MR. BORDEN.

The Telegraph refers very frequently to the mediocrity of Mr. R. L. Borden. Yet this commonplace man was the centre of a demonstration in Winnipes centre of a demonstration in attended by the most representative gathering ever assembled in western Canada. The demand for tickets for the banquet was so great that though provision had been made for 500 persons an overflow banquet for 150 r had to be provided. Wherever Mr. Borden went in the west he was received with enthusiasm, and the fact that the Winnipeg demonstration was the closing event of the tour, after the papers had been publishing reports of his speeches day after day for a long enough period to enable the people to decide whether they wanted to hear him or not, is the best evidence that he made a splendid impression. talk about mediocrity may as well cease. Besides, the people of the maritime provinces, among whom the Tele-graph circulates, know themselves that Mr. Borden is an able as well as an honest man, who has attained the leadership of his party by virtue of his ability and high reputation.

MR. MONK'S VIEWS.

Mr. F. D. Monk, leader of the Quebec conservatives, says a Montreal despatch, referring to the Tarte incident, said he felt that the resignation of the minister of public works would be considered by the country at large as a victory for the free traders in the Laurier cabinet, and that no one need expect any further progress on protective lines as long as the present government remained in power. He considered, however, that their days were numbered. He also said that Mr. Tarte's departure would greatly weaken both the government and the liberal party, irrespective of the best suc-cessor that could be found. It was cessor that could be found. It was true, Mr. Monk said, that Mr. Fielding remained, with his provincialism and his free trade sympathies, and as for Sir Wilfrid, he know that the most earnest members of the liberal party never looked to the premier for a policy. That, they all felt, had to come from somebody else. As for the rest, Mr. Monk said: "They form the administration, and that is all you can say about them."

A FEARSOME TASK.

Two great problems now confront the liberal party. One is to find a successor to Mr. Tarte and the other is to pacify the score or more of applicants for the vacant office in the local customs house, who won't get the job. The first is bal énough, Laurier and everybody, else knows, but it has not the seemsingly insuperable difficulties that surround the other. Col. Tucker, M. P., has visions of these men, who in former times were his most ardent friends and suporters, bulwarks of the party and the sait of the earth, becoming bitter and vindictive enemies. Each of the applicants has qualifications, so each says, that the party should delight to honor; but it is a difficult thing to divide one job satisfactorily between twenty candidates. Far easier is it to lure the wary trout from the depths of Lake Penachong; to fix the lobster scale presents less obstactes, and dreams of transcontinental railways are easier to invoke than to select an appraiser from the host of applicants, without turning joy into mourning and the revered names MISCELLANEOUS.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of Associated Charities -- Encouraging Report-500 Applications for Aid Received.

The members of the Associated Charities met in annual session in the Y. M. C. A. assembly rooms last night and received new encouragement for the prosecution of their work in the various departments and in the words of commendation spoken by city clergymen and others who have profitof commendation spoken by city clergymen and others who have profited by the society's development. President W. S. Fisher was in the chair and after the opening formalities read his annual address. In introduction he outlined the objects for which the society was organized:—to provide a bureau to furnish information regarding those seeking help; to form a link between the deserving poor and the charitable, and to prevent imposture. The chief object was to place the deserving poor in a position where they might become self-supporting and to see that aid was so given that it might not lessen self-respect. Perhaps the most important work was that performed by the friendly visitors. He was pleased to be able to state that practically all the churches and charitable organizations were heartily cooperating. He spoke of the existence in other larger cities of such organizations as woodyards, laundries, cooking and sewing classes, and the like, but thought circumstances here did not warrant such institutions except in a very small way. For this winter the committee did not anticipate any special need along work lines, as the reason had been fairly prosperous. In closing he cited a number of interesting cares illustrative of the class of work done by the society.

Hon. R. J. Ritchie in the course of an appreciative speech took strong objection to the utterances of people who lately had been crying down St. John as a dissolute and lawless city. Considering the city's size, the limited number of police and its position as a scaport town, he considered we had reason to congratulate ourselves on its orderliness. Still it had been forcibly brought to our attention of late that we did not know all that was going on a number of police and its position as a seaport town, he considered we had reason to congratulate ourselves on its orderliness. Still it had been forcibly brought to our attention of late that we did not know all that was going on in younger circles. But this, he thought, was being remedied, and the work was beginning where it should—in the home. Personally he had noticed a considerable diminution in the number of children on the street late at night. This was really guarded against by laws now on the statute books, which also prohibited the asking of alms without the presentation of a certificate by a clergyman. Those parents who neglected their children and sent them out begging were also amenable to the law.

