ST. THOMAS AQUINAS FAIR

Big crowds, attractive booths pre-Big crowds, attractive booths presided over by handsome young ladies, and a general atmosphere of good nature are the leading features, of the first fair and tombola of St. Thomas Aquinas parish, held in the old City Hall, St. Henri.

Rev. Thomas Heffernan, the pastor, spends most of his time in and about the hall, and his genial good nature goes far to make workers and purchasers feel at home and to ex-hands, and the receipts are correspondingly large. In the fancy work both are exhibited some of the finest specimens of the gentle art of embroidery, and visitors are attracted to the exhibits there shown, while the ladies in charge are well worsed in the blandishments which induce the most recalcitrant to in-

The Chinese laundry is another good drawing card. On presenting a check sold in the hall by a number of ladies, the Chink behind the counter, whose make-up and pidgin Eng-lish are impeccable, hands out some object for use in the household. The ice-cream booth is also kept working overtime, while the flower booth and the candy booth are also taxed ful and ornamental objects are exhibited in the various other booths, while the games of chance attract a good crowd, and a merry time is

CLOSE OF RETREAT AT ST PATRICK'S.

I large attendance and brisk buying marks the autumnal fair now under way in St. Agnes parish, with a view to reducing the debt on the parish. Olier school hall has been transformed into a veritable bower, and a bevy of handsome Irish girls make the visitors lot happy even though they do induce the male portion to part with a goodly portion of the coin of the realm. As they are wont to remark, in reply to the remonstrances of the willing victims, however, "sure it is all for the good of the church."

The function was opened on Monday evening by a banquet at which some four hundred reonle were entertained. Pev. Father Casey, the pastor, presided at the guest table, having on either side of him Messrs.

Organ Recital at St. Patrick's.

St. Patrick's Church was crowded to the doors on Sunday afternoon, on the occasion of the organ recital given by Prof. B. F. Poirier, organist of the church, who was assisted by Prof. J. A. Fowler, the organist emeritus of the church, and by Miss Mamie Babin, the young by Miss Mamie Babin, the young lady who carried off the singing scholarship of the McGill Conservatory, and Mr. Alfred Lamoureux, the blind tenor, while the boys of the chancel choir also contributed a selection. The occasion was the feast of St Cecilia, but in the great audience were many who are not in the habit of doing special honor to the saints, but were attracted by the excellence of the programme and the expectation that the performance would be up to the promise therein held forth In this they were not disappointed, and the best tribute that could be paid to the performers was the rapt attention with which all present followed the various numbers so skilfully interpreted. Prof. Poirier opened with a prelude and fugue from Stainer which was rendered with a precision and grace that attracted favorable comment, and held the attention even of those not nerally attracted by that particular style af musical offering. In his other numbers, which included selections from Caesar Franck, Callections from Caesar Franck, Callaerts, Greig and Widor, he fulfilled to the utmost extent the expectations raised in the opening number. Prof. Fowler, who for so many years presided at the organ, which, but the ways care. years presided at the organ, which, by the way, once more proved that it is to be counted among the finest instruments in the city, gave in his masterly style selections from Wagner, but it was in his own arrangement of Irish airs that he exrangement of Irish and the excelled and caught the heartiest sympathy of the majority of his auditors. Miss Mamie Babin contributed Goublier's Song of Praise, and demonstrated in that selection the precious tonal qualities which characterized her work at the earlier portion of her career, and she bids fair with the further training she is now undergoing to take her rank among the most distinguished singers who have charmed the world. In Paladilhe's Salve Regina Mr. Al-fred Lamoureux found a vehicle to do full justice to his splendid voice, and his interpretation of the difficult selection must be considered wonderful in view of the physical difficulties under which he suffers Maunder's "Praise Ye the Lord," and the recital throughout was pronounced by competent critics an artistic triumph. The organizers of the recital, Prof The organizers of the recital, Prof. Poirier and Rev. Father McShane, are to be congratulated upon their enterprise and upon the striking success which attended this first function, which, it is to be hoped, will be followed by others, as the attendance and close attention showed the deep impression produced by the work of the various artists.

The ushers rendered good service by preventing persons who came late from moving around until the completion of each number. thus late from moving around that completion of each number, assuring to those who had early a thorough enjoyment of artistic programme presented.

an eloquent sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. T. Heffernan. Some five hundred Hibernians, headed by the Hibernian Knights, commanded by Captain and County President Peter Doyle, marched from Hibernian Hell.

Rev. Thomas Heffernan, pastor of St. Thomas Aquinas, delivered the sermon. The occasion, he declared, of the church parade and outing was of the church parade and outing was the anniversary of the Manchester Martyrs. The church, however, was not a place to discuss political martyrs, and he would dwell instead on the martyrs of the faith.
