DREAMING.

Little Mabel Myrtle is a very quiet, thoughtful little girl. She likes to sit looking up into the blue sky, wondering where God and the holy angels live. Her dear little baby brother had passed away from its happy home; and Mabel sometimes thought that the soft white fleecy clouds in the sky were the angels taking the baby's soul to heaven. A great painter has made just such a picture of the blessed angels of God carrying the soul of a martyr, that is one who died as a witness for Jesus, through the deep blue sky. This famous picture you may see when you grow older. But though Mabel cannot pierce the blue depths of the sky with her gaze, yet we know that

Around the throne of God in heaven
Thousands of children stand,
Children whose sins are all forgiven,
A holy, happy band.

THE SAUCY DOG.

Sport is a very saucy little dog. But he is also very playful and good-natured. Perhaps he does not mean to be saucy. I think he makes free with people and sometimes knocks little ones down chiefly because he is young himself, for he is only a pup.

Whenever a stranger comes into the yard he jumps around and barks at a great rate, acting very much alarmed as if they were burglars. But when he grows older he will learn better than to bark at everybody. When he finds the strangers are kindly received by his mistress he stops barking, and in his funny little way goes up to them, wagging his tail and seeming to say, "Well! who are you any way?"

He is such an awkward puppy, he does always not look where he is going and so sometimes runs full tilt against little Mary and knocks her down. She has found a little switch, with which she says she is going to teach Sport better manners. But poor little doggie is so innocent, he does not suppose for a moment the switch is to be used on him.
