

the blind man. "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam," he said to the man. The man did exactly as Jesus told him. Very likely some kind friend led him to the pool. He bent down and bathed his eyes in the cool water, and when he rose his eyes were opened! He could see! He could hardly believe it. People who met him walking back alone were astonished. "Is not this the blind man who sat and begged?" they said to one another. Some said, "It is he;" others said, "It is like him;" but the man said, "I am he."

Then the crowd gathered around him. "How were your eyes opened?" they asked. The man told them all that had happened.

The Jews were very angry at the man whom Jesus had cured, because they knew that he was a friend of Jesus. They would have nothing to do with him nor let him worship in the temple any more. But Jesus found him again, and said to him: "Do you believe on the Son of God?" The man said, "Who is he, Lord? I would like to believe on him." Jesus said, "You have both seen him, and it is he who is talking with you."

When the man who had been blind heard that, he said, "Lord, I believe," and he fell at Jesus' feet and worshiped him.
