GILLETTE Blades Are Harder—Keener—Smoother—Than Forged Razor Blades

Before the GILLETTE was invented razor blades were all forged. That is, a piece of mild steel was heated and hammered out till it took the form of a razor blade. Every heating, every hammering, changed the hardness of the steel a little—how much, no man could tell, but more in some parts than others, because these parts were hammered out more.

Naturally, to temper perfectly a blade of such uncertain and uneven hardness is impossible.

In making GILLETTE blades we start with an ingot of steel, too fine in quality to stand forging, whose composition we know by analysis. We roll this out to the thinness of the finished blade, then stamp out the blades ready for tempering.

The composition of the steel is not altered by the rolling and stamping as it is by forging, so that each blade comes out not only even in texture throughout, but of the same quality as every other blade. As our patented automatic tempering process tempers each blade through and through in precisely the same way, the finished blades have an even, uniform hardness which cannot possibly be equalled in forged blades.

Two of the hardest, keenest, smoothest shaving edges the world has ever seen are found on each and every GILLETTE blade. Not only is the GILLETTE the safest, quickest, most convenient and only adjustable razor, but it carries the best edge. That is what interests the shaver most.

Standard Sets $5.00. Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00. At your druggist's, jeweller's or hardware dealer's.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Ruth Cameron

The Butterfly Girl, who was presiding at the chaffing dish at our Sunday night supper, started quickly when someone spoke her name unexpectedly, and upset the salt. It tipped in the direction of Molly, the little stenographer.

Oh, dear," wailed Molly, "look what you've done, and I don't want to quarrel with you a bit, because I like you, and anyway, I hate to quarrel. It makes me feel queer in the pit of my stomach. Here, take some of this quick and throw it over your shoulder."

The Butterfly Girl obeyed laughing, but the author man's wife broke in tartly: "Really, Molly, I should think you'd be too sensible for such a silly superstition. Positively, I cannot understand it."

"There, my dear," said the lady-who-always-knows-somehow, turning to the author man's wife with suspiciously animated friendliness, "there that reminds me. You remember the day you stopped at my house on your way to town and you told me you had put your petticoat on wrong-side out and you simply couldn't bear to change it for fear of ill luck, and yet you were afraid the tailor would see it. Do you think he noticed it?"

The author man's wife turned a dull red. "No, he didn't," she snapped.

"Come to think of it," admitted the Butterfly Girl, kindly curtailing the laugh by her admission. "Come to think of it, I needn't have laughed at Molly. I don't mind spilling salt or changing things that I put on wrong-side out, but I must say, I'm heart-broken if I see the new moon over my left shoulder."

"Pooh," said the author man. "There's nothing in that. Why, just last month I saw the new moon over my left shoulder, through glass and with not a cent in my pocket, and I had three manuscripts accepted within the next week. No, take it from me, that moon business is all nonsense. But I'll tell you something that isn't. I never yet had a story that I began on Friday accepted. You can pooh-hooh all you want, but that's no superstition; that's real experience."

The wants-to-be-cynic turned appealingly to the lady-who-always-knows-somehow. "Surely," he pleaded, "surely, you, the priestess of common sense, will assure us that you at least, are free from this maudlin, medieval mania of superstition." (The wants-to-be-cynic is crazy about alliteration and looked piously about for someone to pat him on the back after this effort.)

"Well, I don't mind tipping over salt, and I wouldn't keep anything on wrong-side out if I were paid for it, and the only thing I notice about the new moon is whether it's a wet or a dry one, and as for Friday, I've had some of the best luck I ever had on that day, but I must say that I do not like to sit down with thirteen at a table. I really think I have some justification in that, for I've known two cases where the thirteenth person died within a year."

"Old people?" inquired the cynic.

"Well along in life," admitted the lady.

"And yet you believe that nonsense. Lady, I'm disappointed in you," said the wants-to-be-cynic. "Does this actually mean that I'm the only person in this crowd who is absolutely free from superstition?"

"No, it doesn't," said the author man dryly. "Not by a good deal. That is, unless you've changed your mind about some things since I bunched with you about a month ago, and you took your head right off of your scrubwoman for breaking your shaving mirror. You were most particular to say that the thing didn't cost much, and it wasn't the value you minded at all, but you didn't like the idea of being saddled with bad luck for seven years."

The wants-to-be-cynic turned three shades redder than the author man's wife had.

"Dear me," sighed Molly, when the meeting had come back to comparative order. "We must be remarkably foolish people—not one of us, without a superstition."

