

ARCHBISHOP DUHAMEL AND FRENCH COLONIZATION.

IMPORTANT RESULTS OF HIS JOURNEY TO THE NORTH-WEST.

French Canadians to be Advised to Migrate to the Prairie Province—Canada a Better Country than the States—Room for Millions.

Archbishop Duhamel was seen at the Episcopal palace on his return from the Northwest, respecting his recent trip to the prairie country.

The archbishop said one of the main objects of his journey was to satisfy himself as to whether there was still land available for settlement at reasonable prices in Manitoba. He returned home satisfied that there was room for thousands of migrants from Ontario and Quebec and immigrants from the continent of Europe.

As regards the Great Northwest Territories, there are still larger tracts open for settlement. Around Prince Albert, Calgary, Edmonton and St. Albert, the land is particularly fine and the opportunities for making homes excellent.

COAL AND GOLD.

"Edmonton," said the archbishop, "is built on coal, and fuel is very cheap." The archbishop had heard coal was sold as cheaply as $2.50 per ton.

"Gold dust is also washed in the Saskatchewan," said His Grace, holding up a piece of pure Canadian gold washed from the sands of that river, "and here is some of it. Men who work at this industry earn, I am told, $2.50 to $10 a day."

He would not however, advise people to go to the Northwest with the idea of engaging in gold washing. The class most wanted and best adapted for the country was agriculturists, men brought up on the land, who understand farming.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

To succeed without serious privation or difficulty, a settler should have enough money with him to build a house and buy the necessary implements to commence farming with in a small way. Probably $500, to $600 in hand would be sufficient to carry a new comer over till the next year, when the ripening of his crops should yield enough for his wants, and thenceforth his future would be secure.

After the first year settlers could get along without privation, the crops being sold readily at remunerative prices. In connection with the question of markets for the crops, the archbishop said, "The Canadian Pacific Railway, I think, has done everything possible to open up the country, and has proved a great benefit not only to the settlers in the Northwest, but the Dominion generally. It is a splendid thing for the country to have so powerful a company successfully organized, attracting tourists, bringing in immigrants, solving the question of transport and developing colonization."

WHAT HE WILL TELL HIS PEOPLE. He would not tell his people in the diocese of Ottawa who are doing well at home that they could do better in the Northwest; but those at home who have found through the subdividing of their farms and other causes that they are not doing as well as they expect, he would strongly advise to migrate to the Canadian Northwest, instead of joining the already overcrowded colonies in the manufacturing districts of the United States.

"By remaining in our own country and migrating to the Northwest there to take up land, our people," said the archbishop, "need not change their modes of life and go out among strangers, but may make homes for themselves in the ways they are used to, and which suit them best. They may better their condition without having to change it. We have a good and great country, and if a man cannot do well in one part he may in another. If he has run into debt in Ontario or Quebec instead of providing for his family, he may go to the Northwest and make a fresh start and avoid getting into debt again."

THE DIOCESAN FUND.

"There is a diocesan fund in this diocese," said the archbishop, "for helping on the work of colonization." The members of the society pay so much regularly towards the objects of the fund, which are, to build a chapel and house for the priest where needed, thus saving the colonists who often are poor and cannot afford to take upon themselves the burden of building, and would otherwise have to deny themselves the consolations of their religion, this tax upon their resources.

"Another feature of colonization, in the province of Quebec, is the help extended by the government for the building of colonization roads and bridges.

"If our society, for example," said the archbishop, "has received in contributions from its members, say $1,500.00, the government under the colonization law is bound to add one-third of that amount which would be $500. This has to be expended by the government in roads and bridges, the locations to be indicated by the Diocesan society. They say where they want the roads and bridges and the government does the rest. Under this law there is at present being constructed a colonization road from Notre Dame de la Salette, towards Buckingham, on the Lievre."

WHAT THE N. W. BISHOPS ARE DOING. "I have no intention," said the archbishop, "of advocating the formation of any other colonization societies, or societies to promote migration to the Northwest. We are able to tell those who are not doing well in this part of the country where to go to do better. The bishops in the Northwest are also doing good work in making the advantages of the new country known in the older provinces.

"They have priests who visit the old parishes in the dioceses of Quebec and Ontario, and tell the people who are thinking of going to the United States why they should go to their own Northwest instead. They explain to them that by going to the Northwest they escape the change of condition involved in giving themselves to a manufacturing occupation, and better their condition and establish for themselves and their children permanent homes on reasonable terms, where they can look forward to living in peace and prosperity all the days of their life, and generations following them do the same.

MORE LIBERTY THAN IN THE STATES. In conclusion, the archbishop said: "Our object is to keep our people in their own country, for their own welfare as well as the general good. Here, we have full liberty, fuller certainly than in the States. We have our own schools for one thing, whilst in the States they have to pay a double tax, one for the public schools and one for their own; and they get no corresponding advantages. That happy homes await our people who migrate to the Northwest, we know from what we have personally learnt on the spot. We have talked with several of the settlers who have only been in the Northwest a year or two years. Even those who have only been there a year say they are very thankful, they went there instead of changing their condition of life by emigrating to the States and working in factories. They are well and prosperous and have made happy and prosperous homes, and no happier lot could befall those who think of emigrating than to follow their example."

Showing the Motherland what Canada is Like. Mr. Thomas Mills, of Bangor, Maine, who on the recommendation of Sir Charles Tupper took a series of Canadian photographs to be used in panoramic exhibitions in Britain, has recently been in Wales. The North Wales Chronicle thus speaks of his entertainment: "The Dominion of Canada, from Quebec to Vancouver Island, was discoursed upon and vividly illustrated by lime light views in the Penrhyn Hall, Bangor, by Mr. T. Mills, photographic artist and lanternist. There was a very good attendance both nights as well as on the afternoons, when Mr. Mills gave a special exhibition for the school children, who had obtained a half holiday from the various schools for the purpose of attending. The chair was taken respectively by Colonel the Hon. W. E. Sackville West, in the afternoon, and at night by Professor Phillips, of the North Wales University College (in the unavoidable absence of his Worship the Mayor, who was called from Bangor that day).

In the first meeting Mr. Mills dwelt upon the general features of the country from Quebec to Fort Qu'Appelle, also referring to the adaptability of the Dominion for agricultural purposes, and gave instances of the success which generally follows the exertions of settlers willing to work. His remarks were ably illustrated by the excellent views which he had taken of the settlers and their stock, and which were often applauded.

Another strike is threatened in the building trades of London. The bricklayers ask for better terms than were conceded to them by the agreement of 1873, and intend to leave work if their demands are not complied with. A conference between masters and workmen is to be held.
