'Twixt Love and Duty.

"Love? So talk you. You see a girl beautiful, sweet and innocent. Your heart, greedy and covetous, wants her as it has wanted, doubtless, many others. For yourself only you seek her. And what is it you ask, then? That she should give up for you her father, mother, home, her own faith, her own people, her own country—the poor little one!—to a cold, cheerless land, among strangers, alone in the sorrows and pains that to all women come? Love? In God's name, what know you of love?"

"No man can love her better."
"What say you? How, then, do I love her? I who carried her—Myn Witte Lammette (My white lamb)—in these arms before she could say to me 'Father'?" His wrath had been slowly growing in spite of the mist in his eyes and the tenderness in his voice, and suddenly striking the desk a ponderous blow, his clenched hand, he said, with an unmistakable passion, "My daughter you shall not have! God in heaven to himself take her ere such sorrow come to her and me."

"Sir, you are very unkind; but I am thankful to know so much of your mind, and, to be plain with you, I am determined to marry your daughter, if I can compass the matter in any way. It is now, then, open war between us—and so, sir, your servant."

"Stay—to me listen, then, one guide I will give to my daughter if—
"To the devil with your guides! Dirty money made in dirty traffic!"

"You lie!"
"Sir! You take an infamous advantage. You know that, being Katherine's father, I will not challenge you."
"Christus!" roared Joris. Challenge me one hundred times. A fool I would be to answer you. Life my God gave me. Well, then, only my God shall from me take it. See you these arms and hands? In them you will be as the child of one year. Ere beyond my reason you move me, go! and he strode to the door and flung it open with a passion that made every one in the store straighten themselves, and look curiously towards the two men.

White with rage, and with his hand upon his sword hilt, Capt. Hyde stamped the way through the crowded store to the dusty street. They struck him that he had not asked the name of the man to whom Katherine was promised. He swore at himself for the omission. Whether he knew him or not he was determined to fight him. In the meantime, the most practical revenge was to try and see Katherine before the father had the opportunity to give her any orders regarding him. Just then he met Neil Semple, and he stopped and asked him the time.

"It will be the half hour after four, captain. I am going home; shall I have your company?"

"I have not so much leisure tonight. Make a thousand regrets to Madame Semple and my aunt for me."

Neil's calm, unobtrusive gravity was unendurable. He turned from him abruptly, and, muttering passionate exclamations, went to the river bank for a boat. Often he had seen Katherine between 5 and 6 o'clock at the foot of Van Heemskirk's garden, for it was then possible for her to slip away while madam was busy about her house, and Joanna and Bataavia were talking about their own affairs. And this evening he felt that the very intensity of his desire must surely bring her to their trysting-place behind the lilac hedge.

Whether he was right or wrong he did not consider; for he was one of those potent men who have themselves in their own power. Nor had it ever entered his mind that "Love's strength standeth in Love's sacrifice, or that the only love worthy of the name refuses to blend with anything that is low, or vindictive, or clandestine. And even if he had not loved Katherine he would now have gone determined to marry her. Never before in all his life had he found an object so engrossing. Pride and revenge were added to love as motives; but who will say that love was purer or stronger or sweeter for them?

In the meantime Joris was suffering as only such devoted lovers can suffer. There were domestic fatalities which the wisest and tenderest of parents seem impotent to contend with. Joris had certainly been alarmed by Semple's warning; but in forbidding his daughter to visit Mrs. Gordon, and in permitting the suit of Neil Semple, he thought he had assured her safety. Through all the past weeks he had seen no shadow on her face—the fear had died out, and the hope had been slowly growing, so that Capt. Hyde's proposal and his positive assertion that Katherine loved him had fallen upon the father's heart with the force of a blow and the terror of a shock. And the sting of the sorrow was this—that his child had deceived him. Certainly she had not spoken false words, but truth can be outraged by silence quite as cruelly as by speech.

