CHAPTER VII

Looking into the brave, kindly face, Leah wondered to herself if the answer to her many prayers was come—if he had been sent to save her from a life she had dreaded.

"I come," said the general, proudly, "to make a proposition; how it will be received I know not. I make it in my dear sister's name. I abhor and detest the principles and teachings of Martin Ray; I hold them in such supreme contempt that I can never after this day have any communication whatever with him. I would rather cut off my right hand than let it touch his. But his children are the children of my dear sister, and I am here to make them an offer. I am a rich man; I have been married, and my wife, in dying, left me a large fortune; besides which, all that I have undertaken has prospered. I have no children, no relatives save my two nieces, and consequently no one to succeed to my wealth. I shall never marry again; and I propose, in accordance with my sister's wishes, to adopt Leah and Hettie, and treat them as daughters of my own. I will educate them, find a proper chaperone for them, introduce them to their proper sphere, and I will divide my money equally between them."

There was dead silence in the room. Martin Ray grew pale. The girls looked startled and surprised. The silence was painful until the general broke it himself.

"I need hardly say what a different life this will be for them. With large fortunes, and the name of Hatton, they may aspire to any position, they may marry as they will. They will be equal to any ladies in the land. A brilliant future lies before them—wealth,

Backache

Backache outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women commonly mistake of attributing their pains and over-look the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good result. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

gayety, pleasure, all that is most bright and beautiful. But I will do this only on one condition; and it is to this condition that I beg you to give your best attention. I can hold no communication with Martin Ray. A soldier of the queen and a preacher of sedition cannot join hands. If I adopt these children and make them my own, they must give up for ever all communication with the man who is their father; they must give up his name and take mine; they must cease to hold any intercourse with him, unless he is ill or dying. I can accept no half measures—it must be all or nothing."

"It is inhuman," cried Martin Ray.

"It is natural," said the general. "Loyalty and treason can never go hand in hand. Give my sister's children to me, and I will make them my own; but I will never share the charge of them with you."

There was silence again, during which one could hear the labored breathing of Martin Ray.

"That is like an aristocrat," he said. "Remorselessly you ride roughshod over the feelings of those whom you choose to consider as beneath you. Why should you seek to take my children from me? Why should you offer to hide them with money and pleasure? Do you call that honorable? An aristocrat's notion of honor—the bribing of children to leave their father! Their mother, sweet soul, loved me until she died; they will do the same. Offer what you will, my children will not desert me. I dare you—I defy you! Double the gold that you offer and a name twice as noble as the one you bear will not take them from me."

"They shall speak for themselves, returned the general. "It is a decision for life, not for a short time only. The fairest way is to leave it to them to make their choice."

"I am not afraid," said Martin Ray; but he wondered at the strange look on Leah's face. "I appeal to my children; they have loved, obeyed, honoured me; will they forsake me now for a stranger who confesses that he detests me?"

"I make no appeal," put in the general; "I leave it to them. If they will come to me, they shall be as children of my own; but they must give up all claim to you. I own that it is a momentous choice, and one most difficult to make."

Again the painful silence fell over them, unbroken this time by any sound. The girls stood with white faces, looking from one man to the other.

"My children," said Martin Ray. "I leave it to you."

Leah turned away his head, too proud a moment to let the expression of his face be seen.

"And I," said General Hatton, looking at each of his nieces, "leave it to you also. My dear sister's children, do as you will; but do not forget your mother's words."

With a cry, the girls clasped their arms around each other. In that moment they felt quite alone in the world. How were they to make such a choice? To Leah's mind recurred the memory of her fervent prayers for some one who would deliver her from her "turnace of fire." She looked into the blue eyes of her sister.

"It is what I prayed for," she whispered.

Then slowly, as the waters of a great sea divide, the two girls separated, sadly, mournfully, looking back with lingering regret, yet never faltering; and Leah, the child whom Martin Ray had loved, of whom he had been so unutterably proud, whom he had hoped to see his political successor, beautiful dark-eyed Leah, went to her uncle and and her hand upon his.

"I prayed to Heaven for deliverance," she said, "and you have brought it. I accept your offer."

With a bitter cry, Martin Ray turned to her. There was dignity in the sorrow of his voice and face.

"You make your choice—deliberately and—willfully, Leah?"

"I make it of my own free will, father. I would have chosen death rather than the life you mapped out for me. Loving arms were placed around his neck; a loving, beautiful face was laid against his.

"I will never leave you, father," said Hettie. "I will give my life to you."

So for some minutes they stood—the general with his arm thrown round Leah, as though from that moment he would shield her from all harm, and from every one; Hettie clasping her father's neck, her face wet with tears.

"I accept your offer, uncle," said Leah, in a calm, clear voice; "and I shall always believe that Heaven sent you to me."

"I will never leave you, father!" cried Hettie. "My love shall make up to you for the loss of Leah's!"

"I do not say that I shall cease to love my father—you have no right to imply such a thing. Hettie—but I cannot refuse to take advantage of my uncle's kindness!"

"I will never leave you, father darling!" cried the younger girl. "The more they say against you, the more I will love you. I do not believe any of the accusations against you, and I love you with all my heart." It was beautiful to see the light in her face, the love in her eyes, the childish passion of wounded pride with which she clung to him, the tenderness with which the little white hand stroke and caressed him. "I would not leave you, dear," she repeated, "if he would make me queen of the whole world. I believe all that you believe. I will never be false to you. Nothing shall ever take me from you."

He was a politician—he had never considered himself a religious man—indeed his ideas on religion were worse and lower than his ideas on politics; yet he bowed his face on the golden head for some few minutes, and words not often on his lips came from them. Then he turned to the other two.

"You hear," he said; "there is one faithful to me. You may take the other. I—I give her to you!"

"I could never lead the life you want me to lead, father—never," remarked Leah; "and how would you have borne with me had I refused? Do not think that my heart is not rent."

KEEP FIT

Never let your system get run down -- keep fit all the time

As long as you keep yourself strong and healthy, it is almost impossible to contract colds and other contagious diseases.

Don't wait until your system becomes weakened, but immediately you notice you are not feeling up to the mark, start fortifying your system against disease by taking Carnol. These remarks apply specially to children who do not realize the importance of taking proper care of themselves.

The peculiar feature about Carnol is that, while it is a preparation containing cod liver oil, it has a delicious taste.

Carnol is the ideal preparation for all run down conditions. It is an excellent remedy for anaemia, consumption and all diseases of a wasting nature, due to impaired nutrition, poor and insufficient blood supply. Carnol provides food for the nerves and food for the body. It increases weight and builds up the whole system.

Carnol is of special value in the treatment of all nervous conditions marked by depression of the vital forces and usually caused by prolonged mental strain, overwork, nervous prostration.

Carnol has proven an excellent remedy for Eriekets, that common disease of ill-nourished children and in other ailments.

Carnol is composed of that wonderful nerve tonic—glycophosphate salts. This is commonly known the world over as "The Blood Salt." It is the best blood builder and nerve invigorator yet discovered. Carnol also contains the soluble nutritive properties of fresh beef which stimulates and nourishes the system.

In addition, there is cod livers' extract with all the nauseating, bad-tasting elements removed. Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.
