

domestic availability of the product. In making the final purchase decision, the factor of greatest influence is a personal recommendation from a business associate or other informed source.

A survey of U.S. associations undertaken for this report revealed that the Canadian plastic products industry is viewed as competitive and well managed. The associations feel that the best opportunities for Canadian companies to access the U.S. market is through the supply of products to replace increasingly expensive imports from other countries.