"Not a bit remarkable, Molly," said the lady-who-always-knows-somehow. "I don't believe you'll find one person in five hundred who hasn't at least one pet superstition. Maybe, some people won't like to acknowledge it any better than some of us, but if you could live a year with them you'd be sure to find it."

Which—as you may have suspected—is my own opinion and my thesis. Try it some time in a company of real sensible people, and if you can get them to be honest, I don't believe you'll find one but, though he laugh to scorn all other superstitions, has some pet one of his own tucked away.

Household Notes.

Use cream silver polish to clean old ivory.

Fried apples are delicious served with pork chops.

First wash table linen in cold water and then in hot.

Among the popular confections are crystallized lilies.

Use sour milk and salt to brighten brass candlesticks.

Have a slip of unbleached muslin for your pastry board.

Mushrooms cut into small pieces make a novel filling for an omelet.

Not all canyon fanciers know of the birds' love for nasturtium blossoms.

Fill a little cheesecloth bag with chopped ice and give to the baby when cutting teeth.

In serving hominy for breakfast, just before taking from the stove, add a beaten egg.

Meringue used instead of pie crust as the covering of an apple pie is somewhat of a change.

A teaspoonful of glycerine added to the rinsing water makes the flannels come out like new.

Time and often money are saved by the use of the ready-made clothes driers now on the market.

MARINE NOTES.

The Danish schooners Lidovik, Vera and Belonia are now due here with salt from Cadiz, and will load seal oil for Europe.

The Messrs. Chey & Co. to-day had a message from Glasgow stating that the Cornthian was 150 miles west of Malin Head at 8 last evening and is due at Glasgow to-day.

The Danure sails to-day for Perth nambuco, having got all her crew.

The Benedick sailed to-day for Halifax. Mr. Winter went passenger by her.

The S. S. Beothic has been chartered by the Reid Mill Co. and will run to Sydney and Port aux Basques until the Solway arrives. The Beothic sails Monday.

Train Notes.

The express arrived from Port aux Basques at 12.30 p.m. to-day.

The express that left here last Thursday reached Port aux Basques on time last night.

The west-bound express arrived at Port aux Basques at 10.05 a.m.

The express from Port aux Basques arrived here at 1.05, having made schedule time to Port Blandford.

Waiting for the freight train to pass delayed here there over an hour.

Amongst the passengers who arrived were W. H. Taylor, H. B. Curtis, Messrs. Parsons, Mercer, Coul, Aylward and 20 others.

The 8.45 train this morning took out Rev. Mr. Godden, Rev. Monsignor Veitch, Rev. Mr. Darby, Messrs. Walker, Winter, Downey, Barnes, Bentley, Donovan and Burke.

The local arrivals from Carbonear at 12.05 p.m. to-day bringing Dr. Chisholm, R. Dawe, Dr. Shankel, Mr. White, J. Noseworthy and Mr. Bursell.

Great Display of Gems.

London, May 26.—Numerous gowns made especially for the Coronation were seen for the first time at the State Ball in Buckingham Palace last night. The display of gems could not be surpassed by any European court. Queen Mary's corsage was like a breastplate of diamonds and included two immense stones, cut from the famous Cullinan diamond, which were worn as pendants. She also wore a high collar of diamonds.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say, "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as if I were rising in the morning at when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to eat a great deal of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden. Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained from—

In Japanese Shops.

Some of the Queer Sights to be Seen in Flowery Kingdom.

The shops and booths of Japan are of unalloyed interest. Here the greengrocer and fruit seller has arranged his wares till it seems as though one looked upon a great bouquet. There the flower shop blazes in brilliancy and the lantern-maker squats at his multi-colored task. At the next entrance we perhaps see a man severing chicken meat from the bone, and he performs the operations as skillfully as the surgeon with his dissecting knife. Beef and chicken are commonly sold in this fashion. But curious things are not found in the shops alone.

Martin Hardware Co.

The green vegetable peddler at once arouses attention. He carries loads heavy enough for a horse, but with a quick step he will walk from street to street, still with enough energy to call his wares as he goes. One marvels at those wonderful, big, snow-white radishes he sells; green onions, carrots, fruits, and even lotus roots dug from the muddy bottoms of ponds. Fancy yourself eating long burdock roots which grow in any country backyard! The Japanese consider these a toothsome article, and the peddler fetches them from the farmers, who raise them like turnips.—The Christian Herald.
