THE VALENTINE TRAGEDY.

Coroner Riddel Holds an Inquest—The Evidence as to the Speed of the Engine—Did the Whistle Blow or the Bell Ring?—Charge against a Witness.

Coroner Riddel deemed the accident at the Kingston road railway crossing resulting in the death of George Valentine and his wife, of sufficient importance to demand an inquest, but declined to take the oath prescribed by law. He therefore decided to hold the inquest without compensation and it was opened at the morgue yesterday at three o'clock. W. G. Falconbridge watched the proceedings on behalf of the Grand Trunk company. The following were the chief points brought out:—

Robinson, the day signal man, proved that there was no night watchman employed at the crossing.

Henry Worthing said he did not hear the whistle blow or the bell ring before the accident. Several other witnesses said they did not notice it blowing. Three witnesses did hear it and the last one, Edwin Sparks, heard it blow twice and also heard the bell ring.

There was no positive evidence as to whether there was a light on the tender, which was in front.

Henry Worthing said the engine was going very fast. Edwin Sparks said it was not. An attempt was also made to get at this fact indirectly by showing how long it took to stop the engine after the accident. As the point at which it was stopped was variously estimated at from 40 or 50 feet to 100 yards below the crossing, the testimony was of little value.

The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday at 7.30 p.m.

George Valentine was a half brother to John Bailie, 333 Yonge street. Two of the relatives have arrived from Pickering and the bodies will be sent there to-day.

THE SOCIAL QUESTION.

Strong Denunciation of Libellous Assertions About Workingwomen.

At a meeting of the grand lodge of the workingmen's national union of Canada, the following motion was duly consdidered and passed unanimously:

Whereas, many evil and false reports have been circulated through a certain portion of the press, and obtained considerable notoriety, affecting the moral character of young women accustomed to earn a living by working in the manufacturing establishments of Toronto and other places of the Dominion of Canada.

Be it therefore resolved that the members of the workingmen's national union of Canada, in grand lodge assembled, do as fathers and brothers, and as the natural protectors and fellow-workers in the honorable field of free labor earnestly protest against, and hereby denounce as a foul libel upon our laboring sisterhood, the great scandals so uttered by thoughtless or inexperienced persons; and we further pledge ourselves individually and collectively to uphold and defend to the utmost of our ability the characters and persons of all women engaged in getting an honest livelihood by the fruits of their labor against unjust attacks in the press or from any other quarter.

Signed by order of grand lodge on behalf of the working women's national union of Canada, this 29th day of December, A.D. 1881: J. Ick Evans, grand delegate; Geo. Dawson, president; Geo. Piddington, secretary, Geo. B. Boyle, solicitor.

THE POLICE WORLD.

In the assault case of Duckett v. Colbert, the defendant was fined $5 and costs or 30 days.

Adjourned cases: George Wilson, suspected of stealing brass taps, January 4; Loftus Gray, neglecting his wife, January 4.

James Flynn was charged with having thrown a broom at John Gibson, which struck him in the face. Prisoner said that he threw the broom at another person. He was fined $3 and costs or ten days.

Fred Thornton was charged with having stolen a $20 overcoat from the hall of Police Constable Jamieson's house, and David Cowan was charged with receiving the coat, knowing it to have been stolen. As Cowan did not know that the coat was stolen and was drunk at the time he was acquitted. The case against Thornton was conclusive, and prior convictions being entered against him, the magistrate sent him to the penitentiary for three years.

John Eddis and John O'Connell were sent to jail for five and seven days respectively on two charges of larceny. The boys stole a silk handkerchief from Wm. Goddard and some metal from the Toronto, Orey and Bruce railway.

Daniel Smith and Charles Spice were charged with stealing brasses, the property of the Toronto Grey and Bruce railway. Goralsky, keeper of a rag shop, said they tried to sell him the brasses. He suspected that they had stolen the property, and after questioning them, had detained them until the arrival of a policeman. As the case was not sufficiently proven, the prisoners were discharged.

On the 10th of November, 1879, the premises of Thomas Kirby, a tailor, were burglarized and a quantity of cloth stolen. Fred. Bevan was arrested shortly afterwards, tried and sent to the penitentiary for the burglary, but another man named Thomas Herbert, who was wanted for the same offence, made good his escape. Last night having unwarily came into the city he was arrested by P.C. Kearns and lodged at police headquarters.

THE AMY LEE OPERA CO.

