When they Heard of the Surrend. er of Their Idolized Eronje.

He was the One Man They Looked up to as invincible - A Striking Scene.

London, May 15.—The Daily News correspondent, A. G. Hales, who was taken prisoner by the Boers and returned by them to Gen. Gatacre, sends has paper an account of how the Boers received the news of Cronje's surrender. Some who had escaped from Cronje's larger brought in the fatal render. Some who had escaped from Cronje's larger brought in the fatal news. Thes tolid-looking fighting men broke down and wept like boys. Great rugged, bearded men dashed their rifles on the ground and spurned them with their beats, while down their with their boots, while down their sun and wind tanned faces the tears poured steadily. Others stood leaning upon their rifles, with hands hard gripped, until one would think the tightened muscles would leave the impress of the straining fingers upon the old steel. Others again crowing to-gether and looked dumbly from face to face, like cattle foregathering to the nambies. If Cronje had loved his untry half as well as his country loved him he would have marched right on to the point of a British bayonet on that morning so disastrous to the Boers' arms, and have yielded up his life in order that the memory of his name might have remained as a watchword on the line mained as a watchword on the lips and in the hearts of his gallant yeoand in the hearts of his gallant yeo-manry soldiery. Cronje had been to the Boers as a God fashioned out of marble. They found him at last to be only a man made out of mud; and when he feil the Cape Dutch cause and the Orange Free State fell with him. When he laid down his arms he launched a thunderbolt into the Boer camp, which wrecked it forever."

My baby had a terrible breaking out all over his face and head extending half way down his back, while his arm became one solid, scaly, back, while his arm became one solid, scaly, bleeding sore. A physician gave me a prescription which I used, but he kept getting worse, and suffered beyond description. The pain became so it tense that he had to be put under cpiates. We could get no rest, night or day. He dwindled down to a mere skeleton. Everybody who saw him said he would surely die. As a last resort a trip to the country was suggested, that the change of air might do him good. As soon as my mother saw the child she got a copy of an Atlanta paper, in which there was an account of a wonderful cure CUTICURA REMDIES had wrought on a two-year-old child. My father started to the nearest drug store, which was five miles, and purchased CUTICURA (oithment), Cu-TICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. We applied as per directions putting pienty of the TICUITA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. We applied as per directions putting pienty of the CUTICURA on his head, face, arm, and back. The child slept for over two hours that night, improved faily, and in ninesceeks from the time he started on the CUTICURA REMEDIES we were able to discontinue their use, and not a sign is left to tell of his awful sufferings.

True modesty does not consist in True modesty does not consist in an ignorance of our merits, but in a due estimate of them. Modesty, then, is only another name for self-knowledge; that is, for the absence of ignorance on the one subject which we ought to understand the best, as well from its vital importance to us as from our continual opportunities of studying it. studying it.

The popular view of the relation of the blood to human character and conduct is marked in many a familiar conduct is marked in many a familiar expression. We speak of there being "bad blood" between people at enmity, of "blue blood" as indicating ancestry, of "black blood" as describing a treacherous nature, and in many another phrase mark our belief that in the mental, moral and physical man, "the blood is the life." The one basis of a healthful, happy and useful life is pure blood. With the blood pure, disease, has no permanent lodging disease has no permanent lodging place in the system. For this reason the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medi-cal Discovery rids the body of diseases which have their origin in impurity of the blood. It absolutely purifies the blood, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, increasing the action of the blood making glands, and build-ing up the body by supplying the blood ing up the body by supplying the blood in quantity and quality such as is es-sential to a condition of health. It cures ninety-eight people out of every hundred who give it a fair trial.
