

POOR DOCUMENT

Wm 2034

THE STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B. MONDAY, AUGUST 2 1909

NINE

COMMERCIAL

J. M. ROBINSON & SONS, Bankers.
American Stock Transactions.
St. John, N. B., Aug. 2.
Sat. Morn.
Ctg. Op'g Noon.

Amalgamated...	84 1/2	84 1/2
Am. Car. Ry...	65 1/2	65 1/2
Am. Locomotive...	65 1/2	65 1/2
American Sugar...	119 1/2	119 1/2
Am. Smelters...	98 1/2	98 1/2
Am. Tobacco...	49 1/2	49 1/2
Brook. Rpd. Trst...	79 1/2	79 1/2
Can. Pac. Ry...	119 1/2	119 1/2
C. P. Ry...	119 1/2	119 1/2
N. Y. Central...	141 1/2	141 1/2
Chas. & Co. Ohio...	79 1/2	79 1/2
Colo. P. & L...	47 1/2	47 1/2
Denver & Rio G...	49 1/2	49 1/2
Delaware & H. C...	155 1/2	155 1/2
Edison...	37 1/2	37 1/2
Gen. Elec...	142 1/2	142 1/2
Ill. Cent. Ry...	153 1/2	153 1/2
Ill. Cent. Ry...	153 1/2	153 1/2
Kansas & Tex...	47 1/2	47 1/2
Louis. & Nash...	145 1/2	145 1/2
Nat. Steel...	89 1/2	89 1/2
Northern Pac...	153 1/2	153 1/2
Press. Steel Car...	48 1/2	48 1/2
Penn. Ry...	140 1/2	140 1/2
Reading...	162 1/2	162 1/2
Rep. I. & Steel...	37 1/2	37 1/2
Rock Island...	39 1/2	39 1/2
S. P. Ry...	42 1/2	42 1/2
Southern Pac...	131 1/2	131 1/2
St. Paul...	158 1/2	158 1/2
U. S. S. Ry...	33 1/2	33 1/2
Union Pac...	121 1/2	121 1/2
Wisconsin Cent...	56 1/2	56 1/2
Sales, 11 o'clock, 175,000.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

July...	12.30	12.40
August...	12.30	12.40
September...	12.30	12.40
October...	12.30	12.40
November...	12.30	12.40
December...	12.30	12.40

CHICAGO MARKET REPORT.

Wheat...	1.00	1.00
July...	1.00	1.00
August...	1.00	1.00
September...	1.00	1.00
October...	1.00	1.00
November...	1.00	1.00
December...	1.00	1.00

WOMAN FOUND DEAD;

UGLY RUMORS AFLOAT

St. John Man Makes a Gallant Rescue

Bank Clerk Drowned in Manitoba—Sent Alderman a Dead Rat—Berlin Man's Suicide.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Martha Jenkins, wife of J. C. Jenkins, a prominent farmer of London township, was found by her husband's body in the barn with her head crushed in. It is surmised that the woman may have fallen from a hayrack or been kicked by a horse, but ugly rumors are floating about, and the coroner will hold an inquest.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 2.—A well-known Toronto broker named Patricia, who was accompanied by his wife and two other ladies, was riding to Hamilton in an auto when the machine passed over a hollow spot in road, the girl dislodged the rear seat on which were Mrs. Sheridan and one of the ladies. Both ladies were thrown out and badly shaken up and bruised.

MELITA, Minn., Aug. 2.—Tina Hanson, aged 22 years, a clerk in the Union Bank here, was drowned while bathing in the Souris river with a friend, getting beyond his depth. He was a native of Ireland and had no relatives in this country.

WINDERMERE, Manitoba, Aug. 2.—Percy Archibald, a traveler for H. W. Petrie Co., Toronto, pleaded guilty to the murder of a woman named Mrs. Buchanan on a train en route to Winnipeg. The woman was a sister of Prof. Buchanan of the University of Toronto, and with her brother and other friends was sitting in a car when she was killed. She was thrown from the train and her body was found in the water.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Aug. 2.—Some one sent Ald. Russell, chairman of the town property committee, a dead rat through the express office and Mrs. Russell is ill in bed with nervous prostration as the result. Ald. Russell has adopted a vigorous policy in municipal affairs and has been the cause of some of the town's troubles.

BERLIN, Ont., Aug. 2.—Wm. Schlemmer, aged 43 years, proprietor of the Co-operative Co., committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He was in apparently good health, but it is thought he was despondent owing to business reverses. He was a member of the town council. He leaves a widow.

THE CURREY SEPARATION CASE STILL DRAGS ALONG

The Currey case was resumed before Judge Jackson this morning. When court opened Mr. Teed said: "In pursuance of an intimation made by The on Friday, I make a motion for a further sum of suit money. The disbursements have been heavy. Mr. Hamilton served counsel for Mr. Currey with an affidavit to that effect. Mr. Skinner—Mr. Currey has not enough money. At any rate I must have time to reply to the affidavit. The affidavit was served on me as I was leaving town on Saturday afternoon. Counsel then entered into a discussion as to the practice of the court in such matters. The Court—Mr. Skinner wishes any time to reply. I'll grant him. Mr. Skinner—Since the suit started we have given just $1000. The Court—"Part of that is all-money."

Mr. Skinner—"Of course. The father is entitled to the custody of the children, but Mrs. Currey has taken them. I do not think that we should pay any further amounts until the case is concluded."

