

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF GREAT BRITAIN'S ENTRY INTO THE GREAT EUROPEAN WAR WAS FROGLY OBSERVED ON SATURDAY

Veterans Attended Divine Service—Reception in King Square to Returned Soldiers—Lieut.-Gov. Ganong Offered Prize of $100 for Three Best Essays from Returned Men on How to Return to Them Civil Life.

The third anniversary of Great Britain entering the great world war was duly observed on Saturday afternoon. Interspersed services were conducted by all congregations in the city, there was an official public half holiday, but the chief event of the day was the official welcome to all the St. John heroes who had crossed the ocean and performed their duty for King and country on the battle fields of Europe.

Saturday morning dawned with the most beautiful weather, the sun was warm and there was just enough breeze to make the day pleasant and cause the flags of the Allied nations to flutter in the breeze; in fact a better day for such an occasion could not be wished for. The chief event of the day of course was the part the great war veterans took in it. One thing noticeable however, was the scarcity of citizens along the line of march, and the few flags that were used to decorate the buildings. Of course many citizens took advantage of the half holiday and the beautiful weather and sojourned to the country districts for a rest from regular city life, but those who remained in town appeared to lack enthusiasm.

HON. J. B. M. BAXTER.

At 3.30 the veterans arrived at the King Square and formed up in front of the speakers' stand. His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Ganong, Premier Foster, Mayor Hayes, Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, General McLean, Lieut.-Col. Powell, Lieut.-Col. McAvity and Commissioner Fisher occupied seats on the stand.

The proceedings opened with the playing of "God Save the King" by the Temple Band, after which the chairman, Mayor Hayes, in a short address referred to the reasons for the gathering of the afternoon. It had been decided to observe the third anniversary of the entry of the British Empire in the war by holding services of intercession in the churches, and patriotic gatherings. The citizens had already met at the churches and offered up their prayers for the success of the struggle to give a public welcome to the boys who had come back from the fighting line, and pay tribute to the memory of those who had fallen in the fight. He then introduced the first speaker, Lieut.-Gov. Ganong.

over two hundred, formed up in line. At the word of command "attention" their heels came together with a click, they straightened up and every man showed the result of months of military training. They were indeed veteran British soldiers and every man looked it.

Lieut.-Col. McAvity in Charge.

Lieut.-Col. J. L. McAvity of the original "Fighting 38th" was the officer in command. The parade started off with the Temple Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Wm. Jones, followed by Col. McAvity with Major May as adjutant and about a dozen other veteran officers. Then came the handsome veterans' banner carried by Private W. O'Dell of the 14th Battalion, first contingent, while marching beside him, holding the cords, were Gunner R. A. Thomson of the Australian navy, and Gunner Bennett of the Canadian navy.

Following these were the soldiers of the Protestant faith. Next came the City Cornet Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Frank Waddington, and the soldiers of the Roman Catholic faith. The soldiers marched up Union street and along Charlotte, and as the first section of the procession continued down King and along Gormain streets, the City Cornet Band heading the second section turned into the north side of King Square, down Sydney and up Waterloo to the Cathedral.

After the services. The section of soldiers who attended there reformed and marched to Gormain street, where they joined the others. The soldiers were in the same position as when they first left their hall on Union street with the exception that in the lead, marching the strains of the band were Lieut.-Gov. Ganong, Mayor Hayes and the city commissioners. The march was then along Gormain, down Princess, Prince William, up King to the King Square, where a large section had been set off in front of the speaker's stand, where the Lieutenant-Governor, Premier Foster, Mayor Hayes and Hon. J. B. M. Baxter addressed the soldiers and other citizens.

Reception on King Square.

men themselves and they should take advantage of the offer to provide technical education. They could also help by making suggestions to those in charge as to ways and means of caring for returned men and he offered a prize of $100 for the three best articles written by returned men to assist the government in getting them back into civil life.

This war was not over yet, there were other battles to be fought and the paramount duty of Canadians at the present time was to provide the necessary reinforcements for the boys at the front. In Canada today there was a large number of slackers and it was the duty of every man to say where he stood on the matter of supporting the boys at the front. The cry coming from the trenches today was as old as Calvary. We have given ourselves for you, what are you going to do for us? And that cry from Mr. McAvity. Why have you forsaken us? Would the men of Canada let it be said they had forsaken the men in France who were fighting for them and send forth the needed help?

Today the people celebrated the Empire militant, he hoped that on Aug. 6th, 1918, they would be able to celebrate the Empire triumphant.

Premier Foster said he did not intend to address them at any length. He had been asked to move the resolution of the afternoon and he hoped the people would go to their homes determined to carry out the spirit of that resolution and each and every one do all they could to bring this war to a successful termination. He then read the following resolution:

"That on this third anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war, this meeting of the citizens of St. John records its inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of Liberty and Justice which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies."

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter. Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, who was the next speaker, said he desired to pay a tribute to the men who had fought and those who were still fighting. The proper position of those at home, at least metaphorically, was on their knees in gratitude and thankfulness to the men who had gone and seen and done, but gratitude unless followed by deeds amounted to very little. The resolution which had been proposed by his friend the premier and which he was to second called for certain things, but unless those who endorsed it were willing to back up that endorsement by action it would not amount to anything.

MR. CARVELL DICTATED AGREEMENT PROVIDING FOR PAYMENT OF $20,000 BY THE FIRM OF KENNEDY & MACDONALD

Evidence at Saturday's Session Gives Further Indication that Government Counsel Was Aware of and Countenanced "This Graft of the People's Moneys" — Daniel Macdonald and James H. Corbett on Stand at Stevens' Inquiry—An Adjournment U 1 August 14th.

That F. B. Carvell, K. C. not only was aware of the engagement of Kennedy & Macdonald to pay $20,000 for the purpose of securing their sub-contract, but that he, personally, dictated the agreement making Thomas Nagle a partner in the concern was the sworn testimony before Commissioner J. M. Stevens' court of inquiry into the affairs of the St. John & Quebec Railway Company, on Saturday morning. Alexander Macdonald swore positively to that fact. And Mr. Carvell made no denial of his connection with the agreement, which dealt with "graft of the people's money" in Mr. Carvell's own words.

Mr. Carvell's connection with the dictating in which the contractors engaged in becoming more apparent as each session of the commission is held, and those who follow the hearing say that his course was most reprehensible and will, assuredly, bring forth the strong condemnation of the commission.

The evidence of Mr. Macdonald on Saturday also related to the payment of the moneys to Mr. Nagle for his activities on behalf of the company.

At the afternoon session James H. Corbett gave evidence. He testified to the fact that he was approached by Mr. W. B. Tennant who promised him that if he would reduce his tender by $5,000 per mile and pay him (Tennant) $50,000, he (Corbett) would secure the contract. Cross-examination, however, failed to bring forth that Mr. Corbett ever had any communication with any member of the Government or the Railway Board and that his dealings were entirely with Mr. Tennant.

Neither the commissioner nor Mr. Carvell were on hand when the hour for the resumption of the hearing, 10 a.m., arrived on Saturday morning. (Continued on page 6)
