When a Child Led Them.

The terrific battle in progress for a small French village stopped suddenly. Not a rifle was fired, and the unexpected, uncanny stillness was like that which precedes an attack by infantry—yet neither side left their trenches. The Prussian cavalry officer who was in command of the section lifted his head above the dugout to find the cause of the peculiar silence, and, when he had found it, he could not believe his eyes.

The sun had risen and the fog of the early morning had disappeared. Between the trenches stretched a meadow, and there—it was no delusion—was a fire of both sides, crawling about on hands and knees was a little baby. It seemed perfectly happy, chuckling at the long rows of steel helmets cautiously raised above the trench parapet by the amazed soldiers. What follows is told by the Prussian officer, Edgar von Schmidt-Pauli:

"Before my weary brain can summon up any convincing reasons how that child got there—whether some poor mother lost it in the panic due to the battle of the night before—a German soldier jumps out of the trench and runs to where the child is crawling out.

"Absolute stillness prevails in the trenches, and only to our right from which this extraordinary sight is hidden by a clump of trees is the sound of gunfire heard.

"And this spot, which all through the night had been a veritable inferno of shot and shell is now like some peaceful island or a cool, friendly oasis in a burning desert.

"Over there, in the enemy's trenches, we can see the helmets of the Frenchmen as they peer over the edge. No one is any longer thinking of the enemy, or the war, or the danger. All eyes are on the tall soldier and the child which he is approaching. And as he picks up that little frightened, helpless piece of humanity and fondly takes it in his arms, a laugh, a low friendly laugh, passes along our entire column.

"The laugh is infectious, and we can feel how it is going along the ranks yonder. And suddenly—twink—are they going to shoot?—No, on the contrary, a great wave of applause, with shouts of 'Bravo!' from thousands of French throats breaks the stillness. Then, as the soldier jumps back into our trench with the child safely in his arms, our ranks, too, burst into a triumphant shout which passes all along the line.

"Even for some time after not a shot is fired. It is as if we felt ashamed of ourselves, and no one touched a gun while that child was in our midst.

"When the firing did start again it was rather desultory and indifferent, and there was nothing dangerous about it. The little child had worked a wonderful change in the hearts of both friend and foe that morning.

"Young Man—So Miss Ethel is your oldest sister? Who comes after her?
Small Brother—Nobody isn't come yet; but pa says the first fellow that comes can have her.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body and local treatment in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the medicinal food and building tonic, from which no harmful drugs. Try It.

Warranted to cure all cases of Catarrh of the Nose, Throat, Lungs, and Bladder, and all other Catarrhs, and to give strength and vitality to the system. It is the only medicine that can be taken without any harm, and it is the only one that can be taken by the most delicate and the most infirm.

Proper Methods of Butter-Making.

Few people trouble themselves about the reason that creamy butter is to be preferred to dairy butter, but by way of introduction to Bulletin No. 53 of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Ottawa, Dairy Commissioner Raddick furnishes an explanation. Incidentally he also points out that a good deal of damage is done to the trade by inferior dairy butter. The bulletin, for which Mr. Geo. H. Barr, Chief of the Dairy Division, is responsible, in concise terms describes the whole process of butter making, tells the utensils that should be used and how they should be used, gives the results of experiments with the separator as regards temperature and variations in speed, deals with the care of cream in cooling and preparing for churning and in pasteurizing, gives expert counsel as to salting and working and points to the advisability of attractive packing in parchment paper. He also points out the requirements of the law in branding or marking and supplies practical hints on care of the utensils. Finally he tells in terse terms how to get the best results in farm dairy work. Both the bulletin and a blue print of the plan for a dairy that is given can be had by application to the Dairy Commissioner or to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

For Baby's Tender Skin.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Flowers

Flowers are perhaps the most effective of the many little "finishing touches" necessary to an attractive home. There are thousands of persons with beautiful houses, costly furnishings, perhaps, artistically and skilfully arranged by the hands of a clever decorator, but it takes the little finishing touches, the seemingly unimportant tiny things, done by the woman who loves and exists for her home and expresses her soul in her surroundings to make the house lovely.

Make Yourself Strong.

People with strong constitutions escape most of the minor ills that make life miserable for others. Don't you envy the friend who does not know what a headache is, whose digestion is perfect, and who sleeps soundly at night? How far do you come from this description? Have you ever made an earnest effort to strengthen your constitution, to build up your system, to ward off discomfort and disease? Unless you have an urgent disease it is generally possible to improve your physical condition that perfect health will be yours. The first thing to be done is to build up your blood as pure blood is the source of physical weakness. To build up the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is just the medicine you need. Every dose helps to make new blood which reaches every nerve and every part of the body, bringing color to the cheeks, brightness to the eyes, a steadiness to the hands, a good appetite and splendid energy. Thousands throughout the country whose condition once made them despair, owe their present good health to this medicine. If you are of the weak and ailing give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and note the daily gain in new health and abounding vitality.

United States Warns Public of Poison Plaster.

Washington, July 24th.—Warning to the public not to use court-plaster, except that obtained from approved sources of supply was issued today by the Department of Justice. The statement, which bears the signature of Assistant Attorney General Pitts follows:

"While the department of justice does not take a sensational view of the reports indicating a possible use of my activity in the dissemination of poisonous sticking or court plaster, there has been enough factually reported on the subject to warrant thorough investigation, both as to the manner of distribution and the germs in the plaster.

"Consequently, the samples in hand are being analytically examined, both in Washington and in a Western city pending further information. It would be well for the consuming public to use no remedies of this kind, except those obtained from approved sources of supply.

Merchant's Wife Advises Wolfville Women.

