

animated this congregation, and which enables us to look forward with hope and confidence to the future.

Perhaps the most pressing work now before us as a congregation is that of securing for the Parish a new and commodious School House, the want of which is a hindrance to the efficiency of the Sunday School, and the development of other branches of Parish work. To accomplish this desirable object will need the united, self-denying co-operation of every member of the congregation, and having this, with God's help, we may hope to see our efforts speedily crowned with success.

Whilst devoting our energies to this work, it is however, necessary, owing to the constant influx of new comers, to say that it must in no wise diminish our contributions towards the ordinary expenses of the Church, to defray which the Churchwardens have no other resources except the free-will offerings of the congregation.

a close,
of har-
so long