Are what we work for. One of the results of our low prices is that numbers of new customers are visiting us daily, and are surprised at the variety of our stock and the superlative values we give them at the low prices we sell for. Our spring stock will compare favorably with any in the city in quality, and it is conceded that we lead in low prices. No old stock, but all new, fresh goods, and up-to-date. First Reading of the Springbank Agreement Bylaw.

Disatisfaction Over the Non-Acceptance of the Street Railway Company's Street-Watering Tender.

At a special meeting of the City Council last night, Ald. Parnell, before the regular business was brought on, moved that the clerk be instructed to write to Ald. Marshall and family, expressing the council's regret at the serious illness of Mr. Marshall. Ald. McCallum seconded, and the resolution was adopted unanimously. Ald. Parnell moved that the clerk be instructed to write to Mr. James Bell, who performed the duties with the same satisfaction that characterizes his clerkship of committees and other duties. The aldermen present were: Pritchard, Taylor, John Heaman, O'Meara, Douglass, Powell, Carrothers, Skinner, Wm. Heaman, Cooper, Garratt, Armstrong, Bennett, Nutkins, Parnell, McCallum, Mayor Little and City Clerk Kingston.

WESTERN FAIR BYLAW.
A strong deputation was present from the Fair Board. It included Parnell, Taylor, Douglass, Skinner, Wm. Heaman, Cooper, Garratt, Armstrong, Bennett, Nutkins, Parnell, McCallum, Mayor Little and City Clerk Kingston.

A strong deputation was present from the Fair Board. It included Parnell, Taylor, Douglass, Skinner, Wm. Heaman, Cooper, Garratt, Armstrong, Bennett, Nutkins, Parnell, McCallum, Mayor Little and City Clerk Kingston.

In response to a question by Ald. Nutkins, Ald. Parnell stated that $25,000 was raised and being necessary to carry out the work contemplated, but all the council would give was $25,000.

Mr. Kingston read a strongly-worded protest from residents in the neighborhood of the fair grounds against the placing of the cattle sheds on the waste side of the grounds.

Ald. Nutkins, however, explained that the matter had been satisfactorily adjusted between the members for No. 5 ward, the Fair Board, and the residents concerned, by placing the stables 40 feet back from the street.

Ald. Parnell moved that President Parnell and that gentleman read over the list of proposed alterations. It included: Single horse stall building (6x150), $5,250; double horse stall building (6x150), $10,500; (swine and sheep) building (52x73), $9,550; transportation building (60x180), $2,700; moving machinery hall and agricultural implement shed, $2,000; adding and rebuilding same, $750; addition to agricultural hall, $1,200; moving dairy building and putting addition (60x140), $550; moving present horse stalls, Nos. 1 and 2, and re-erecting at north-east corner, $500; changing King street crossing, $700; total, $28,950.

Ald. Carrothers criticized the proposed work, claiming that a great deal of the planning and alterations was unnecessary.

Mr. Pearce spoke of the positive stand taken by many exhibitors, their refusal to return to many of the present buildings.

Ald. Skinner said that it was not a question merely of asking and receiving, but of getting the money to carry out the work.

Some discussion arose over the liability of the contractors for cart breakages. Ald. Parnell said that it was asserted that before now some contractors had deliberately broken carts to get out of temporarily fulfilling their contracts.

Ald. Pritchard took exception to the remark, but the speaker said he had been told the same thing.

It was finally agreed that the committee would exercise a fatherly oversight over the contractors, and if the wagons broke through no fault of the contractor, the city will bear the cost.

Ald. Pritchard moved that Mr. Samuel Turner be referred back to examine the water carts, and several of the aldermen held that the motion was a reflection upon the city engineer.

Ald. Draneay said that he saw the contractor who was repairing them was doing a good job. He (Ald. Draneay) had written for notice a general notice in the wagon business, and he knew a good job when he saw it. He simply made the explanation in justice to the contractor, Mr. Geo. Heaman.

Ald. Pritchard's motion was lost. The recommendation that two street watering inspectors be appointed this year was sent back to committee.

The question of watering Mill street and not watering a certain portion of the Pipe Line was referred back for consideration. The proposition to add together the two frontages on corner lots and charge watering rates on only one frontage, and also to fix the charge at 10¢ per foot in broken fronts, was adopted.

It was after 12 o'clock when the business was concluded, and for five minutes or so the aldermen piled Manager Carr of the street railway company, with questions respecting the road. Mr. Carr, in reply, said that the company had three gangs of men at work, and would put the streets in thorough condition as soon as possible. They had applied to the railway committee of the Privy Council for four months ago for permission to cross the various railroad tracks of the city, but nothing had been done—perhaps because of the momentous question that was engrossing attention at Ottawa. He also said that owing to the condition of the city streets it was impossible to carry the fenders as low as in some other cities.

The council adjourned at 12:15.

SPRINGBANK AGREEMENT.
The mayor explained that the agreement would be read in full, and the bylaw be only taken up for a third time.

The bylaw was then passed a third time.

The mayor explained that the agreement would be read in full, and the bylaw be only taken up for a third time.

The agreement consists of 40 clauses, and it took the greater part of an hour for the clerk and solicitor jointly to read it. When it was concluded, Ald. O'Meara said that he would want the agreement stated at which the company would have their last car leave Springbank. Ald. Pritchard and Cooper also gave notice that they would require the fare to be mentioned also.

The mayor said that it was thought that the fare would be mentioned, but if the company charged too much the resort would not be patronized. However, the matter will be thoroughly threshed out when the agreement comes up again.

STREET WATERING.

On the reading of No. 3 committee's report by Ald. John Heaman, Ald. Armstrong asked why the street railway company's proposition to water certain streets had been thrown out.

Ald. Heaman replied that the company would not sprinkle less than 100 miles, and all the city could give them was six. They wanted $100 more a mile to give four instead of three sprinklings.

Ald. Pritchard said that as the company would use other than Springbank water, their offer would have been a great saving at a time when the Springbank supply was lower.

Ald. Skinner defended the action of the committee, saying they could not submit to the street railway company's demand for a number of ratepayers petitioned against it. Then there were sides of streets that the street railway company could not touch.

Ald. Taylor favored the street railway company's tender, and he also objected to the water commissioners charging the city 15 cents for water when manufacturers got it at a 5-cent rate.

Ald. O'Meara argued that the water so paid for was revenue to the city. He would not put a putting river water on the streets, where it would immediately evaporate, to the detriment of the public health. This, however, to be done in times of extreme scarcity.

Ald. Powell thought that the city would have saved money by accepting the railway company's tender.

The mayor thought that it would be better for the year to adopt the report of the committee, and he would not be some weeks before the company could do the work satisfactorily.

Mayor, "that it is in the interests of the city that the street railway should water the streets covered by their tracks. I am sure that the city will be better off in the long run."

Ald. Pritchard objected strongly to watering the asphalt pavement by day work, and Ald. Parnell and Powell explained that the contractors of the streets had to be watered so often that it would be impossible for the regular contractors to do the work.

Ald. Pritchard took exception to the remark, but the speaker said he had been told the same thing.