"I had stomach trouble so bad I could eat nothing but toast, fruit and not water. Everything else turned and formed in my stomach. I tried here, then back, y'know, as it is called in Adler's ONE SPOONFUL benefit of me INSTANTLY. Because Adler's capsules BOTH large and small intestine it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It has QUICK, INSTANT action of anything we ever sold."

LARRIMORE'S TRUMP

By Allan Ingalls

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

The prison gates closed behind Larrimore. He was free. Nobody had come to see him except the reporters, but that caused Larrimore no distress. Of course, Laura would not have come to the prison gates. She had pride, and, though he had been unjustly condemned, Laura was not going to publish her shame before the eyes of the newspaper men.

Larrimore had done no wrong. True, he had beguiled a few scores of women and trusting men who had put their all in his wicked scheme, but then everybody did things like that every day in the course of business. The five years in the penitentiary that he had served had been a gross injustice. Larrimore felt no degradation. He meant to repeat his trick, but more craftily, in order to secure the funds to start things going again.

Still, he was thinking as he sat in the train, a lot of things which distressed him; and yet he could not shake them out of his mind. He had gone to the metropolis twenty years before, a swifty farmer boy, to make his fortune. He had become wealthy in an incredibly short space of time, for Larrimore was quick to adapt himself to the dubious ways of finance. In ten years he was married and had a house on the avenue.

He had married the daughter of his employer. He had not loved Laura exactly, but she had thought he had. No children had come to them, and of late years Laura had seemed dissatisfied. Larrimore had lavished money upon her and had never known what ailed her, but then he had not understood her.

After his marriage he seldom went home. He made his allowance, but he had not adequate leisure, but he had not seen her for three years before he was sentenced. With his connections he could not afford to have it known that his mother was an illiterate woman. Laura had never seen her. Larrimore had been ashamed to let her know. And when he was sentenced Laura had, by his orders, written to the old woman that they were going abroad to live. Larrimore had provided for his mother before his conviction. He begged that thought to his heart. He was a pretty decent sort of a man.

Still there had been trying episodes, which, as a man of the world, he had found difficult to explain to his wife. For instance, old Mrs. Larrimore's letters. The old woman had come to town and live with her son. Of course, that was impossible, and he had told his mother so frankly. But Laura had seen one of the ill-spelled letters and Larrimore had been ashamed.

"You see, she never could learn to spell very well," he explained to his wife. "She is of good family, but her mother was always the dunce at school."

The look in his wife's eyes when he apologized for his mother had vaguely annoyed Larrimore. After his conviction Laura had come to see him regularly, each three months, for three months before his sentence expired she had told him that she thought it would be no use their living together. Things had been so bad and she was living then in a boarding-house. Larrimore had not answered her, because he meant to go to her as soon as he came out of prison and explain that he would be a rich man again within a year, and that he could provide with every luxury. That would alter his wife's decision, he knew.

Nevertheless, when he got out of the train he was disheartened with himself. Something of conscience had begun to prick the thick skin of the man. When he called at the boarding-house he discovered, to his disgust, that his wife had gone away. A letter was handed to him, and the door closed on him. Larrimore did not mind the closing of the door; he went into the park and read the letter.

"I am leaving you for ever, Henry," his wife had written, "because I cannot live with you again. For three years I have borne your callousness, but my eyes have been opened. You are the most selfish, worthless man that ever lived. I am going to the last place on earth where you will think of looking for me."

The letter was signed simply "Laura."

LANGUAGE OF THE HORSE

Words of Command go Back Many Hundreds of Years.

In commenting upon the 4,000 words used in the world of equestrian in olden times a writer in "Country Life" states that the terms used to direct laboring horses as much further back than Anglo-Saxon or any definite language; they are probably the instinctive sounds made by early man as he spoke to his horse, which have crystallized into the equestrian words used by every plowman. They vary slightly in different parts of the world, for while a Yorkshireman will say "gee" when he wants his horse to turn to the right, in Cheshire he says "gee" when he wants to turn to the left in the same condition in the same order is "half," "back," or "haw," "coom-yeh," "back" and "come-lither." To go on in some money was said to "go" while "two," "two," "two" and "two" are the sounds that salute the ears of the intelligent animal when he is greeted to a stall. The word "two" is farm beasts in general and "two" horses—in particular which is still used in the North of England—used constantly in that "Seneschal" or "Office of Seneschal" which was the guide to good husbandry in the Middle Ages.

Seven-Million-Ten Monument
The greatest monument in the world is the Great Pyramid of Egypt which was built nearly 4,000 years ago. It was built by Cheops, King of Egypt, who, following the example of previous kings, wished to have a magnificent tombstone, so that he would be remembered. It is certain that the thousands of men who were engaged in building it worked in the same language. The result is, Cheops is always put down as a tyrant.

According to Herodotus, the great Greek historian, 100,000 men were at work on it for twenty years. It covers an area of thirteen and a half acres, and contains 7,000,000 tons of masonry. It was built in layers, 900 in number, a d that the steps were filled in to make the sides smooth. The angle of the sides is weight from two tons to sixty tons. When it was built it was about 40 feet high, and the sides were each 10 feet long.

In the Footsteps of Our Fathers.

Once upon a time, says the Christian Scotsman, there was a school-keeper who was classed by his associates as a "pretty respectable sort of a citizen—never drinks or gambles and thinks the world of his family, you know." The story is told that he went home one afternoon and found his wife away from home and his three boys in the back garden where they had been playing "keep school." The youngest, who was behind the bar had a towel tied around his waist and appeared to be acting up the drink pretty freely. The father was dimly eyed at the nature of the children's play, a feeling that turned to the deepest alarm as he realized that actual beer was being dispensed over the make-believe bar, and that his boys were staggering, while a neighbor lay drunk under a tree. When the mother returned she found the boys in bed and her husband sobbing like a child. That night the school was closed, and its former keeper entered another line of business.
