, never tedious, everything was of the most excellent kind. The ball room filled rapidly, and a scene of fairy like beauty and a large, brilliant assembly could ensure enjoyment, it was not wanting.