This company will commence a week engagement at the Royal opera house Monday afternoon with a special new year's matinee. Of their performance the Macon, Ga., Telegraph and Messenger says: The first performance of the Two Medallions took place at Ralston hall last evening. The play is properly a musical comedy, and does not pretend to be a comic opera. It abounds in the most ridiculous scenes imaginable, and is funny from end to end. The company is an evenly balanced one, each character being fully up to his part, and thoroughly in accord with the others. Prominent in the piece is that dainty little star, Amy Lee, the Wisconsin of last season. The character of a spoiled and wilful child suits her admirably. Her voice is smooth and flexible, and under splendid control. Plinkette was very tastefully illustrated by Miss Jennie Raynone. Clotilde, personated by Miss Eiselle, was another successful effort. Combined with a fine appearance, Miss Eiselle has a very melodious voice, and her efforts were always well applauded. Matilda, as illustrated by Miss Tanner, was one of the most grotesque characters we have ever seen. Butts, the squire, was also a good character, and as such Harry Smith frequently convulsed the audience. Billings, an extravant character with a deep, clear voice, also showed up well, and kept the audience in laughter. Barnes, while not a very important character, was very well illustrated by Mr. Hodges. The funniest character on the stage was Spooks, a negro. Mr. Stanley made a success of the part. Those who love fun can find it in Two Medallions.

Edward Fitzgerald died at his residence No. 489 Church street yesterday, after an illness of more than a year. Deceased was admitted to the bar in 1856, was a graduate of King's college, a gold medalist in mathametics and had the titles of Q. C., M. A. and L. L. B.

C. H. Dunning, the Yonge street butcher, challenges Mr. Awde's authority as meat inspector, and the butchers say they are prepared to make this a test case, as they believe that the government alone have the right to appoint an inspector, and that it is ultra vires for the city council to do so.

Mr. J. Rose is the popular cartage man of the city. He has vans, wagons and carts of all kinds and can move anything from a piano to a pin-cushion. His new moving wagons are the only ones of the kind in the country and with them valuable furniture can be moved without packing.

The $50 lost on the Great Western railway train between Niagara Falls and this city last Tuesday by Rev. Mr. Hackett of England, was found on Wednesday on one of the coaches at Hamilton. He has left Toronto and does not know it has been recovered. At the time of his loss he claimed to have had his pocket picked.

Judgments at Osgoode hall in the common pleas division: Exchange bank v. Stinson, new trial granted. Carter v. Carter, interpleader issue, new trial granted without costs. Brown v. Ryan, rule discharged. Molson's bank v. Cowan, rule absolute to set aside verdict. Merchants' bank v. Travelers' insurance company, new trial granted in payment of costs by defendant.

Evangelical Churchman: The work of the divinity school has made this year a vast stride in advance. The much needed building is in course of erection. In a few weeks the exterior will be completed and then through the winter the work of the interior will be carried on. The spring, we hope, will witness its completion, and that without a dollar of debt.

The much-vexed question of litigation against married women was again broached in the common pleas yesterday. Chief Justice Wilson gave a somewhat startling decision when he held that a married woman can be sued, whether she has separate estate or not, and that, on a judgment recovered against her, execution can be issued upon her separate estate.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

The commercial travellers' association met at their rooms in the Mechanics' institute, the vice president, J. C. Black in the chair. The report of the scrutineers was read and showed that the following had been elected officers: Capt W. F. McMaster, president; J C Black, 1st vice-president; Jos Bonnick, 2nd vice-president; Hugh Blain, treasurer. Directors: F H Hamilton, A A Allan, W G H Lowe, H A Galbraith, Jno Burns, A Ansley, A E Belcher and Jno Allan. Directors for Hamilton: J A Orr, E A Dalley, G E Hamilton, J. D. Stewart, M McFarlane and J H Herring; vice-presidents for Hamilton: Adam Brown and J H Stone. A vote of thanks to the retiring president, James Paterson, was moved by R J Wylie seconded by J J Allworth and carried amid much applause. On motion of Messrs. Wylie and Wright a vote of thanks was passed to Professor Cherriman for his aid in the insurance scheme.

Messrs. Law and Hayward moved that $220.10 with four years' interest be paid to the children of Mr. Harper a deceased member of the association, that sum having been part of the money misappropriated by the late secretary. The motion was carried. The new president in returning thanks said that commercial travelers controlled the business of Canada, and firms who tried to ignore them were behind the times. Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring officer, and the association adjourned.

WEST END FURNITURE STORE.

The largest furnitnre business in the west end is that of Thomas Jolliffe & Co., 467 to 471 Queen street west. The shop has a frontage of 50 feet, by a depth of 100. The two stores in front are occupied as show rooms, and there is a good stock of furniture in ash, walnut, oak and other woods to choose from. A specialty is made of twenty-five dollar bedroom suits, comprising bed, washstand and dressing case. Purchasers may choose their own frames and coverings, as all the upholstering is done by the firm. One of the storeys in the rear is occupied as a store-room, and two as workshops, but the greater portion of the manufacturing is done by the firm at their factory on Denison avenue, where they manufacture upholstered goods, mattresses, spring beds and lounges. Their "challenge" spring beds is a combination of the woven wire and upright coil springs, combining the comfort of the former with the strength of the latter.