The Court—"Mr. Skinner, I'll give you until tomorrow morning to reply."

Mr. Skinner—"Acting on the theory that the husband must pay the expenses of both sides in a case of this nature, they have voted up unnecessary costs and—"

Mr. Teed—"The learned gentleman has no right to make a statement like that."

Mr. Teed then gave a detailed account of the various disbursements. According to Mr. Teed, Mrs. Currey is out of pocket to the extent of $145.

The Court—"The basis on which the expense of a suit of this nature falls upon the husband is that the husband is supposed to have the better property. That was the common law theory. However, we'll settle the matter tomorrow morning."

Mrs. Currey then took the stand and her cross examination was continued by Mr. Skinner.

Witness told of Currey's brutality during Julia's sickness. All this came out under direct examination.

The raft affair was then reviewed, but nothing new came out.

Witness swore positively that she knew nothing about the raft until after Mr. Currey discovered it. Witness was absent at the time and did not know about the building of it.

Q—"Had you any knowledge about the history of the raft with regard to any accident or any probable accident?"

Ans—"No."

Q—"Did you ever speak to Dr. Walker about this raft?"

Ans—"No."

With reference to the conversation witness had with Dr. Walker on King Square witness said it was only an ordinary conversation.

Q—"What did you say?"

Ans—"I remarked when Dr. Walker complimented me on my arrival home that my father's funeral looking so well I have come back to a hell on earth."

Q—"Did you say this voluntarily?"

Ans—"Yes."

Mr. Skinner—"You said this off your hat. Did you say anything else?"

Ans—"Yes, I said that I thought Mr. Currey had murdered my father."

Q—"You said that he murdered or killed?"

Ans—"Yes."

Mr. Skinner—"Wait—wait—wait—"

Witness said this was all she said to Dr. Walker.

Referring to the night witness learned from Currey that his father was dead Mrs. Currey said she heard the "phone ring. Witness woke up Currey and asked him to answer the phone. This was the first night that she went back to apartments after three months' absence in another room.

Q—"You then buried past differences?"

Ans—"Yes, we buried the hatchet."

Q—"What do you mean by the expression 'burying the hatchet'?"

Ans—"Time and time again when Currey was in fault I was the one who sued for peace."

Mr. Skinner—"Notwithstanding the fact that you two had entered upon a new era of peace you charged Mr. Currey with murder?"

Ans—"No, I did not. I charged him with the murder of my father during the conversation. I asked him if I could take the children. He thundered 'No.' It was then that I accused him of the murder of my father."

Q—"What was the age of your father?"

Ans—"Sixty-eight. The last six months before he died he was ill."

Q—"Whatever occurred in consequence of your father's death is the cause that brings you in this court?"

Ans—"No, that occurrence played a very small part in the future domestic quarrels."

Q—"After the scenes of that night did you bury the hatchet again?"

Ans—"No, I never had an opportunity."

Q—"This charge of murder—how did it affect Mr. Currey's mind?"

Ans—"He never referred to it again."

Mr. Skinner—"You have testified that Mr. Currey on one occasion called your little daughter an unseemly name?"

Witness—"Yes, that occurred at the point."

Mr. Skinner—"You know that he did not mean that she was such in the common acceptance of the term. Witness—"Oh, I don't know what he meant. He called her that name."

Mr. Skinner—"Oh, yes you do know."

Ans—"I called you General Butler, you would know that I did not mean it."

Witness—"I'm not here to tell you what Currey thought."

Witness's religion was then taken up.

Q—"What are you?"

Ans—"I was a Unitarian."

Q—"Did you on several occasions ridicule the Church of England religion?"

Ans—"No."

Mr. Hamilton—"What's that?"

Mr. Skinner—"Oh, you know well."

Witness—"I only complained of the motions in the Church of England."

Asked by counsel why she stayed so long at Jackson, Mich., at the time she was visiting her mother, witness replied that she was assisting her mother

WAS NOT TRYING TO BEAT THE RAILWAY

Frank McAllister Had Ticket With Him

Accused Trainmen of Brutality—Case Adjudged—Baxter Must Get a Fish License.

There were four prisoners on the dock this morning. Two of the prisoners were fined $8 or 30 days jail each, and one being a young man was told to do better in the future.

An elderly man named Joseph Doherty, and father of the young man who some years ago was murdered in Rockwood Park, was charged with being drunk and profane on Market Square early Sunday morning. The old man said he was not drunk, although he had been drinking and that his policeman did not give him a chance.

The magistrate told the defendant that he was liable to a fine of $16 but on account of his age he was only fined $8.

Frank McAllister was charged by L. C. R. Conductor P. W. Johnson for refusing to pay his fare on No. 10 train Saturday night and with using abusive language.

The defendant had a much different story to tell after he pleaded not guilty. He said he worked with his father in the Gilbert's lane dye works and his wife and children reside at Armstrong's during the summer. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and asked him to pay his fare.

The conductor told him to hurry and give it as soon as he could locate it. The conductor returned a few minutes later and while defendant was still looking through his pockets, a man suddenly grabbed defendant by the face and held him over the back of the seat while the conductor put handcuffs on his wrists.

When the handcuffs were put on his wrists he was taken to Petrolia. On Saturday night he was accompanied by a boy named Benish who intended spending Sunday with him. They were too late for the suburban train and purchased tickets for Rockwood, intending to walk from there to Armstrong's, and took passage on the No. 10 train. When a few miles west of Rockwood the conductor came along and