

PEPS BEHIND THE SCENES.

May 16th.—Up betimes and abroad, the talk everywhere of the election, and in particular, of Mr. Monro's manifesto, which he issues today, and is a brief document, and is pointed, as indeed, is to be expected of a business man who is no political politician. No rash promises made, but he pledges himself to carry out divers public reforms, and his honesty of purpose is apparent. I learn how Mr. Monro will not be the Hickman man of the West End of the City, but will go to the East End, and the names mentioned, of those who will be his colleagues, nor any rule of his will go with Mr. Dowdman of the West End. News too, of Mr. Monro going for Monroe to Carleton, and will have against him Mr. Meeting Mr. Ayre, he bids good-bye, since he goes this day to the district, and is hopeful for his success. Capt. R. Dalton is announced as the opponent of Mr. Monro in Fogo, and is thought a strong man in that district; while Mr. Monro and C. Lake will go to Burin. As I did say in my journal yesterday. Out at night to the meeting of the West End Committee at the Star Hall, and the greatest enthusiasm that ever I did see, evinced by the Monro men. So to play at cards, being the first time of my doing so since eight evenings passed, and still passably fair at it.

Obituary.

Very much regret to announce passing of one of our oldest and respected citizens in the person of Patrick Joseph Wadden (Shoe-maker) at his late residence, following after a short illness, following operation at the General Hospital. The late Patrick Joseph Wadden was a son of the late Nicholas Wadden, (the old West End Patriarch) conducted a prosperous shoemaking business in this city for upwards of a century and was well and highly known and highly respected for his honesty, integrity and fair dealing with his fellow men. Left behind him are his five daughters and sons: Misses B. and A. Wadden, Mrs. Thos. Connolly, City; Mrs. C. Baird, Pittsburg, Pa.; Mrs. J. A. Wilson, Louisiana; Mr. Fred J. Wadden, the well known grocer, New Gower Street; A. S. Wadden, the well known butcher, Water Street, for whom he is the deepest sympathy in their bereavement. Messrs. John, Joseph, Wadden of the city, also N. C. Wadden of Montreal, are left to carry on his passing. Funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence, 10 Wadden Street.
