The Curries defeated the All-Stars in a game of ball on the Barrack

SPORTOGRAPHY

"GRAVY"

Mention "Elbows" and "the Old Master" in the same breath, and many an old-time fight fan's blood will tingle as he recalls those famous battles between George "Elbows" McFadden and the dinky master of ring science, Joe Gans. The encounters between the Hibernian and the negro rank among the classic bouts of the ring.

In the end Joe proved himself the master, and it will be twelve years tomorrow since the fans of San Francisco saw the mighty "Elbows" humbled and beaten by the speedy, clever black.

McFadden certainly played in hard luck for he was one of the top-notch lightweights of his time, and perhaps the greatest defensive boxer the ring has ever seen. Despite his proclivity with the gloves, he never hid a title. He knocked out Kid Lavigne, the great little French-Canadian, in the nineteenth round only a short time after Lavigne had lost the world's lightweight title to Frank Erne at Buffalo. And he knocked out Joe Gans in 1899, but the negro has not yet annexed the title.

Gans became lightweight champion by knocking out Frank Erne in the Green last evening by a score of 11 to 4.

The teams lined up as follows:

	All-Stars	Curries
Ernie...	Catcher.	Devine-Evans
Harley...	Pitcher.	Bovalrd
McColgan...	1st base.	Harris
Curran...	2nd base.	Smith
Damery...	3rd base.	Gorman
Mooney...	Shortstop.	Evans
O'Brien...	Left field.	Kennedy
O'ram...	Center field.	Frost
Bartlett...	Right field.	Smith

AMERICAN ALTITUDE RECORD.

Independence, Cal., June 25.—Silas Christofferson, aviator, in a biplane, flew today over the peak of Mount Whitney, 14,998 feet high. He attained an altitude estimated at more than 16,000 feet, and established it, is contended, a new American altitude record.

McFadden-Gans battles were among Classics of the Ring.

First round at Fore Erie, Ont., in May, 1902, McFadden then challenged the black, and they fought in a San Francisco ring on June 27th following. "Elbows" was then on the down grade, while Gans was at his best, and in the third round McFadden's seconds tossed in the sponge to save George from further slaughter. So faded McFadden's championship aspirations.

Gans always asserted that McFadden was the greatest fighter he ever tackled, and the three bouts between the pair in 1899 were certainly as full of action as anybody could desire. In the first bout Gans got the decision by a narrow margin after twenty-five rounds. In the second bout they traveled the same distance to a draw. The third bout, pulled off in San Francisco late in 1899, was a hair-raiser. After weighing in the negro stuffed himself with chicken and other grub, and early in the bout he showed signs of stomach distress. That gave George his cue, and he devoted his entire attention to Joseph's bread-basket. Joe stood it twenty-three rounds, when he crumpled up and took the count. The following year George and Joe fought two short draws, but in 1902 the negro triumphed over his ring enemy.

Green last evening by a score of 11 to 4.

1905—Jack Johnson defeated Jack

Munroe in 6 rounds at Philadelphia. Munroe, now all but forgotten, claimed at one time to be the heavyweight champion of the world. Shortly after Jeffries became champion, and while the big fellow was taking on all comers under a stay-four-rounds proposition, he met Munroe in this, Mont. By jugging and clinging Jack managed to stay the 4 chapters. During the exhibition Jeff slipped and fell, and Munroe claimed that he had knocked him down. The bout went in the dope books as a victory for Munroe, and the latter immediately had "heavyweight champion" printed on his professional cards. Nobody took his claims seriously, but Munroe was so loud and insistent that Jeff finally consented to a match. They met in San Francisco in 1904, and Jeff put the bogus champion away in the second round. Yet the following year Munroe was able to stay 6 rounds and make a fair showing against the big black who was destined later to conquer Jeffries.

1864—Tom Hyer, first American heavyweight champion, died in New York.

1909—Leach was knocked out in 41st round by Dick Hyland at Colma, Cal.

JOHNSON WON GAME AND THEN GOT MARRIED

Washington, June 25.—From the pitcher's box Walter P. Johnson, the premier twirler of the Washington baseball team, last evening walked into the home of Congressman E. E. Roberts of Nevada and signed up with Miss Hazel Lee Roberts in the matrimony league. The two had long discussed the terms of a contract and reached an agreement some time ago.