Rev. W. L. Beers, speaking of the presence of children on the streets, commended highly some instances of tact and effectiveness on the part of the police which had come under his observation. Discussing pauperism as a phase of degeneracy, he said the Associated Charities could with benefit co-operate with the board of health regarding sanitation, bad cooking, etc., which tended to favor physical degeneracy. He thought that finally strong measures would have to be taken regarding hereditary crime and pauperism, such as the erection of institutions for permanent detention and the passing of laws forbidding marriage among such classes. Intemperance and lack of social purity were the chief causes of such incompetency, and to begin at the beginning of the evil some measures against these must be taken.

Mr. Beers endorsed the statements of other speakers regarding the protection from fraud offered by the Associated Charities.

Rev. W. C. Gaynor congratulated the seciety on its growth and measures.

from fraud offered by the Associated Charities.

Rev. W. C. Gaynor congratulated the society on its growth and endorsed its work heartily. His church, he said, would continue to support the organisation. He advised them not to attempt too much—not to broaden their work too far lest they by so doing loss some of their usefulness.

Alderman Bullock, S. D. Scott and W. J. Parks added brief speeches commendatory of the society's work.

The election of officers, then proceeded with, resulted as follows:

President, W. S. Fisher.

An Ingenious "Ad." For a Lost Pct.

A medical man in London lost his dog. It was not a beauty, but handsome enough to be stolen, and it was a great pet of his wife's. He hit upon an ingenious device for recovering it at a cheap price. He put the following advertisement in the paper:

"Lost a small black dog, from Mayfair street; it is of no value even to the owner, but kind-hearted persons who have been moved to take it are warned not to do so, as the animal has been much experimented upon for scientific purposes and may become involuntarily a source of great danger."

The dog came back the same day, in time for afternoon tea.

That merchant is wise who has learned to mark up a generous advertising account on his books with as much regularity as he does the sums expended for rent, light, clerk hire, and other running expenses. Advertising is the vital force of business. An old advertisement is as dull and uninteresting as a month-old newspaper. One would just as soon search a last March paper for news as to read an advertisement that had been standing for a month.

A. M. Palmer, the famous theatrical manager, says: "Of all methods of reaching the public the daily newspapers are by far the best. I say this after years of practical experience covering all kinds of publicity."

TORONTO, Oct. 23.— The Evening Telegram's London cable says: It is said here that Hon. Mr. Tarte will in a short time pay a visit to England and later to Frame, where he will endeavor to interest Frenchmen in the development of the province of Quebec. The London Graphic today, commenting on the dismissal of Tarte, says that in the forthcoming struggle it seems probable that the matter of British preferential tariff will go to the wall. The conservatives are now denouncing it and the liberals are languid in its support.

ST. ANDREW BROTHERHOOD. Special Meeting of the Local Assembly

Was Held Last Evening.

A special meeting of the Local Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, called to receive reports from the delegates to the recent convention at Boston, was held in the Church of England Institute last evening.

The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and successful in every way, the only regrettable fact being the rather small attendance, due largely to the inclemency of the weather.

The first report was an excellent paper written by Rev. H. Montgomery of Kingselear, which dealt with the convention in all its phases. This was followed by addresses from H. C. Tilley, H. J. Smith and Rev. Dr. Raymond, which all showed the great help of the convention, the flourishing condition of the Brotherhood and the determined efforts which are being put forth for the service of the works.

A communication from the Brantford convention was read, calling on the Canadian Brotherhood for help in supporting a travelling secretary for Canada. A resolution was passed submitting the matter to the individual Chapters.

It was suggested that the Brother-hood observe the week of special intercession for men, Nov. 9th to 16th, by the holding of short noon-day services. The executive of the assembly was intructed to make arrangements.

A NEW RABBI COMING.

The Synagogue congregation are to have a new Rabbi, it is expected, in about a fortnight. Rabbi Wolenske of Brooks street, who left for New York some weeks ago, has not returned. His daughter has since joined him. Who the new clergyman is the local Hebrews do not know, though he is highly recommended. The requirements of a Rabbi in this city include ability to teach Canadian-born Jewish children the Hebrew language and history. Several clergymen brought here have failed in this point.

This made the result a tie, as Monteith had been elected by a majority of one, and the judges found that no one had been elected. Monteith is a conservative.
