LATE JUDGE

Body of E. T. C. Knowles Laid to Rest Yesterday - Tribute from Rev. W. H. Barracough.

The funeral of Edward T. C. Knowles, K. C., Judge of the Probate Court, was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his father-in-law, R. W. Thorne, 190 Carmarthen street, at 2.30 o'clock.

Funeral services at the Centenary church were conducted by Rev. W. H. Barracough, assisted by the church choir. The choir rendered several hymns after the invocation, among which were the two favorite hymns of the deceased, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Son of My Soul."

"Crossing the Bar," rendered by Mrs. Crockett followed the funeral chant which was sung by the congregation.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, an extra carriage conveying them to the cemetery. Among the floral offerings were a maltese cross from the law students of King's College, and a wreath from the Portlithly Club; a cross from the Trustees and the Quarterly Board of the Centenary church; a spray of Easter lilies from the Sunday school; a spray of white carnations from the Marsh Bridge Mission, besides numerous cut flowers and wreaths from individuals.

A large concourse of relatives and friends followed the body to its last resting place, thus manifesting their respect for the deceased and sympathy for the bereaved.

The Barriesters' Society attended in a body, and B. L. Gerow and L. A. Conlon acted as marshals. The student body of the law school also attended the funeral, the deceased being one of the law faculty of King's.

Rev. Mr. Barracough spoke as follows:

"The highest tribute to be paid to a man, is to call him a good man. It is this tribute we would lay upon the bier of Edward T. C. Knowles."

"He has been spoken of as a 'sound lawyer, a wise counsellor, an upright citizen and a true gentleman.' He was more. He possessed the essential characteristics of that indefinable quality which we call goodness—a quality none too much in evidence in these days."

"The virtues which spring from goodness—gentleness of spirit, kindness of heart, generous emotions, devotion to duty—were characteristic of this man."

"He was born and reared in this city, and his history is an open book. As his boyhood he was a devoted follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, and united with Centenary church, and throughout a reasonably long life, consistently endeavored to live true to his profession. Very early he sought some special service for Christ, and actively gave himself to the work of the church of his choice—first as a Sunday school teacher, then as a preacher, which duties he performed with ability and success to the very close of his life."

"It is required of a steward that he be found faithful. Edward T. C. Knowles was a good steward. Fidelity was one of his many virtues. It led him as a young man to face storm and danger, to fill his appointments, and found him in his last hours thinking and planning for his loved work. He was a member of the quarterly official board of Centenary church and the secretary of its trustee board. On more than one occasion he represented Centenary in the councils of the church, and once at least was a member of the General Conference. The service devoted to him, however, was that which he rendered on behalf of Marsh Bridge Mission. Here his kindly, generous unselfish spirit found full scope. It is doubtful if the Sunday evening service at the Mission could have been maintained without the interest which he manifested in it. He was a great reader, and fond lover of the Bible, and throughout his last illness constantly repeated passages from the 'Old Book' which were dear to his heart. The last two passages which he repeated were linked to his Sunday school work, for they were the Golden Texts of two recent lessons: 'The Angel of the Lord encampeth about them that fear Him, and delivereth them.' Psalms 34: 7; and 'There is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him.' Romans 10: 12."

"These royal truths, so lovingly cherished as an index of the Christian character of the man—unquestioned faith in the unfailing care of his Heavenly Father, and a broad Catholic spirit, which permitted of no class distinctions, and made him a friend of the poor and the neglected, irrespective of color, race or creed. One who knew him best, and loved him best, said in my hearing: 'He never criticized others, nor liked to hear them criticized. He always tried to see the good in everybody.'"

"He lived an honored, worthy, useful life, attended with peace and satisfaction of soul and the hope of eternal reward. Is there anything more desirable? And the price asked is not beyond any of us. A great Christian worker when dying was asked the secret of his saintliness. He modestly disclaimed any title to saintliness, he said. 'The secret of my life is that I have said 'yes' to Christ.' That I believe to have been the secret of my friend's worthy life."

"And now in the church which he

BEST MADE BIRD HOUSE

Interesting Exhibition in Natural History Museum Saturday.

Large Number of Entries and Work Shown Was of Particular Excellence.

On Saturday afternoon St. John's first bird house exhibition was held in the Natural History Museum.

Early in the day boys, big and small, might be seen carrying bird houses to the museum and these were as varied in appearance as their owners but wonderfully good for a first attempt.

By two o'clock the exhibits were all in and the judges, Mrs. Harold Lawrence, Mrs. Frederick A. Foster and A. Gordon Leavitt, commenced their rather difficult task of awarding the prizes. Some very beautiful bird houses had to be given a minor place because their makers had not strictly adhered to the rules. At 2 o'clock the exhibition was opened by Mrs. John V. Ellis, president of the Ladies' Association of the Natural History Society. Mrs. Ellis welcomed the visitors who completely filled the hall and in a few well chosen words explained why the exhibition was being held and congratulated the exhibitors on the excellence of their work.

The following programme was carried out:

Song, Master Morris Black, accompanied by Miss Louise Knight.

Address, W. F. Burditt.

Recitation, "Birds of Bethlehem," Mrs. W. Edmond Raymond.

Short addresses on birds and bird life were given by Mrs. J. M. Lawrence, A. Gordon Leavitt and William McIntosh.

The boys with their bird houses were photographed, the prizes were then presented by Mrs. Frederick A. Foster to the following:

1st, set of carpenter tools—James Murphy, aged 12.

2nd, set of drawing instruments—Donald Humphrey, aged 13.

3rd, camera—Ralph Kee, aged 13.

