At first it had been intended to put one station at Phungchon, some distance north of Chemulpo, on the Korean Peninsula. The distance between the two stations would have been about 150 miles, but it was decided that the advantage of a moyable station would be greater than mere facility in transmitting messages from Korea across the Yellow Sea to Wei Hai Wei, and the equipment was therefore installed on the Haimun.

The Wei Hai Wei station is situated on the Yungt Cheng Peninsula. There is no timber in the neighborhood, and the mast, which is 180 feet high, is bamboo, the only material that could be obtained for the purpose. The difficulties on account of the lack of labor were great, count of the lack of labor were great, but the station was ready within the stipulated three weeks. "About five years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I first began. I also tried many reme-dies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heart-sore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position. Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work.

At night I would have to wear gloves in bed. In fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. But thanks to Cuticura, the greatest of all great skin cures. After doctoring for three years, and London, May 19. - Gen. Itei Kuroki's victory over the Russians along the Yalu a few days ago, has brought into prominence one of the oldest warriors n Japan, a person who is spoken of as the gentlest and the fiercest man in the Mikado's Empire, and who has been in every great battle that Japan Ex-Colonials As Candidates has fought since the restoration. Many of the generals returned from the China-Japan war with rare loot, and it took many coolies to carry their possessions. Kuroki, on the other hand, was not accompanied by a string of baggage bearers. A friend expressed his surprise at the meager-
