Spent More Than the Revenue.

Mr. Henderson, in the course of his review of the financial situation, pointed out that, instead of the Government having a real surplus of $8,000,000 last year, they had actually spent $1,686,000 more than the revenue. He urged that the present method of bookkeeping should be altered, as it was only calculated to deceive the people. age Question-[Hear, hear.] There always seemed to be some one around the Minister with the necessary "elasticity of purpose." Anybody who ever went into the Windsor Hotel must have noticed a room called the tollgate. He would not call it Blair's tollgate, altho that was what the people called it. And that room was where they took a man in before he went to do business with Mr. Blair, and, if he did not prove pliable enough, if he kicked, they gave him a dose of Abbey's salt to supple him up. down the standard when hard times came. The Government had not borne this in mind. There should be a definite plan with respect to railway subsidies and public works in the various provinces. At is was, they depended more on political considerations than considerations of public policy.

The Resolution.

Mr. Borden concluded his arraignment of the Administration by moving the following amendment:

The total expenditure, as shown by the public accounts during each fiscal year, for 1892 to 1900, both inclusive, was as follows:

1892—$42,272,136, 1897—$42,972,755. 1898—$40,853,727. 1898—$545,334,281. 1894—$43,006,233, 1289—$51,542,655.

did not prove pliable enough, if he kicked, they gave him a dose of Abbey's salt to supple him up. Anybody who looked over the list of shareholders of the Abbey Co, would know what he meant; he would not say Mr. Blair himself was a shareholder. Certain it was during the time the contract in question was being arranged Mr. Connor was day after day in Mr. Blair's room. But, of course, he could not say that the Minister ever mentioned "elevator" to him.

Mr. Jabel Robinson said it was the first he had heard of this thirteen million dollar charge, and he thought Mr. Pope should have brought it up earlier. If true, it ought to be investigated by a committee.

Mr. Pope: Hear, hear.

Mr. Robinson thought there were only six members, including himself, entitled to vote for the resolution.

While the members were being called in the House whiled the minutes away with song, Mr. Archambault leading in "The Brigadier." The division resulted in the amendment of Mr. Borden being defeated by 100 to 51 on a straight party vote.