4th, "Bird Neighbors"—James Stirling, aged 15.

5th, flashlight—Herbert Peterson, aged 14.

6th, pocket bird guide—Fred Smith, aged 13.

7th, pocket bird guide—Wylie Turner, aged 13.

8th, pocket knife—Charlie Wakeham, aged 9.

9th, pocket knife—Willie Maynes, aged 13.

10th, pocket knife—William Trenoweth, aged 10.

Admission tickets were distributed free of charge and cake was served by the ladies and the exhibition was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

William C. Simpson.

A wide circle of friends will receive with genuine regret news of the death of William Clark Simpson, which took place at his residence, 184 St. James St., on Saturday last, after a lingering illness lasting nearly two years.

Mr. Simpson was born at Chatham in the County of Kent, England, but emigrated to this country when he was eighteen years old.

He was a member of the teaching staff of this province for nearly twenty-seven years, but owing to ill-health had to resign. He afterwards conducted a general accounting and collecting agency in St. John city.

Mr. Simpson was an active member of the Temple of Honor and took a prominent part in temperance work. Besides a wife, the deceased leaves one daughter, two sons and a sister.

The sons are T. E. Simpson of Hall & Fairweather's, and R. H. Simpson living in the city. The daughter, Miss W. E. Simpson, is living in St. John, and also his sister, Mrs. A. D. M. Boyne.

Charles W. Adams.

Charles W. Adams passed away at the home of his sister, Miss Elizabeth Adams, 66 Coburg street, on Saturday. Mr. Adams was secretary of the Turnbull Real Estate Company, and will be missed by a large circle of friends. His father, William H. Adams, was a well-known merchant of this city. He is survived by one sister, Miss Elizabeth B. Adams, with whom he made his home.

so faithfully served, and which he loved with true devotion, we bid farewell to a worthy citizen, a true Christian, a good man.

11 LAST NIGHT

Some Inconvenience at Outset, but This Will Soon Disappear.

Interesting Incidents Recorded Last Night or Early This Morning - How "Cops" Gained an Hour.

"Last midnight is one o'clock this morning." That was the remark made to a Standard reporter on Prince William street. Everything was quiet about the streets, especially on Prince William, when the old post office clock struck the hour of one; the reporter glanced at his watch and, forgetting the time being, that the clocks were ordered to be set ahead an hour at eleven o'clock last night, remarked that the old clock in the post office must be wild. It was then that the messenger placed before the reporter his senses with the remark credited above.

The last trip of the ferry from the east side on Sunday night is 11.15 o'clock, and fortunately for the young men who reside in the West End and who were on the east side spending a couple of hours with their girls, the captain's watch on the ferry was not tampered with last night, if it had been the young men would have had a four mile walk round the bridge. However, it will be well for all to remember to set their watches ahead an hour today and thus save many mistakes. Two street cars met at the foot of King street, and a conductor of one car was heard to ask the motorist of the other car, "What time is it?" The motorist remarked, "It is just twelve o'clock." The conductor returned with the words, "Your batty, it's one o'clock Monday morning, and there is no need for you to get that car; you ought to be in the barn."

The Police Force.

At eleven last night the clock in the police headquarters was set ahead one hour, and the police officers were also instructed to set their watches ahead. The men on duty yesterday gained nothing on the new change, but the men on the night shift who went on duty at six and ten o'clock were the winners. These officers, who went on duty at the old time, following out their orders, set their watches ahead an hour at eleven o'clock so, while it only took them a few seconds to turn the hands on the watch, they had performed one hour's duty without moving a step in covering their beats, and it was with a smile on their faces that they marched to headquarters this morning, answered the roll call and "skiddooed" homeward, after doing but seven hours of actual duty, while their watches showed that the minute hand had circled the dial eight times since they reported last night.

The Longshoremen.

While the policemen received full pay for doing duty on last night's shift, the change did not help the men working alongside, for these men are paid by the hour, and the only way in which they could make a full nine hours was to forget to take their hour for dinner and work while they should have been eating, and in that manner would pull out this morning with full time, for the men coming to work this morning would be getting on the job an hour earlier than they did the morning before.

Good For Saloons.

A question was asked yesterday how the new by-law would affect the bar-rooms and from all appearances the thirty-one will have one full hour more to imbibe, in the evenings, than they previously had. The time for the opening and closing of the saloons is fixed in a provincial act and the time fixed is the Atlantic Standard. The daylight saving scheme is a city by-law, and as far as the saloon keepers and the men with a thirst are concerned, it will work out in this manner. The clock in the saloons need never be disturbed, but can tick out the minutes at the old Atlantic Standard time, and at eight o'clock in the morning by the bar-room clock it will be nine o'clock by the watch of the citizen who is on his way to business. The citizen who has set his watch ahead an hour will get through work in the evening, say at six o'clock, after he has had his evening meal he need not rush to get a few drinks under his belt for as he stands at the bar his watch says eight o'clock he will see that the saloon clock only says seven and finally, when the bartender shouts out the order, "Eight o'clock, boys, you will have to get out," the citizen will look at his watch and see that his time is nine o'clock, therefore, he will have a whole hour longer in the saloon in the evening than he was accustomed to have before the new by-law was brought into effect.

Probable Mistakes.

It is doubtful if any person in the city went to bed an hour earlier last night for the sole purpose of getting the accustomed number of hours' sleep, and it's a safe bet that many persons forgot the order to set their clocks an hour ahead before retiring, and the places of business which all open an hour earlier than usual this morning will have many employees an hour late arriving at work.

Of course there will be some little disadvantages of this sort for a few

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I love it all to the Lydia E.
