NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—"By golly, I thought I was a goner," said Madden Pierson, the missing seaman of the wrecked schooner Arlington, when he was picked up today by the fishing schooner Irene and Mary after drifting without food, drink or sleep for 24 hours on a crazy raft of logs.

Small Bullets Would Kill If Shot at Random From Distant Bush.

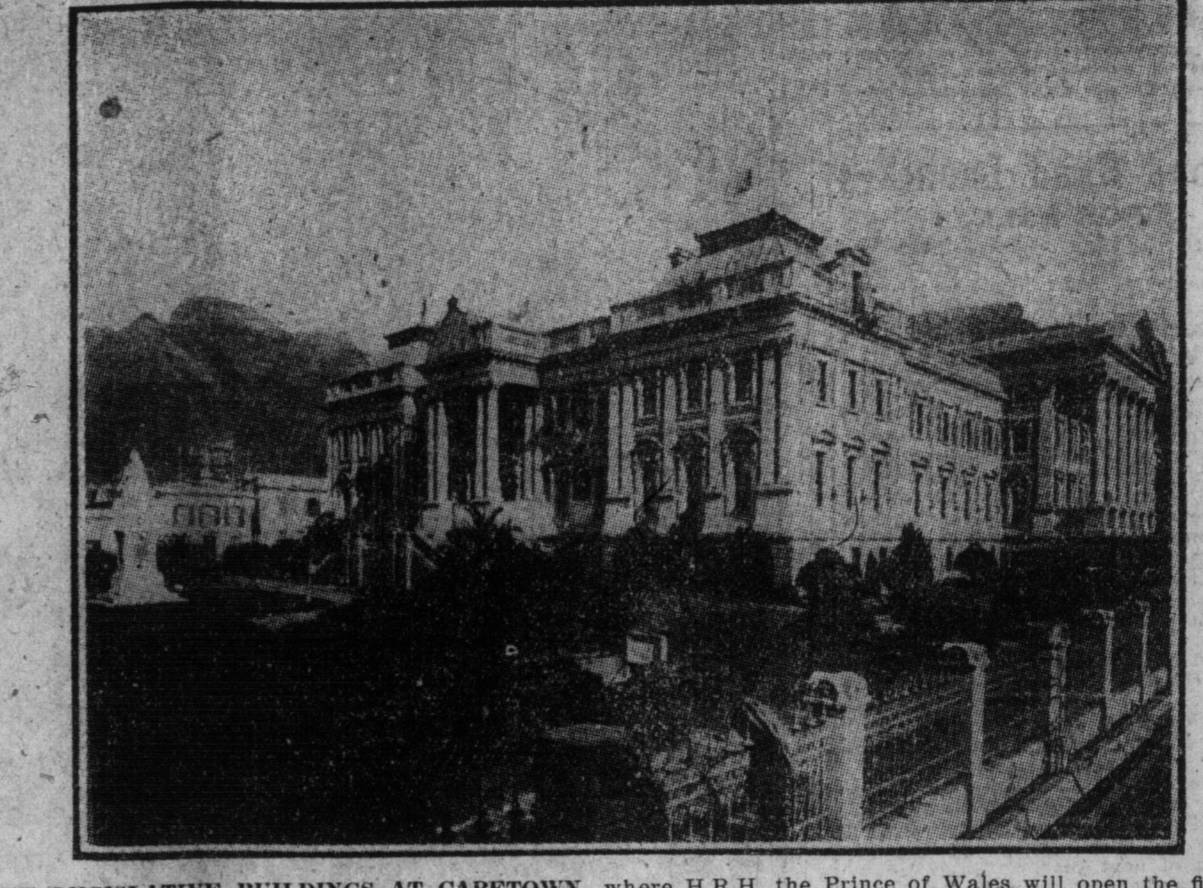

SIMCOE, Ont., Aug. 18.—(Special.)—That Emery Shelley, the boy charged with the murder of the old Michael Hall on Sunday last, was most probably innocent of any intention to do harm, seems quite likely after Detective Greer's experiments to-day.

A careful survey of the bush opposite and 350 yards from the Hall cabin strengthened the theory that the bullet might easily have done their work from this thicket, and that shots from the woods at a bird in the border would be within range of the marks they made.

BOY'S STORY OF SHOOTING IS SUSTAINED BY TESTS

Small Bullets Would Kill If Shot at Random From Distant Bush.

At last I could see by the way the Irene and Mary changed her course that the lookout had sighted me. I had been a sailor for 22 years, but no sailor ever looked so good to me as the Irene and Mary beating up to windward.

When the schooner's dory took Pierson aboard he was almost too weak to stand and too stiff to sit down.

Another thing that strongly upholds the "accidental" theory is that the old man was killed by the first shot, which continued to rattle on the building, continued to rattle on the building, continued to rattle on the building.
