Cost of living high?

Why should I care

when I can make cre use of my oven? Who ever heard anybody complain that home-made biscuits, muffins and things appeared on the table too often? Bob—he's a chemist—says that ten cents worth of wheat supplies far more food value and real energy than a round of steak. No indeed, I don't buy much meat, and we're all the better for it. But don't imagine the ordinary biscuit will do. Look to the flour they are made from. Make it Royal Standard (your grocer sells it) and your oven will be a veritable treasure chest for goodies, light and feathery, wholesome, digestible.