After Hyde's departure he shut the door of his office, walked to the window, and stood there some minutes clasping and unclasping his large hands like a man full of grief and perplexity. Ere long he remembered his friend Semple. This trouble concerned him also, for Capt. Hyde was in a manner his guest, and if he were informed of the marriage arranged between Katherine and Neil Semple he would doubtless feel himself bound in honor to retire. Elder Semple had opened his house to Col. Gordon, his wife and nephew. For months they had lived in comfort under his roof and been made heartily welcome to the best of all he possessed. Joris put himself in Hyde's place, and was certain that under the same circumstances he would feel it disgraceful to interfere with the love affairs of his host's son.

He found Semple with his hat in his hand, giving his last orders before leaving business for the day; but when Joris said, "There is trouble, and your advice I want," he returned with him to the back of the store, where, through half-opened shutters, the sunshine and the river breeze stole into an atmosphere laden with the aromas of tea and coffee and West Indian produce.

In a few short, strong sentences Joris put the case before Semple. The latter stroked his right knee thoughtfully and listened. But his first words were not very comforting. "I must say that it is mainly your own fault, Joris. You have given Neil but a half welcome, and you should have made a thing plain and positive to Katherine. Such shilly-shally, yea-and-nay kind o' ways willna do wi' women. Why didna you say to her, out and out, 'I have promised you to Neil Semple, my son; he'll make you the best o' husbands; you'll marry him at the New Year, and you'll get good and plentiful, and a' things suitable'?"

"So young she is yet, Elder."

"She has been o'er auld for you, Joris. Young, my certie! When girls are auld enough for a lover they are a match for any gray head. They are thankful man that I wasn't put in charge o' any o' them. You and your household will hae to keep your own wheel open, or there will be a wedding to which name o' us will get an invite. But there is little good in mair words. Hame is the place we are bairn needed in. I shall hae to speak my mind to Neil, and likewise to Col. Gordon; and you canna put off your duty to your daughter an hour longer. Dear me! To think Joris o' a man being able to sit wi' the councilors o' the nation, and yet no match for a lassie o' seventeen!"

WANTS $5,000 DAMAGES.

Barton Farmer Says His Wife's Affections Have Been Alienated.

Hamilton, Sept. 11.—Luther Crosthwaite, a well known farmer of Barton, has commenced a lawsuit which will probably prove highly interesting when it comes into court. He has entered an action against Mary Crosthwaite, of Barton; Joseph and Hannah McPherson, of Sarnia, and Esther Ann McMillan, of this city, for $5,000 damages for alienating the affections of his wife, Charlotte Crosthwaite, also for uttering malicious and slanderous statements concerning him; for depriving him of the society of his wife and children, and for harboring them against his will.

Many Petitions.

Received and Considered by the Board of Works.

The Condition of the Road Near Wellington Street Bridge—New Sewers Wanted—The "Devil Strip" a Cow Pasture.

A large amount of business was briskly disposed of at the meeting of the Board of Works last night.

The residents in the neighborhood of Clarke's bridge were represented by two petitions—one asking for the construction of a walk on Clarke's bridge, and the other complaining of the condition of Wellington street north of the bridge. The latter petition provoked considerable discussion.

Ald. Pritchard and Heaman agreed with the petitioners that the road was too high and ought to be cut down. Ald. O'Meara, Dreaney and Cooper knew of far worse streets in their wards.

Ald. Parnell explained that the funds did not permit of grading the street in the way the petitioners wished. The street had been filled in, in front of Cook's property.

On motion of Ald. Pritchard the petition will go to the council with the statement that there are no funds. The council will deal with this matter.

Residents on High street asked that the street be cut down and widened. Ald. Dreaney asked why the work of laying the extension of the street along the line on the Hamilton road had not been carried out. Referred to the engineer to have severe flushed if necessary.

A. E. Davis, of South street, wanted his sewer rate refunded, as his property was not properly drained. His neighbor, Mr. Reid, had tapped the sewer, and finding it not deep enough, obtained a refund.

The matter was not officially before the committee and was sent to No. 1. Wm. Dinlock, a fish peddler, wanted the city to pay him $5 for damages to a fish truck he had parked in a hole in front of his residence on Cartwright street, which often filled his house with sewer gas. Referred to the engineer to have severe flushed if necessary.