As a small present for his bride, Johnson took a 2-01 game from the world's champion Athletics, whom he held to four hits in one second frame of a double-header, only two hours before his marriage. Then he changed his uniform for evening dress and hastened to the home of his fiancée at 1498 Monroe street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, chaplain of the United States Senate, in the presence of only immediate friends of the family. In fear that his fellow-players might make a demonstration and the fans embarrass him with congratulations, Johnson endeavored to keep his coming marriage secret. The age of the groom is 26 and of the bride 20 years.

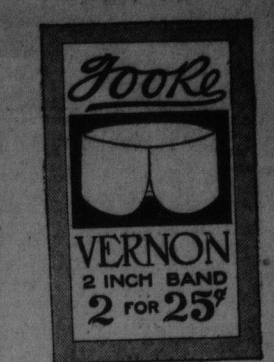

In the wedding came the culmination of a real baseball romance. Johnson having been introduced to Miss Roberts by her father, who is one of the greatest fans in the country. For more than a year Miss Roberts has been a most ardent and enthusiastic rooter for the Washington team, and yesterday she cheered the big pitcher to victory in the last game of his bachelorhood.

Mrs. Johnson long has been considered one of the prettiest girls in the Congressional set, and her debut next season was anticipated with great interest.

The honeymoon will be postponed till the close of the season, although Mrs. Johnson probably will accompany her husband on the next swing around the circle, which, however, will not start for a month.

THE CHURCH LEAGUE.

An interesting game of baseball was played on the Marathon grounds last evening under the auspices of the Church League when a team from St.

Luke's defeated a team from St. Stephen's by a score of 23 to 3. Quite a crowd of spectators witnessed the game. The batteries for St. Luke's were Craft and Dunlop, while the batteries for St. Stephen's were Russell, McLellan, Miller and Ingraham. The umpires were Craft and Upham.

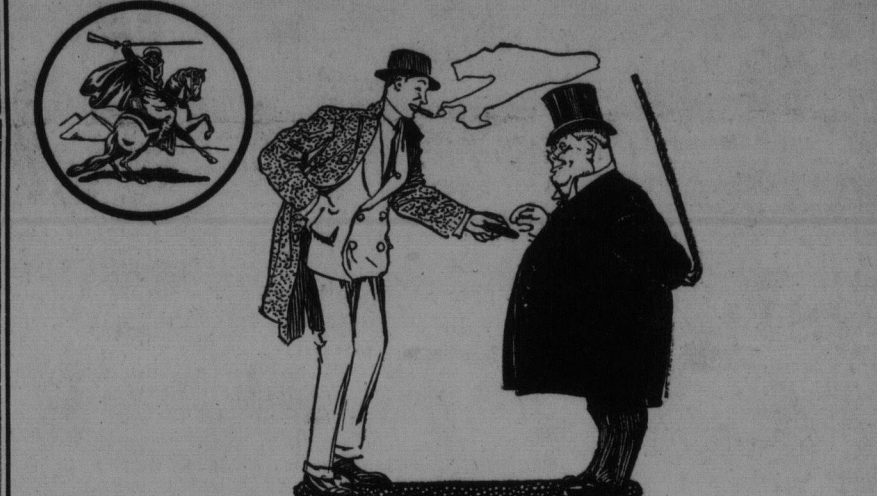

The next game in the Church League will be played on Monday between Trinity and St. Stephen's.

"Have you been Ben Beyed?"

I SAW two friends meet on the street yesterday. They passed the time of day, and then—

"Have you been Ben Beyed yet?" said the chubby chap.

"Sure," responded Lanky, "a week ago. Have one?" Two matches sputtered cheerfully and blue Ben Bey smoke, rich and fragrant, spread around to tantalize passers by.

Ben Bey has founded a new order of Happyfellowship. It has a million members, and is growing like the famous green bay tree. Qualifications: to be smoke-wise; Pass-word, say "Ben Bey" to the Guard Behind the Counter; Initiation, strike a match and puff; Advantages, a smoke that gets next to your joy-cells, but keeps away from your nerves; Dues, ten cents at the door for each smoker.
