OUR HOME CLUB

From our New Member

We welcome a new member to the Home Club—"Ccusin Ivan." Her first contribution is a most interesting one.

After reading Cousin Eva's centribution of November 3rd, on "How to Keep the Boys on the Farm," I felt I could not refrain from expressing my appreciation of the sentiments she there expressed.

The up-to-date farm boy wishes an up-to-date girl for his wife. As long as we educate our boys and girls away from the farm we will find the and girl problem on the farm a perplexing one

To a great extent the remedy lies in the hands of the parents themselves. Not until the farmers and farmer's wives of to-day fully appreciate the nobility of their calling can be appreciated the constitution of the control of the we expect to-morrow's farmers to be fully alive to the possibilities that farming holds out for them. To the bright intelligent boy a life of muscular activity alone does not appeal very strongly. He wishes to appeal very strongly. He wishes to be a force intellectually and to count be a force intellectually and to count for something in this world.

It is up to us as parents to show him by precept and example that farming has possibilities along this line, secend to no other occupation under the sun. From time of this birth, and yes before, for I am a firm believer in pre-natal influences, a love and a respect for the farmer's a firm believer in pre-natal influences, a love and a respect for the farmer's calling. Let us impress upon him the greatness, the freedom and independence of the farmer's occupation.

By supplementing his school work with some home work of our own choosing we can lead him to become interested in botany, chemistry, physics and in such subjects as he will need to study in order to become a successful farmer. The very thought that farming requires such knowledge as the study of these subjects baget will serve as a draws unipects beget will serve as a drawsing card toward the farming profession.

will serve as a drawing card toward the farming profession.

If we place the farmers calling high enough, the boys and the girls as well will not be found flocking to our cities as in the past. In order to do this, we the present farmers, must study and by every legitimate means strive to place "farming" on a higher plane.—"Cousin Ivan."

ON CHURCH MEMBERS

ON CHURCH MEMBERS

In regard to church-going, I truly and firmly believe, that we should all join some church, as soon as we possibly can. In fact we mould all feel ourselves in duty bound to do so, for in haste and repent at leisure if we were not church members.

It seems to me that one of the greatest drawbacks to Christianity to-day, and one that keeps many people out of the church, is the inconsistency of professing Christians. Have, but one of the heard people say, "Oh, he or she is a church member, and they do things that I would think wrong. I feel myself just as good as they are, and I don't care whether I join the church or not." We never stop to ask ourselves, are we going to be asted by somebody's standard of right and wrong, or whether we should ompare our standard of Christianity with that of others. We have, all of us, to solve that problem for ourselves.

I am afraid that too many of us are too ambitious to instil religion into those around us. We can seldom do it by argument or expositiation, as we all have a right to our own peculiar beliefs. If our idea of religion leads us to quarrel with those whom we love or cestranges us from them, then there is something lacking. It isn't the real religion.

All questions of duty, large or all the period of t

All questions of duty, large or small, are religious, to a certain extent, and all acts of plain, simple, everyday life are religious acts, if performed in the right spirit.

There is no better life to live than a church-going life, but we must not lose sight of the fact that that is only the beginning. We must try, to the best of our ability, to bring our religious beliefs into practice with our everyday life, and not leave our Christianity at the church door.—"City Cousin."