Ald. Parnell—Well, we will know what to do another year.

The refusal was sent to the council. W. C. L. Gill complained of two gully holes in front of his residence on Cartwright street, which often filled his house with sewer gas. Referred to the engineer to have severe flushed if necessary.

The Business Outlook

The State of Trade in the Dominion.

More Activity Shown During the Past Week in Wholesale Lines.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of trade in Canada says:

While wholesale trade in Montreal does not exhibit any large degree of general briskness, there is nevertheless an improved demand in certain leading lines, and city retailers report a more active business. In general collections there is still a large margin for improvement. The money market is practically unchanged. Five per cent is the general asking figure for call funds, but some transactions continue to be reported at 4 1/2 per cent. The feature of the week in the drygoods market is an advance in gray cottons, equal to about 2 1/2 per cent. Groceries are in better request. Refined sugars are weaker. Cables from Patras report an advancing market for currants, and the first direct Mediterranean fruit steamer will be due here about Oct. 8. Oils, paints and glass are in rather better request. Metals and hardware are rather inactive. Leather and hides dull, and there is marked accumulation of beef hides in warehouse. There has been quite an advance in cheese—some think due rather to speculation than to a real improvement in the English market.

Business in wholesale circles at Toronto has been a little more active past week. The crowds from the country visiting here have increased the retail trade greatly, and wholesale dealers report a large number of orders booked. The general feeling, however, is one of caution, and merchants are not ordering more than what they consider really necessary. There are no changes in consequence in prices of staple goods. Some local competition has affected prices of sugars adversely. In hardware there is a fair trade. The leather market is quiet, and prices of hides remain easy. There is a better market for cheese, with advances in late makes, and butter is firmer. The money market is quiet with call loans quoted at 5 to 5 1/2 per cent. Arrangements are being made by grain dealers for the movements of crops, and they pay 6 to 6 1/2 per cent for money. Stocks are stronger, being influenced partly by the improved tone of finances in the United States.

Not long ago a lady in Japan, during a slight illness, had 423 physicians in attendance.

The Family Doctor

Could pack his grip and leave the country without inconveniencing anybody if men and women only knew the plain every-day principles underlying a healthy system. Take the kidneys for instance, possibly the most important organs in the whole body. When they are healthy the blood is clean and it is almost impossible to get sick; when they are not healthy it is almost impossible to get well without restoring the kidneys to proper action.

Backache is the warning note of diseased kidneys. Don't's Kidney Pills make weak kidneys strong, make diseased kidneys well. They never fail even in most distressing stages of kidney disease. A case in point was reported to one of our representatives the other day. Mr. Robert (Graham), of 419 Ontario street, London, Ont., states:

"For a long time I have been a sufferer from kidney complaint, with distressing pain in the back and rheumatic pains all over my body, particularly in my feet. I had an itching, burning sensation all over; sometimes it was almost intolerable. The urine was very high-colored and variable in quantity. I was very restless and weak, badly troubled at times with palpitation of the heart, so much so that I had to prop myself up in bed. In fact I was a physical wreck."

"I saw the Don's Kidney Pills advertisement, and got a box from Strong's drug store. The result of taking them has been surprising to me. I am not a little better, but a great deal better. My back is all right, rheumatic pains almost gone; I scarcely notice them. Urine is natural in color and quantity, and all the disagreeable sensations have left me. I rest well and feel like work. The itching, burning sensation of my skin has disappeared, and beyond questioning the pills in removing my other troubles have relieved me of the palpitation of the heart and strengthened my entire system."

"I pronounce them the best medicine that I have ever taken, and I have tried a number of remedies for kidney troubles. I am really thankful for what they have done for me."

AN ITCHING HEAD.

Is a source of great discomfort. It's annoying to yourself and disgusting to your friends.

Most times dandruff, scurf, or scales cause it, and these, if neglected, produce baldness. By using Hairerene you can clean the scalp, relieve the itching, nourish the hair roots, and produce a vigorous growth of hair.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher, that it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.
