CIAU tournament notes

By EDO VAN BELKOM

Canada's National and Olympic coach Dave King was at the tournament throughout the weekend and pointed out at the banquet on Friday night that he was at one time coached by York's head coach Dave Chambers. Chambers was the coach of the University of Saskatchewan Huskies from 1967 to 1969, a team that Dave King was a member of.

King had nothing but praise for Chambers, calling him his hockey mentor. "He's an excellent coach," King said. "He was the first coach I had that was really technical.

"He was probably the guy who influenced me to coach," he added.

At a press conference held on Thursday afternoon, Johnny Esaw of CTV sports spoke to U of T coach Tom Watt and told Watt, "I hope to see you upstairs on Sunday," meaning he wanted Watt to do the color commentary for Sunday's final.

Watt replied, "I don't need the 500 bucks that bad."

Everyone had a good laugh over it at the time, but after U of T was knocked out of the tournament by Alberta, Watt did the color on Sunday after all.

In the series against Ottawa, Yeoman Brian Gray was called in both games for use of an illegal stick.

In the first game a penalty was called because the stick had too pronounced a curve, so Gray heated up the stick and flattened it.

In the second game the stick was called again. This time the curve was all right but the blade was too wide.

Gray swears he didn't doctor the stick at all after he bought it straight off the rack. The stick was a Sherwood and doesn't reflect well on the company who were, ironically, one of the sponsors of the tournament.

Track and Field

University of Toronto reclaimed their CIAU indoor Track title just edging the York Yeomen by five points, 59 to 54. York's Desai Williams was named the meet's MVP as he won gold medals in the 60 and 300 metre dashes and as a member of the 4,200 metre relay team.

Western finished third while Queen's and Waterloo finished eighth and tenth respectively.

In the women's competition, York Yeowomen fell just two points shy of taking the overall championship. York's total of 40 points wasn't enough to overtake Alberta and Saskatchewan who tied for first with 42 points.

Molly Killingbeck, a member of the Yeowomen track team is the OWIAA athlete of the week. The third year physical education student won four golds at the CIAU Track finals in Windsor on her way to being named the meet's most outstanding competitor.

Fencing

Two fencers, Mourad Mardikian and Warren Kotler placed 12th and 16th respectively in the All Ontario Provincial Championships last weekend at St. Catharines. The championships were held in conjunction with the Ontario Winter Games.
